

The Washington Post

The Weather

Today—Fair, not quite so cold.
Tomorrow—Fair and warmer.
Wednesday—High 58; Low 38.
Details on page 25.

NO. 21,489

Entered as Second Class Matter,
Postoffice, Washington, D. C.

WASHINGTON: WEDNESDAY, APRIL 17, 1935

Copyright, 1935,
By The Washington Post

THREE CENTS

$1,300,000,000 Bill for Bonus Comes Up Today

President Guards View on New Compromise
Senate Measure.

Roosevelt Word
Awaits Passage

Plan to Offer Veterans
Bonds in Form Easy to Convert.

By the Associated Press.

While the White House carefully guarded itself against premature commitment, Chairman Harrison of the Senate Finance Committee yesterday completed the draft of a $1,300,000,000 compromise bonus bill he will introduce today in his capacity as Administration leader on the issue.

An informal warning was sounded at the White House that President Roosevelt was not committed to any specific measure, but his leaders on Capitol Hill were confident he would approve the bill to be offered by Harrison.

Not Shown Yet.

The tall Mississippian admitted President Roosevelt had not yet seen the bill, as he completed it only yesterday.

In Senate circles it was understood President Roosevelt did not want to be put in the position of accepting the bill ahead of time, but that if it or something like it were sent to him by Congress he would sign it.

The White House said that Mr. Roosevelt would speak when and if the bonus bill was sent to him.

Less Than Patman Cost.

Harrison continued to guard details of the bill but disclosed that the bill was estimated to cost $1,300,000,000, which, he said, was $1,000,000,000 less than the Patman bill passed by the House, but $300,000,000 more than the present law.

Under the Harrison proposal, the maturity date of the certificates would be advanced from 1945 to 1938.

It was understood the bill did not propose to offer cash on the present value of the certificates but to propose an exchange under which veterans could, if they wished, obtain negotiable bonds which would be readily convertible into cash because of the interest they offered for the next three years.

Harrison formally notified his committee that hearings on the bonus question would be held Monday and Tuesday.

Swiss Silent on Jacob.

Berne, Switzerland, April 16 (AP).—With the probability of an appeal by Switzerland to the Permanent Court of International Justice at the Hague, the Swiss Federal Council decided today there was no further use in discussing the "fact" of the recent kidnapping of Berthold Jacob, German newspaperman, with the German government.

The Solution

To the Radio Thriller,
'What Would You Do?'

The solution of the third thrilling "What Would You Do?" real life dramas broadcast Monday at 8:30 p. m. from WJEL, Hagerstown, Md., follows:

Raymond Wilcott arose from his chair.

"Well, Enders, Mrs. Enders is waiting for you."

"But Wilcott, you haven't told me what you're going to do."

Wilcott walked slowly by the huge mirror from which he had seen Mrs. Enders act.

"Enders, promise me you'll say absolutely nothing to Mrs. Enders about this affair. Do you promise?" Enders was suffering immeasurably. His nervous fingers had already twisted the brim of his soft gray hat out of shape.

"Yes, man, of course! But what are you going to do? She'll show the check all over town."

"No, she won't, Enders, I saw to that."

.....

Mrs. Enders flung her clothes upon the chaise longue, threw her arms around her distracted and shame-stricken husband.

"You're not awfully ashamed, are you, Harry?"

Enders was silent.

"I'll have that new dress and that perfectly adorable hat you refused to buy me! Oh, Harry, I'm so happy, and I won't look—here it is—proof to the world that Evelyn Enders beat Raymond Wilcott, the famous bridge champion!"

Mrs. Enders took out the check. Anxiously she unfolded it. Suddenly the smile faded from her excited face. The check read: "Pay to the order of The Woman Who Cheated."

A hard check to cash or show to one's friends.

Do not miss the next in this gripping series, entitled "Birds of a Feather," Wednesday at 8:30, from WJEL.

Byrns Scolds House Delay From Floor

Admonition Unheeded,
Adjournment at 4:15,
Same as Usual.

Tax Reduction to Aid
Small Industries Seen by Speaker.

By Douglas Warrenfels.

The slowest working Congress in years was scolded yesterday by Speaker Byrns for its lackadaisical conduct.

A crowded House listened respectfully and roared its approval of the Speaker's admonition and then went ahead and did precisely as it pleased, adjourning just as early as on the day before—4:15.

It is a rare event when a Speaker takes the floor. The House was in a mood for breaking precedents, however, because it heard from another member who seldom raises his voice—Representative John S. McCarty (Democrat), California, sponsor of the Townsend old-age pension scheme.

Observers attached importance to a statement by Byrns that there may be "some relief" for small industries through reduction in taxes. While he was not specific, it was believed possible that the House would be asked by the Administration to exempt the first $1,000 or $2,000 of corporate earnings from income taxes.

Wants Saturday Session

Frowning at the manner of a school teacher rebuking lazy students, Byrns said:

"We've got to make up our minds to stay here in the chamber and on the job."

"The House should decide whether it is going to recess on Saturdays as often as heretofore or whether it is going to dispose of important legislation. It is important for the country's standpoint for Congress to close up at the earliest possible moment and adjourn."

In the back of the Speaker's mind was the thought that many members would slip away later in the day and attend the opening game at Griffith Stadium. Even after the game was cancelled the House attendance dwindled sharply.

Knutson Resents Charge

Byrns recalled he had been asked to adjourn the House over Good Friday and added:

"I don't know any better thing outside of going to church unless it is to come here and devote ourselves to the people's business."

He listed as "important legislation" remaining to be passed: The Naval supply bill, omnibus banking measure, utilities regulation, transportation control, commodity exchange bill, NRA extension and tax extension.

Representative Knutson (Republican), Minnesota, replied that members often were called from the floor by important committee meetings.

"We shouldn't be accused of playing hooky when we're not," he said.

McGroarty Gives Warning.

McGroarty described the Townsend plan as "an honest to God old-age pension."

He urged members to "get in line so you'll come back here next session."

The Californian assailed those who feared Dr. F. E. Townsend, author of the plan which bears his name.

"Shame on those who fear," he said.

"As for those who say the program is cockeyed, do you want to call the 30,000,000 Townsend petitioners crazy? You're talking about God's beloved old people. They represent it."

Meanwhile, passage of social security legislation was urged on Chairman Harrison of the Senate Finance Committee by Arthur J. Ruland, Binghamton, N. Y., grand inchoone of the Improved Order of Red Men.

Ruland urged adequate care for the aged, the crippled and the unemployed. He told of an orphan.

Continued on Page 5, Column 4.

Clipper Roars On, Reports All 'O.K.'

The new Pacific clipper ship which took off yesterday on flight to Honolulu, is shown as it arrived recently in Los Angeles Harbor.

Giant Plane, Winging Over Pacific Toward Honolulu to Blaze Trade Trail, Radios 416 Miles Covered at 9:30 p. m.

Alameda, Calif., April 16.—The transpacific plane reported itself 416 miles at sea enroute to Honolulu at 9:30 p. m. (Eastern Standard Time) in a message to the Pan-American radio station here. The plane, at an elevation of 6,100 feet, was southwest of here, flying 151 miles per hour. Visibility was reported unlimited and everything aboard "O. K."

Alameda, Calif., April 16.—Exactly on schedule, the big clipper flying boat and its six-man crew left here today on a 2,400-mile flight to Honolulu to blaze the first leg of a commercial transpacific airline to the Orient.

The Pan-American plane took off at 3:50:30 p. m. (8:50:30 Eastern standard time), rising from the water and heading toward its distant goal.

Four powerful motors, developing 2,800 horsepower, whirled the big propellers as several thousand spectators eagerly watched the start of the pioneering hop.

The six men of the clipper's crew, captained by Edwin C. Musick, walked to the float and entered their craft. They wore navy blue uniforms and white caps.

Lifts Into Air.

Then Chief Pilot R. O. D. Sullivan opened the throttle and the craft turned slowly and headed out into the bay.

Spray foamed from the sleek black hull as the clipper gathered speed. It raced along the surface for a quarter of a mile and, after 30 seconds, lifted into the air.

A dozen other planes flew with it as it passed over San Francisco and out the Golden Gate.

The sun was shining brilliantly at Alameda and weather conditions at sea were reported almost ideal.

There were only a few scattered clouds en route and no adverse winds.

"The flyers will have very good weather for the next 24 to 36 hours," said Maj. Edward H. Bowie, United States military forecaster at San Francisco.

With a cruising speed of between 150 and 180 miles an hour, the plane was expected to reach Honolulu in 16 or 18 hours.

Capt. Musick was given his choice of two courses mapped out for him. A new radio compass, developed after tests by Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh, will guide the plane.

The Clipper weighed 41,500 pounds and carried 3,000 gallons of gasoline.

Continued on Page 5, Column 4.

Snow in D. C. As Cold Routs East's Spring

Flurries Here as Mercury
Skids to 30; Heavy Falls in Virginia.

Nearby Orchards Periled
if Cold Persists; Dust
Again Plagues West.

The word spring became a mockery yesterday as wintry weather gripped the country from the Mississippi eastward, silencing the poets, breaking up ball games and threatening fruit crops in at least five States. Almost a foot of snow fell in West Virginia.

Orchardists around Martinsburg, W. Va., were fearful that snow and a freezing temperature had blasted prospects for a good peach crop.

Fruit trees in Virginia, Maryland, Pennsylvania and Ohio also were imperiled, but hope was held out that the great apple crop in the Shenandoah Valley would survive the wintry weather.

In Washington there were snow flurries throughout the day.

Fair, Warmer, Predicted Today.

The highest temperature here was 38 at 4 p. m. and the low was 30—2 below freezing—at 7 a. m. Today, the forecaster said, would be fair and not so cold.

Unless there is another sharp drop in temperature, the double cherry blossoms around the Speedway will not suffer, C. Marshall Finnan, superintendent of National Capital Parks, said last night.

While snow was falling in Virginia, North Carolina, Ohio, Pennsylvania, New York, Maryland and Vermont, dust clouds continued to plague Colorado, Oklahoma, Kansas and Nebraska.

In one large area in West Virginia, embracing Mercer, Raleigh, McDowell and Wyoming counties, there was a snowfall of 10 inches.

30 in Morgan County, W. Va.

The Post's correspondent in Martinsburg, W. Va., reported that the temperature dropped as low as 20 degrees in the mountains of Morgan County, where are located many large peach orchards. One big grower near Pawpaw said his crop had been destroyed because the bloom was fully open.

A dike, from Harrisonburg, Va., reported two inches of snow in the rich Shenandoah Valley. Peach and cherry blossoms were slightly damaged, it was said, but the apple trees in the region suffered no injury. The apple trees, orchardists explained, have not yet bloomed and this has tended to save the crop.

Ice in East Maryland.

The upper part of Maryland's Eastern Shore, according to the Associated Press, abounded in ice spots—the first April ice in many years.

The mountain section of Garrett County reported 6 inches of snow, and seven snow plows were ordered out by the State road commission.

C. E. Bruce, manager of the touring bureau of the Keystone Automobile Club, last night warned the thousands of tourists in Washington to be prepared to use chains on their automobiles in traveling westward.

Route No. 40, leading to the mid-west, is covered with ice at certain points, Bruce said, and so, too, is Route No. 30, to Lincoln Highway, which leads to Chicago. The ice, he said, was to be found in the mountain regions.

By the United Press.

Kansas City, Mo., April 16.—Dense dust was flying again tonight out of the Western dust belt into the green fields of the spring wheat States to the North.

A vast blanket of grime moved northward into Nebraska and the Dakotas where farmers have enjoyed abundant spring snow and rain.

The new storm turned day into night in western Kansas and gave agricultural experts from Washington first-hand experience in their survey of the dust calamity. It began about noon. At 3 p. m. dust

Continued on Page 3, Column 5.

Ex-Allies Force League Censure Of Armed Reich

Reelection Unlikely

HENRY L. HARRIMAN.

Harriman Out, U. S. Chamber Turns to Right

Supporter of New Deal's
'Radicalism' Will Not Be Reelected.

By Felix Bruner.

Henry L. Harriman, one of the business leaders most friendly to the New Deal, will not be reelected president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States when it meets here April 28.

Harriman has served as president of the organization for three one-year terms. As there has been a tradition in the organization that three years should be the limit for one man, the significance of Mr. Harriman's impending retirement lies rather in the fact that it is expected to open the way for a resurgence of right-wing leadership in the chamber.

Since the election of Mr. Harriman three years ago, some of the right wingers who were intimately identified with the Hoover Administration have been in eclipse.

Viewpoint, implacable in its opposition to many major Rooseveltian experiments, is expected to be more prominent in the coming convention than at any time since the Hoover Administration.

Close to White House.

Harriman has been close to the White House. He was in on the creation of NRA. He has favored the AAA. The more conservative element in the Chamber of Commerce membership, and on its board, has not completely approved his activities and public utterances.

When this powerful business organization meets it will discuss, among other subjects, Government spending, the effects of NRA, the housing program, labor relations, code limitations on production and "How Red Is America."

Strong pronouncements on Government policies and on legislation are expected. Some members have expressed the fear that the Government will go deeper into business than it already has gone. In this

Continued on Page 5, Column 6.

Steamroller, Opposition of Poland, Denmark; Action Due Today.

Germany Warns Against Passage

Czechs Arrest Score in Drive on Nazi Spy Syndicate.

The European Situation.

A vigorous resolution assailing Germany's unilateral violation of treaties in rearmament was introduced at Geneva with the combined backing of France, Britain and Italy. Adoption was believed assured.

The three powers asked the League of Nations council to work out ways of halting similar treaty repudiation.

German circles at the league seat quickly suggested the strong tone of the resolution might make still more difficult the task of getting Germany into collective security systems, while Polish, Danish and Spanish representatives indicated dissatisfaction or nonagreement with parts of the resolution.

Czechoslovakia arrested some 20 persons in an alleged pro-German espionage plot, and parts of Poland, where anti-German sentiment flared into rioting over the week-end, continued tense.

Great Britain launched an elaborate program to protect Britain's 45,000,000 people against aerial attack.

Soviet political writers expressed the opinion that the firm stand against German rearmament was bringing her to terms.

Copyright, 1935, by the United Press.

Geneva, April 16.—Adoption by the League of Nations Council of a strongly worded resolution condemning Germany for repudiating military clauses in the Versailles Treaty—tonight was believed assured.

The big powers in western Europe—Britain, France and Italy—rode rough-shod over indignant opposition of Denmark and Poland and forced upon the extraordinary session of the council the resolution on which action will be taken tomorrow. Its adoption, with Denmark and Poland abstaining, seemed certain.

France obtained the firm support of her former allies after it became apparent Denmark and Poland were attempting to block passage of any anti-German resolution.

The small nations held an affront to Germany would blast hope of inducing her to return to Geneva.

Want Teeth in Covenant.

The French presented a four-point resolution condemning Germany by name, and demanding a committee to put "teeth" in the league covenant so future violations

Continued on Page 6, Column 5.

Ingalls Forced Down by Dust

Aviatrix Effort to Better
Cross-Country Record
Ends in Colorado.

By the Associated Press.

Alamosa, Colo., April 18.—Dust clouds frustrated an attempt of diminutive Laura Ingalls to set a new transcontinental speed record for women on a flight from Los Angeles to New York today.

Lost in the haze, she was forced to land her black "mystery" monoplane at this small farming and ranching town in the San Luis valley of Southern Colorado at 5 p. m. (7 p. m. Eastern Standard Time).

"The motor was not functioning properly," she told airport attendants.

Miss Ingalls, in the air almost 11 hours, covered only about one-fourth of the 2,447-mile flight on which Miss Amelia Earhart holds the current women's record of 17 hours, 7 minutes and 40 seconds. She took off from Los Angeles at 8:10 a. m. Pacific Time (8:10 a. m. E. S. T.).

Alamosa lies in a valley between the San Juan range of the continental divide and the Frontal range of the Rockies, west of Walsenburg, Colo.

"I believe I was somewhere near Amarillo, Tex.," Miss Ingalls said, "when I encountered the storm. I climbed about 23,000 feet, attempting to avoid it but could not get above it."

Unable to get over the dust storm, the aviatrix said, she turned northward. When she saw the Sangre de Cristo Mountains she decided that there was no chance to complete her flight and began to hunt a place to land.

"It's all in the game," smiled Miss Ingalls.

She went to the telephone office to notify friends of her safe landing.

Super-Trade Group Is Formed To Represent Retailers Here

By the Associated Press.

New York, April 18.—A super-trade association, the American Retail Federation, was formed today as a project to unify and promote the business of more than 1,000,000 retail firms throughout the United States.

Col. Clarence O. Sherrill, first city manager of Cincinnati, will head the organization and represent it in Washington, where the federation's headquarters will be established Monday.

An executive committee drafted the organization plan. They are Kirslein, chairman; George M. Gales, Liggett Drug Co., New York; C. W. Kress, S. H. Kress & Co., New York; Fred Lazarus Jr. & Co., New York; Columbus Ohio; Albert H. Morrill, Kroger Grocery & Baking Co., Cincinnati; Samuel Robinson, American Stores, Philadelphia; Lessing Rosenthal, Sears, Roebuck & Co., Chicago; E. C. Sams, J. C. Penney & Co., New York; Percy S. Strauss, H. H. Macy & Co., New York; and Tily.

The backbone of the federation is expected to be the 13 national retail associations represented by the Retailers' National Council, headed by Herbert J. Tily, president of Strawbridge & Clothier, of Philadelphia.

"The little fellows will control the American Retail Federation and present a unified voice in defense of their businesses," said Kirslein.

"Washington hasn't realized this industry, which is the third largest in America, has existed and nobody has been able in the past to talk for the distribution industry. In many things we never even were consulted."

Continued on Page 5, Column 6.

Dixie Senators' Attack Delays Anti-Lynch Bill

Smith, of S. C., Cites Need of Extreme Measures for Protection.

A move to call up the Cestigan anti-lynching bill in the Senate yesterday provoked a wave of resentment from Southern Senators, whose stormy protest was declared "only the interlude" of the fight to come.

Consideration of the bill was postponed. Arms waving, mustache bristling, Senator Ellison D. Smith, of South Carolina, expounded what he called "the very humiliating necessity of going outside of the law at times to protect the sanctity of our freeds and the virtue of our women."

Senator Walter F. George, of Georgia, suave, soft-spoken, and a former judge, declared "the whole scheme is unconstitutional," asserting that "this deplorable offense against society probably would be better handled by the States themselves."

Another Hearing Promised.
Senate Majority Leader Joseph T. Robinson, promised sponsors of the bill will have other opportunities to attempt to call it up. He introduced amendments, curbing the scope of the Cestigan measure and relieving counties of liability for damages in cases of lynching.

The hurry broke out when Senator Edward P. Costigan, liberal Colorado Democrat, sought consideration of his bill. He introduced Federal penalties on State or local officers who fail or refuse to protect prisoners from riotous mobs, making local communities themselves subject to damages.

McNary Backs Bill.
Senator Costigan was supported in his efforts to force action on his bill by Senate Minority Leader Charles L. McNary. The Coloradoan insisted his measure was not directed at the South, or to any particular State in the South. It was traceable, he said, to the lynchings of two white men in California, in the fall of 1933.

Senator Smith charged the bill was an "open reflection" on Southern States. "Senators should not hurry to reflect on the glorious history and traditions of the section to which I belong, beleaguered by influences and forces with which most Senators have not been familiar and with which they have not had to reckon," Smith shouted.

"We went through one bloody war through a misapprehension of the social structure of the country, but with a keen apprehension of the financial and industrial differences. I am sure that certain of my colleagues will agree with me that the intent is to enact a Federal law which will penalize them when there has been an act beyond the law and met by forces which no law can control. Certain acts committed are beyond the reach of any court or jury in the opinion of any right-minded men or women."

Senator Smith said the bill was tantamount to saying "our section is without law and is barbarous," and that such a move "comes with ill grace from any State which does not know the horrors of the problem."

"There have been mistakes made; yes, but we in our sovereign capacity as States can grapple with the situation as honorable, upright, law-abiding men, and we do not invite the interference of those who know not the bitterness of the trials through which we have had to go."

Warning Sounded.
"Senators will find before this bill passes, if it ever does pass, that the section of the country which has had the problem to face and the humility to suffer, will be inveigled against by those who reckon not of the problems involved."

Senator Costigan pointed out that Senator Smith's State, South Carolina, has a law very similar to the proposed Federal statute.

Insisting that he was "no apologist for mob violence," and that the South as a section deplores lynching whenever it occurs, Senator George said, "those of us who believe as I believe that this measure is clearly beyond the scope of Federal power certainly have a right to be heard."

"If it were justified and authorized by the Constitution, we would have broken down every possible semblance of State sovereignty through the enactment of this kind of legislation, not because the South has a peculiar interest in this legislation, but because it has a just interest," George said.

The Georgian said that in the past he has "taken not only my life politically, but my life physically, in my hands to try to give full protection to men who were charged with crime and against whom mob violence was threatened."

Alibi Frees Ex-Convict 'Identified' in Holdup
John Hamrick proved he couldn't have been in two places at the same time yesterday and was freed of robbery charges by Police Court Judge Ralph Given.

Between You and Me

Another Boston Tea Party? Helping To Reclect McNary; Tearing Down The Capitol.

By Raymond Clapper

NORTHERN cotton goods manufacturers are working up a rebellion against the cotton processing tax that may turn into a modern Boston Tea Party. Some of them are talking about going to jail rather than pay the tax. It's Shays' Whisky Rebellion all over again.

The Administration, outwardly calm, is beginning to worry. It is making some headway in the words of the late Raymond Hitchcock, that Plymouth Rock had landed on the Pilgrims. One or two New Dealers think they may have to kiss Old Massachusetts good-by in the next election.

The complaint, in general, is that the processing tax keeps up costs and is responsible for the sharp increase in Japanese cotton goods imports.

In answer, some here are pointing to an apparent oversight by New England interests in framing the cotton textile schedules of the existing Hawley-Smoot tariff act, passed during the Hoover Administration.

This was discovered by an expert while studying the Japanese import figures for January. They showed that the Japanese textile imports amounting to $137,000, were confined to bleached goods—printed, colored or dyed. No unbleached came in. Searching for an explanation, this was found:

In raising the duties from the 1922 act, no increase was made in the minimum specific duty on bleached goods, printed, colored or dyed. So in time the Japanese began rolling in this class of goods on an average duty of 37 cents per pound, plus the compensating equivalent of the processing tax which averaged 5.5 cents per pound.

Had the minimum specific duty on this item been increased in proportion to other increases in the Hawley-Smoot act, as apparently was intended, the duty alone would have been 24 cents a pound instead of 37 cents.

There's a tip for some New England Representative who wants to make a hit back home. He can propose amendment of the tariff act to remedy this apparent oversight. The Administration might be glad to accept it in order to head off another Boston Tea Party.

One of the ironies of the Republican attack on AAA, being led now by Herbert Hoover in person, is that the Senate has voted to expand AAA by adding hope to the list of basic commodities and that this was done at the urging of the Republican leader, Senator McNary.

It is an attempt to overcome a hop-grower's headache induced by repeal. Hops do not appear in the Agriculture Department's list of major commodities. Only some 35,000 acres were grown in the country last year, hardly enough to cover one of the larger man-sized wheat farms out West.

But half of this is in Oregon, and Senator McNary, who always has supported AAA for Middle Western farmers, wants some of its benefits for Oregon hop raisers.

Anticipating prohibition repeal, hops farms were enlarged until enough are now raised to make 50 per cent more beer than Americans are drinking. Prices hit 33 cents a pound on the eve of repeal, but are now down at 8 to 12 cents—below what they were during the lean days of prohibition. The parity price is 29 cents.

If the Republican leader pulls his bill through the House, the Met at noon and recessed at 4:40 p. m. until noon today.

Passed and approved the House Wheeler-Eastman bill for motor bus and truck regulation.

Passed $1,386,000 Interior Department appropriation.

Senators George, of Georgia, and Smith, of South Carolina, Democratic, assailed Costigan anti-lynching bill.

Debated Bankhead bill to aid share-croppers and tenant farmers.

Met at noon and adjourned at 4:15 p. m.

Debated social security bill and heard Speaker Byrne appeal for better attendance.

Military Affairs Committee considered private bills.

Democratic Administration will step in to help his hope-growing constituents, and that will help the Republican Senator to be re-elected next year. So, merrily we roll along.

What happens today right in the middle of the D. A. R. convention? Why, the House Building and Grounds Committee is going to consider seriously tearing down the walls of the Capitol. They have disguised the proposal as a work-relief project to enlarge the east front and replace the historic sandstone exterior with marble. At a time when PWA funds are being used to restore historic shrines to their original appearance, it is proposed to give the age-mellowed Capitol a face-lifting treatment to make it look like a modern building.

The central wing, which is the target of the architectural vandalism, bears the imprint of the period of Washington and Jefferson, who approved the plans, and of Thornton, Bulfinch and Latrobe, the gifted fathers of American architecture.

The bill has passed the Senate. It is likely to go through the House, unless hearings today develop aggressive objections or unless the D. A. R. and the White House get together and oppose it.

Senate guides say that of the tourists who ask to have Senators pointed out to them 99 out of 100 want to see Huey Long. The other 95 Senators share the one tourist who doesn't want to see Huey.

Saying it with bricks: "The Emperor of Louisiana and his Longitude." — Secretary Ickes.

"Ickes can go slap-dam to hell." — Huey Long.

"What we need is a 'Share the Responsibility' movement." — Secretary Wallace.

"Laissez faire is economic seclusion." — Secretary Ickes.

"Stay on the job until your work is done." — Speaker Byrnes to the House.

"I am not going to crawl into the gentlemen's mind; I cannot do that." — Representative Stack of Pennsylvania.

"When are you going to stand up and say that you have in your system some of the blood of John C. Calhoun?" — Representative Jenkins, Ohio, to House Democrats.

After holding out against the New Deal for two years, thinking it might blow over, The Washington Post has surrendered—typographically.

The publisher has had to buy skinny headline linotype matrices to take care of the billions of dollars that figure in the New Deal news.

The Post's Old Deal headline type, of broad Tory girth, was designed to deal only in millions, thus:

$4,880,000

Since the works bill passed, billion-dollar type has been purchased. It looks like this:

$4,880,000,000

If Mr. Roosevelt throws one more digit at us, The Post will match the rubber money, dollar for dollar, with rubber type.

Later, at the Capitol, Senator Glass told of unsuccessful efforts to reach any agreement with Representative Henry B. Steagall, of Alabama, chairman of the House Banking Committee, on the legislation, and added:

"I have reason to believe that leaders of the House have induced the President to change his mind and to think that it would be better procedure, so far as the House is concerned, to proceed with the bill as a whole."

Leo T. Crowley, chairman of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, and Comptroller of the Currency J. F. T. Connor, will lead a procession of witnesses before the bank sub-committee Friday, as hearings open on the bank bill. Hearings will be thorough and protracted.

Clears Up Contradictions.
To newspapermen at the Capitol Senator Glass gave his version of repeated contacts with the White House on the proposed banking legislation in an effort to clear up seeming contradictions.

Contrasted with the earlier statement by Senator Fletcher, it left the President apparently taking a middle-of-the-road course and refusing to play favorites.

"Fantasy," said Glass, "after I was designated chairman of the sub-committee on banking and currency I went to the White House to ascertain what the President had in mind as to banking legislation for this season. I came away with the assurance that the only banking legislation that would be desirable at this season was a modification of the insurance deposit legislation of the existing law, to make the temporary limitation of $5,000 permanent."

Says Roosevelt Agreed.
"On March 4 I went to the White House on a different matter, but at the conclusion of this discussion"

APPLICANTS—NOTICE.
Review Practices Material. EDITORIAL AND STATISTICAL. An outline of review studies specially prepared for civil service applicants taking examinations for Statistical Clerks. Prepared by the head of the EDITORIAL DEPARTMENT of the Mount Pleasant School for Secretaries, who was formerly employed in the Executive Division of the Civil Service Commission. The outline includes 10 reviews of review studies and review material on Proofreading, Copying, Manuscript Preparation, Editing, News and Service, Abstracting and Indexing. This is not a correspondence or home study course. It is highly recommended as a review practice study. Price, $2.00.

STATISTICAL CLERK.
We are looking for an outline of review practice material which was specially prepared for civil service applicants taking examinations for Statistical Clerks. There are 32 pages of instructions and practice material on Statistical Clerks. Includes: Statistical, Weighing, Averaging, Indexing, and other material. This is not a correspondence or home study course. It is highly recommended as a review practice study. Price, $2.00.

For sale by: Lowdermilk & Co., 1415 P. St. N.W., Nat'l 0613. Fairman's Big Book, 627 P. St. N.W., Nat'l 5415. M. P. S. S. Office, Col. 3000. Tivoli Bldg., 14th St. and Park Rd.

TERMITES
(Flying Ants). Most of our job comes from friends and neighbors of those for whom we have done work. Guaranteed Treatment. TERMITES CONTROL CO. Nat'l Press Bldg., Nat'l 3711. "Ask Our Customers"

Glass to Do All He Can to Split Bank Proposals

Virginia Senator Indicates Satisfaction, Leaving White House.

By Robert C. Albright.

Senator Carter Glass, of Virginia, after a special White House visit yesterday, reiterated his determination to do all in his power to split the Administration's omnibus banking bill, despite repeated assertions that the President wants it kept intact.

Following a brief conference with the President, Senator Glass scheduled hearings before his banking sub-committee beginning Friday.

"The sub-committee of which I am chairman has not altered its judgment as to the desirability of separating titles 1 and 3 from title 2, and on this point will make its final decision at a suitable time," Glass told newspapermen.

Questions Fletcher Position.
Meanwhile, Senator Duncan U. Fletcher, of Florida, chairman of the Senate Banking Committee, again insisted President Roosevelt wants title 2, centralizing Federal Reserve Board control over credit and currency, kept in the bill.

Another Senate Administration spokesman supported this statement. Senator Glass went to the White House when Fletcher's statement sharply conflicted with assurances he had earlier that the only banking bill the President wanted was a modification of the deposit insurance law, to make the temporary $5,000 limitation on deposit insurance permanent.

Sought Reassurance.
"I wanted to ascertain whether I had correctly understood and correctly stated the President's attitude with respect to banking procedure for this session," said the Virginia Senator.

"I had heard a great many things to the contrary. I found that I had clearly understood and had accurately stated it."

He said, however, that House leaders had been instrumental in obtaining the President's approval of House passage of the bill as a whole.

Ecies Action Delayed.
Senator Glass left for the White House following a meeting of his banking sub-committee, which again delayed action on the nomination of Marriner S. Eccles as governor of the Federal Reserve Board.

The omnibus banking bill now pending before the sub-committee was sponsored by Eccles, who Monday was closely examined by the group on his qualifications for Reserve Board office, Glass, and some other members of the sub-committee are still said to be opposed to his confirmation.

Emerging all smiles from the President's office, Senator Glass said he had been a "personal talk" with the Chief Executive. Asked if the President had told him that the banking bill was an Administration measure, he replied, "He said he had never read a word of it."

Steagall Is Admired.
Later, at the Capitol, Senator Glass told of unsuccessful efforts to reach any agreement with Representative Henry B. Steagall, of Alabama, chairman of the House Banking Committee, on the legislation, and added:

"I have reason to believe that leaders of the House have induced the President to change his mind and to think that it would be better procedure, so far as the House is concerned, to proceed with the bill as a whole."

Leo T. Crowley, chairman of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, and Comptroller of the Currency J. F. T. Connor, will lead a procession of witnesses before the bank sub-committee Friday, as hearings open on the bank bill. Hearings will be thorough and protracted.

Clears Up Contradictions.
To newspapermen at the Capitol Senator Glass gave his version of repeated contacts with the White House on the proposed banking legislation in an effort to clear up seeming contradictions.

Contrasted with the earlier statement by Senator Fletcher, it left the President apparently taking a middle-of-the-road course and refusing to play favorites.

"Fantasy," said Glass, "after I was designated chairman of the sub-committee on banking and currency I went to the White House to ascertain what the President had in mind as to banking legislation for this season. I came away with the assurance that the only banking legislation that would be desirable at this season was a modification of the insurance deposit legislation of the existing law, to make the temporary limitation of $5,000 permanent."

Says Roosevelt Agreed.
"On March 4 I went to the White House on a different matter, but at the conclusion of this discussion"

APPLICANTS—NOTICE.
Review Practices Material. EDITORIAL AND STATISTICAL. An outline of review studies specially prepared for civil service applicants taking examinations for Statistical Clerks. Prepared by the head of the EDITORIAL DEPARTMENT of the Mount Pleasant School for Secretaries, who was formerly employed in the Executive Division of the Civil Service Commission. The outline includes 10 reviews of review studies and review material on Proofreading, Copying, Manuscript Preparation, Editing, News and Service, Abstracting and Indexing. This is not a correspondence or home study course. It is highly recommended as a review practice study. Price, $2.00.

STATISTICAL CLERK.
We are looking for an outline of review practice material which was specially prepared for civil service applicants taking examinations for Statistical Clerks. There are 32 pages of instructions and practice material on Statistical Clerks. Includes: Statistical, Weighing, Averaging, Indexing, and other material. This is not a correspondence or home study course. It is highly recommended as a review practice study. Price, $2.00.

For sale by: Lowdermilk & Co., 1415 P. St. N.W., Nat'l 0613. Fairman's Big Book, 627 P. St. N.W., Nat'l 5415. M. P. S. S. Office, Col. 3000. Tivoli Bldg., 14th St. and Park Rd.

TERMITES
(Flying Ants). Most of our job comes from friends and neighbors of those for whom we have done work. Guaranteed Treatment. TERMITES CONTROL CO. Nat'l Press Bldg., Nat'l 3711. "Ask Our Customers"

Gov. Graves Calls on President

Former Gov. J. C. Beckham, left, and Elwood Hamilton, of Kentucky, shown with Gov. Bibb Graves of Alabama, as they called at White House for a work relief conference with the President.

Minister rural rehabilitation, including the forthcoming campaign against dust storm results in the West.

Mr. Roosevelt's desire to take his own time before setting up the central organization has produced some uncertainty among his subordinates. It is indicated. One explanation given for the delay is that rival plans have been presented by Ickes and the Tugwell-Hopkins faction, and that the President is moving slowly not to offend either group.

Meantime, plans for putting thousands of men to work on such projects as soil erosion control, grade crossing elimination and low-cost housing are going forward on a down front.

The new soil erosion unit of the Department of Agriculture is preparing to swing into action in a great drive against the dust storm.

Easter Cantata Scheduled.
An Easter cantata entitled "The Victory of Life," with a cast of 30 young persons under direction of Mrs. Frank I. Davis, will be presented Easter Monday at 8 p. m. in St. Peter's Episcopal Church, Poolsville, Md.

Hickey-Freeman
CUSTOMIZED CLOTHES

EASTERTIME
At Eastertime our blue unfinished worsted suits, customized by Hickey-Freeman, will make you look your best as you join the festive parade. Choose from single or double breasted models.

Goldheim's
Apparel for Gentlemen... Established 1873
1409 H Street N.W. National 1409

Banking Committee Makes Up Its Mind
By the Associated Press.
The House Banking Committee took more time off yesterday from its work on the important omnibus banking bill to settle the mighty question of whether it should meet in the new House Office Building or the Capitol.

After more than a year of preliminary discussion, after hours of debate in secret sessions, after a special sub-committee had been named to decide the full committee finally voted yesterday to move to the new office building.

Leaders Uneasy At White House Works Silence
Roosevelt Talks Secretly With Both Ickes and Hopkins.

President Roosevelt held long and separate conferences late yesterday with Harry L. Hopkins, relief administrator, and Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes, presumably in an effort to clear up final details before he announces plans for administering the $4,880,000,000 works fund.

No inkling of what they discussed was permitted to become public, however. In one quarter it was said that until their interviews with the President neither Hopkins nor Ickes had been fully apprised of his intentions. This reticence has given rise to some uneasiness in official circles.

Mr. Roosevelt is now believed to be approaching a decision, however, since he has conferred with almost all those who will help him administer the fund. He announced, soon after his return from Florida last week, that he would hold these conferences before setting up the works machinery.

Allotment Board Proposed.
Tentative plans have called for the creation of an "allotment board," composed of the heads of the agencies which will dispense the fund. Hopkins is still looked upon as the most important member of this board, second only to the President, while others will include Ickes and Rexford Guy Tugwell, Undersecretary of Agriculture.

Indications have been that Hopkins will supervise the gradual transition from direct relief to work relief, that Ickes will continue to handle PWA projects and low-cost housing, and that Tugwell will administer rural rehabilitation, including the forthcoming campaign against dust storm results in the West.

Mr. Roosevelt's desire to take his own time before setting up the central organization has produced some uncertainty among his subordinates. It is indicated. One explanation given for the delay is that rival plans have been presented by Ickes and the Tugwell-Hopkins faction, and that the President is moving slowly not to offend either group.

Meantime, plans for putting thousands of men to work on such projects as soil erosion control, grade crossing elimination and low-cost housing are going forward on a down front.

The new soil erosion unit of the Department of Agriculture is preparing to swing into action in a great drive against the dust storm.

Easter Cantata Scheduled.
An Easter cantata entitled "The Victory of Life," with a cast of 30 young persons under direction of Mrs. Frank I. Davis, will be presented Easter Monday at 8 p. m. in St. Peter's Episcopal Church, Poolsville, Md.

Hickey-Freeman
CUSTOMIZED CLOTHES

EASTERTIME
At Eastertime our blue unfinished worsted suits, customized by Hickey-Freeman, will make you look your best as you join the festive parade. Choose from single or double breasted models.

Goldheim's
Apparel for Gentlemen... Established 1873
1409 H Street N.W. National 1409

Banking Committee Makes Up Its Mind
By the Associated Press.
The House Banking Committee took more time off yesterday from its work on the important omnibus banking bill to settle the mighty question of whether it should meet in the new House Office Building or the Capitol.

After more than a year of preliminary discussion, after hours of debate in secret sessions, after a special sub-committee had been named to decide the full committee finally voted yesterday to move to the new office building.

Leaders Uneasy At White House Works Silence
Roosevelt Talks Secretly With Both Ickes and Hopkins.

President Roosevelt held long and separate conferences late yesterday with Harry L. Hopkins, relief administrator, and Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes, presumably in an effort to clear up final details before he announces plans for administering the $4,880,000,000 works fund.

No inkling of what they discussed was permitted to become public, however. In one quarter it was said that until their interviews with the President neither Hopkins nor Ickes had been fully apprised of his intentions. This reticence has given rise to some uneasiness in official circles.

Mr. Roosevelt is now believed to be approaching a decision, however, since he has conferred with almost all those who will help him administer the fund. He announced, soon after his return from Florida last week, that he would hold these conferences before setting up the works machinery.

Allotment Board Proposed.
Tentative plans have called for the creation of an "allotment board," composed of the heads of the agencies which will dispense the fund. Hopkins is still looked upon as the most important member of this board, second only to the President, while others will include Ickes and Rexford Guy Tugwell, Undersecretary of Agriculture.

Indications have been that Hopkins will supervise the gradual transition from direct relief to work relief, that Ickes will continue to handle PWA projects and low-cost housing, and that Tugwell will administer rural rehabilitation, including the forthcoming campaign against dust storm results in the West.

Mr. Roosevelt's desire to take his own time before setting up the central organization has produced some uncertainty among his subordinates. It is indicated. One explanation given for the delay is that rival plans have been presented by Ickes and the Tugwell-Hopkins faction, and that the President is moving slowly not to offend either group.

Meantime, plans for putting thousands of men to work on such projects as soil erosion control, grade crossing elimination and low-cost housing are going forward on a down front.

The new soil erosion unit of the Department of Agriculture is preparing to swing into action in a great drive against the dust storm.

Easter Cantata Scheduled.
An Easter cantata entitled "The Victory of Life," with a cast of 30 young persons under direction of Mrs. Frank I. Davis, will be presented Easter Monday at 8 p. m. in St. Peter's Episcopal Church, Poolsville, Md.

Hickey-Freeman
CUSTOMIZED CLOTHES

minister rural rehabilitation, including the forthcoming campaign against dust storm results in the West.

Mr. Roosevelt's desire to take his own time before setting up the central organization has produced some uncertainty among his subordinates. It is indicated. One explanation given for the delay is that rival plans have been presented by Ickes and the Tugwell-Hopkins faction, and that the President is moving slowly not to offend either group.

Meantime, plans for putting thousands of men to work on such projects as soil erosion control, grade crossing elimination and low-cost housing are going forward on a down front.

The new soil erosion unit of the Department of Agriculture is preparing to swing into action in a great drive against the dust storm.

Easter Cantata Scheduled.
An Easter cantata entitled "The Victory of Life," with a cast of 30 young persons under direction of Mrs. Frank I. Davis, will be presented Easter Monday at 8 p. m. in St. Peter's Episcopal Church, Poolsville, Md.

Hickey-Freeman
CUSTOMIZED CLOTHES

EASTERTIME
At Eastertime our blue unfinished worsted suits, customized by Hickey-Freeman, will make you look your best as you join the festive parade. Choose from single or double breasted models.

Goldheim's
Apparel for Gentlemen... Established 1873
1409 H Street N.W. National 1409

Banking Committee Makes Up Its Mind
By the Associated Press.
The House Banking Committee took more time off yesterday from its work on the important omnibus banking bill to settle the mighty question of whether it should meet in the new House Office Building or the Capitol.

After more than a year of preliminary discussion, after hours of debate in secret sessions, after a special sub-committee had been named to decide the full committee finally voted yesterday to move to the new office building.

Leaders Uneasy At White House Works Silence
Roosevelt Talks Secretly With Both Ickes and Hopkins.

President Roosevelt held long and separate conferences late yesterday with Harry L. Hopkins, relief administrator, and Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes, presumably in an effort to clear up final details before he announces plans for administering the $4,880,000,000 works fund.

No inkling of what they discussed was permitted to become public, however. In one quarter it was said that until their interviews with the President neither Hopkins nor Ickes had been fully apprised of his intentions. This reticence has given rise to some uneasiness in official circles.

Mr. Roosevelt is now believed to be approaching a decision, however, since he has conferred with almost all those who will help him administer the fund. He announced, soon after his return from Florida last week, that he would hold these conferences before setting up the works machinery.

Allotment Board Proposed.
Tentative plans have called for the creation of an "allotment board," composed of the heads of the agencies which will dispense the fund. Hopkins is still looked upon as the most important member of this board, second only to the President, while others will include Ickes and Rexford Guy Tugwell, Undersecretary of Agriculture.

Indications have been that Hopkins will supervise the gradual transition from direct relief to work relief, that Ickes will continue to handle PWA projects and low-cost housing, and that Tugwell will administer rural rehabilitation, including the forthcoming campaign against dust storm results in the West.

SEC Sets Rules Drawn to Stop Stock 'Rigging'

Exchanges Asked to Adopt Regulations; Force Threatened.

The Securities and Exchange Commission yesterday called on all stock exchanges in the country to adopt a sweeping series of rules designed to prevent excessive trading by brokers and price manipulation.

The SEC promulgated recommendations for 16 rules restricting transactions by floor traders for their own account and "requested" that exchanges adopt these regulations. In event the exchanges fail to adopt the proposed rules or similar ones, the commission will order their adoption. The exchanges have been given some discretion in interpreting recommendations of the SEC.

The SEC also made public its first monthly summary of stock transactions and holdings required to be reported by officers, directors and principal stockholders to the commission under the so-called "Wiggin provision" of the 1934 stock market control act. The provision was designed to require so-called "insiders" to report monthly any transactions in stocks of their companies.

Rockefeller Gift Bared.
The most interesting fact revealed by this summary was that John D. Rockefeller, Jr., last month made a gift of 85,000 shares of oil stock to the Socony Vacuum Oil Co. to unidentified person or persons. No other details of the gift, which represented securities with an estimated value of $1,150,000 were revealed.

After this gift Rockefeller still owned 3,000,870 shares of the company's capital stock with a value of approximately $88,000,000, computed on current market prices.

In promulgating recommendations for floor-trading rules, with the request that the exchanges adopt them, the SEC believed this course would allow a greater flexibility of administration to attend these rules—4 desirable attributes inasmuch as these rules must still be regarded to a large degree as experimental. It was explained in an accompanying statement.

Exchanges to Enforce.
Furthermore, minor adaptation of the rules to the varying exigencies of the many exchanges can also be readily accomplished by this method," the statement continued. "The enforcement of these rules will thus lie with the exchanges, the commission, however, being able to observe both their enforcement and effect."

The rules in general would prohibit excessive trading by members of stock exchanges, their firms and officers for their own account, excessive trading in view of the needs of the sales and purchases on the market or in view of the financial resources of the member, firm or partner.

A member who acts as a specialist would be restricted in dealings for his own account in the security in which he specializes to those reasonably necessary to maintain a fair and orderly market. Joint accounts of members are prohibited, with a requirement forbidding a specialist to participate except under limited conditions in a joint account for trading in the security in which he specializes.

Excessive Trading Banned.
Brokers holding customers' unexecuted orders or limited price orders would be prohibited from competing with the customer by trading for their own accounts. A member handling a customer's discretionary account would be forbidden to execute purchases or sales for such accounts which are excessive in size or frequency in view of financial resources in the account—an effort to discourage trading for discretionary accounts primarily inspired by a broker's desire to increase his commissions.

Another rule would prohibit members, firms and partners from making purchases at successively higher prices or sales at successively lower prices for the purpose of creating a misleading appearance of activity or unduly influencing the market price or making a price which does not reflect the true state of the market in the security. This provision was designed "to prevent actions unfairly influencing the prices of securities," the S. E. C. explained.

S. E. C. Agents on Floors.
Under another rule a member while on the floor may not initiate purchase or sale for his own account or for that of his firm or partner or any security in which he or the firm or partner holds or has granted any put, call, straddle or option. Specialists are barred from holding or granting any put, call, straddle or option in any stock in which they specialize.

A uniform short selling rule is proposed which would forbid a member to use any facility of the exchange to effect on the exchange a short sale of any security at a price below the last sale price of such security on that exchange.

Joseph P. Kennedy, chairman of the S. E. C., said it was probable that after the exchanges adopt these rules the commission will place agents on the floors of the exchanges to ascertain whether regulations are violated.

Unofficially it was explained that purpose of the new rules was to equalize the opportunity of the investor outside of the exchange with that of the member inside, so that the investor can have his order executed without undue competition, market rigging against him and other manipulative practices.

Snow Gives Winter's Parting Blast to Nation

Washington had just a flurry—but Cleveland, as this picture taken in the public square shows—had what appears to be a blizzard. And so it was the opening day of the baseball season—almost.

Merchants and Artists Can Join To Aid Art, Says Mrs. Meyer

Washington Independent Exhibit Example of Combining Commercialism With Contemporary Movement, Advertising Club Told.

Hand in hand, the merchant and the artist can advance the contemporary art movement in America to broader, more democratic heights than it has ever reached, Mrs. Eugene Meyer, chairman of the board of directors of the Greater Washington Independent Art Exhibit, told members of the Advertising Club yesterday noon.

In fact it is to the end of combining the forces of commercialism and art that the first annual Washington exhibit, sponsored by The Washington Post and the District Federation of Women's Clubs, has been staged, she informed the advertisers at their luncheon in the National Press Club auditorium. "The Merchant as Art Dealer" was Mrs. Meyer's topic.

The exhibit, in which there are more than 1,700 paintings, will go on display in nine downtown department stores next Monday. Galleries, prepared by the several stores, will be open to the public. The advertising field already is exerting a strong influence and is bound to have an ever-increasing influence on the future of American art," Mrs. Meyer said as she was introduced to the club by Norman Kai, its president.

Art Called History's Mirror.
The advertising medium, she explained, is the one most able to acquaint the public with works of art, and with their function in reflecting "the civilization of which they are a part."

"The arts may be compared to one of those mirrors which bring a big scene into a small and concentrated focus," Mrs. Meyer said, "but in any art worthy of the name the moral and spiritual aspects of a given period are mirrored as well as the physical exterior."

"That is why it is easier to understand history by studying the art products of a given epoch than by reading all the learned documents on the same subject that may exist. What better clue is there to the difference between the Greek and the Roman mentality than can be sensed from the different kinds of sculpture which they produced? How distinctly the Middle Ages rise before us if we think of the Gothic cathedrals, the paintings and statues which adorned them, reflecting as they did, not only the religious aspirations of the period, but the dawn of modern commercial rivalry which made the prosperous citizens of Amiens feel that they were eternally disgraced if their Madonna or a statue less beautiful than those of Rheims of Paris."

"In those centuries of a firmly outlined social structure it is easy to prove that the artist was the servant of the established order and spent his genius on celebrating the fame and position of his masters, the temporary rulers including the dominant classes that surrounded them. Usually an art object was created for a definite reason, in a definite style and for a definite place. The style which dominated the artist was just as prescribed as the structure of the society which he celebrated; and so powerful were the traditions of art, so inescapable, that we finally have a paradox of a Voltaire preaching revolution in the most classical prose and verse."

Collector Enters Scene.

"In return for his complete subservience to the economic and social order, the artist was given security and an opportunity to develop his talents to their full extent from his earliest youth under the tutelage of a master and the encouragement of some aristocratic patron. Reports of struggle and hardship among artists were comparatively rare, and cases of unrecognized genius begin to multiply only in the nineteenth century, when the social structure was more uncertain and the relationship between the artist and his public had already weakened."

"Then it was that the struggle of the individual artists for recognition began to be a tragic and solitary battle, but even then the court and the nobility were replaced by the wealthy collector and the dealer."

Wealthy Frenchmen, Englishmen, and Americans became the support of art, but for reasons of social advancement rather than of progress of art, Mrs. Meyer pointed out. Millions of dollars were poured into the art world, but the result was a clearly recognizable halo of distinction.

men have contributed prizes for the best work and have promised to attend the exhibition, and The Washington Post has undertaken to explain the significance of the whole movement to the general public. In addition, the whole-hearted cooperation of the artists was obtained by Duncan Phillips, as chairman of a committee which includes the presidents of the various art clubs."

The speaker anticipated the day when merchants will apply the same businesslike methods to selling objects of art that he does to other goods in his store.

Thanks Merchants.

"Let me express a deep felt appreciation of the immediate response which we received from the merchants of Washington and the members of their various staffs. They needed no persuasion in order to take up the plan. They at once volunteered the purchase of one painting at $100 to be selected by the arts committee."

"Neither they nor we expected that 1,700 entries would be made and yet each shop has accepted the responsibility for its large quota with eagerness and with the determination to show the paintings advantageously. Many are doing over their galleries completely for this purpose and the generous, public-spirited, and progressive attitude which they have shown toward this social experiment is something of which Washington may well be proud. Personally, I have never found a group of citizens with whom it has been more of a challenge and an inspiration to work, and I am glad of an opportunity to thank them publicly for making this idea a reality."

"Although we are beginning this exhibition with the usual number of prizes and purchase awards, next year we hope to give up these methods."

"The aristocratic patron went with the French Revolution, and our contemporary evolution is eliminating the rich collector upon whom the big art dealer was a parasitic growth. Not only has he lost the last vestige of economic security, but he is also the victim of a deep spiritual insecurity as he no longer feels himself a part of a definite social pattern and is obliged instead to contend with a society that is in constant flux," she said.

"For, the American artist must ask himself why he should create sculpture or painting for a people who seem to be spending much of their time in a fever of a moving van to alight momentarily in a three-room flat. The Tartars never produced great art and assuredly we are the nearest modern approach to that nomadic race."

"Deprived of the aristocratic market he once had, the artist must look to people of a lower economic scale for his outlet, the speaker declared. He must present his work to those who never set foot in elaborate palaces, and who do not seek out the modest galleries."

"What could be sounder, therefore, what more promising for the future of art in America, if the merchant and the artist of each community can be introduced to each other to their mutual advantage?" Mrs. Meyer asked.

"There is the reason why the first Annual Art Exhibition in Washington is being arranged at the department stores instead of the usual art galleries. To launch the new venture and insure its initial success, we have assembled the leading forces of any typical American community. The Federation of Women's Clubs under Mrs. Samuel Swiggett's leadership will put its large membership into every shop as saleswomen and as appreciative visitors."

"Mrs. Roosevelt has graciously consented to be our chief patron. Our leading citizens and business

Repair . . . Remodel
See J. Frank Kelly, Inc., for LUMBER—MILLWORK PORCH ENCLOSURES FENCING—ROOFING HARDWARE—PAINT
Phone us and we'll send out an expert to estimate on what you need. We'll also handle all the planning, in connection with the S. E. C. for Free Advice, Sept.

Call MR. JACK, at J. FRANK KELLY
Lumber & Millwork
2121 N. 13th St.
N. O. 1341

ods and arrive at a basis of frank commercialism, whereby the merchant will help to sell his art objects as he does anything else for an established commission or reasonable profit.

"Some dreamers have expressed to me their fears that art may be commercialized, as they put it, by such methods. If so, I insist that that could happen to art and a desirable contrast to all the snobbish patronage or the artificial boosting which it has endured in the past."

Sees Greater Exhibit in '36.

"In our exhibition we shall mark the price of each object where it can easily be seen, in order that the shy new purchaser will not be put off by the fear of making elaborate inquiries. When people furnish a new home it should be and will be as easy for them to buy good etchings, sculpture or paintings as to buy a good icebox or a good mattress."

Mrs. Meyer said many features will be added when the second annual Greater Washington Independent Exhibit is presented in 1936. She promised the products of craftsmanship will be added to those of the fine arts. Important loan exhibits will be arranged, and a display of children's work will be assembled.

"I hope that you who are concerned with the advertising profession will make a special effort to study the abilities of our local artists, for the Washington public will be grateful, even though that gratitude may remain unexpressed, for any glimpse of beauty which you bring to them through the medium of the local advertising field. Your responsibility toward the city in this respect is enormous, for you who realize commercially how carefully your product is studied, will also appreciate that it represents the chief, and at times the only, artistic influence to which a vast number of our citizens is exposed."

"By supplying the artist with a permanent market, by developing through these exhibitions at our department stores a whole new public, by making art constantly and easily accessible to the man in the street, we may well be laying the basis for that art which will some day express the significance of a new, and, let us hope, a more tranquil society."

Cold Routs Spring In East; Snow Here

Continued from Page 1.

From western edges of Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas east a haze in the air over Bismarck, N. Dak., more than 600 miles away.

Storm caught Gov. Alf M. Landon and Assistant Secretary of Agriculture M. L. Wagon between Colby and Garden City in Kansas where they were driving to a five-State regional conference of erosion control. With them were soil erosion authorities from Washington and the Kansas State Agricultural College.

Eastern Colorado was suffering from one of the thickest storms of the year. Visibility was down to zero at Dodge City and at Goodland in Kansas. Thick dust was reported between Big Springs, North Platte and Valentine in Nebraska. South Dakota points had lighter dust.

The Oklahoma and Texas panhandle counties were into their fourth week of almost continuous dust, although tonight's storm was not as bad as previous blows. Amarillo, Tex., had one-mile visibility.

Choose FLORSHEIM SHOES for Easter!

They'll cost you less by the year!

Well-dressed men wear Florsheim Shoes because they know fine footwear . . . and they know too that Florsheim quality insures long and satisfactory wear. This Easter make your selection from our great assortment of this famous footwear . . . and rest secure in the knowledge that your shoes will cost you less per day of wear.

Most Styles $8.75

SOX, 50c & $1
New Spring patterns and colors. Silks for dress. Lisle for business.

Hahn

Men's Shops
14th & G Sts.
7th & K Sts.
3212 14th St.

*Open Nights.

Ochs' Will Gives Times' Control To 3 Relatives

Residuary Estate Will Be Divided Between His Daughter, Widow.

By the Associated Press.

New York, April 16.—The will of Adolph S. Ochs, made public tonight, leaves control of the New York Times to three relatives and directs that the publisher's residuary estate be divided between his widow and daughter.

The controlling interest in the newspaper passes to Julius Ochs Adler, nephew; Mrs. Iphigene Ochs Sulzberger, daughter, and Arthur Hays Sulzberger, son-in-law.

After making numerous outright bequests to universities, relatives, employees and others, Mr. Ochs directed that the income from the rest of his estate be divided between Mrs. Sulzberger, his daughter, and Mrs. Effie Wise Ochs, his widow.

The will, filed for probate in the Westchester County Surrogate's Court at White Plains, made no estimate of the value of the estate.

As executor and trustee, the nephew, who also receives an indeterminate legacy of stock, the daughter and son-in-law are empowered to carry on the publication of the New York Times without restriction.

Confidence Expressed.

Mr. Ochs expressed confidence that they would, "without any recommendations or suggestions from me," exercise their control to perpetuate the New York Times as an institution charged with a high public duty, and that they will carry forward and render completely effective my endeavor to maintain the New York Times as an independent newspaper, entirely fearless, free of ulterior influence, and unselfishly devoted to the public welfare without regard to individual advantage or ambition, the claims of party politics or the voice of religious or personal prejudice or predilection."

He expressed the same thought with respect to the Chattanooga (Tenn.) Times, which becomes part of his residuary estate.

He said it was his hope that the Chattanooga Times, which is under the general management of A. Shelby Ochs, a nephew, would "continue to be conducted as it has been under my ownership and control for more than 50 years."

Will Dated January 7, 1935.

The will, dated January 7, 1935, and approximately 6,000 words long, bequeathed 500 shares of New York Times Co. stock to A. Shelby Ochs. Bequests of 250 shares of preferred stock, with a par value of $25,000, were made to each of the following institutions: Yale, Columbia, Chattanooga and New York Universities; Dartmouth College; the Lincoln Memorial University of Cumberland Gap, Tenn.; and the "One Hundred Neediest Cases" fund of the New York Times, a charity enterprise.

Post Hops Off Today.
Lafayette, Ind., April 16 (AP)—Wiley Post, stratospheric flier, said today he expects to hop off for Bartlesville, Okla., early tomorrow, making a stop at St. Louis en route.

Scaffold View Pacifies Jury Upset by Fight on Execution

Foreman at Inquest After Hanging Defies British Tradition; Disturbed by Mrs. Vanderelst's Campaign on Capital Punishment.

By the Associated Press.

London, April 16.—Demonstrations against capital punishment led by the wealthy Mrs. Violet Vanderelst were followed today by unprecedented scenes at Wandsworth jail where Percy Anderson was hanged for the murder of Miss Edith Bear.

At the formal inquest after the execution, the jury demanded to be shown the scaffold, the foreman saying that for all he knew Anderson may have fallen and broken his neck. The jurymen wanted to ask witnesses whether death actually occurred by hanging.

The coroner said that Sir Bernard Spillbury, pathologist, had examined the body and would give evidence. The foreman was insistent. He said Sir Bernard had not seen the man hanged.

The piquet governor said the scaffold could not be viewed without an order from the home office, but the jury insisted.

"I have never known a thing like this to happen," said the Governor. "It is entirely unprecedented."

The coroner then expressed the opinion the jury could insist upon seeing the death instrument. The jury filed out to look at the scaffold, returned satisfied and gave the verdict of judicial execution.

Mrs. Vanderelst, in a big automobile, frustrated guards who attempted to stay her passage over roads leading to the prison gate. When she arrived there she was told she would be summoned for assaulting a constable who had been flung from the runningboard of her car as she raced through the cordon of guards.

Her supporters were turned back some distance from the jail. Several airplanes Mrs. Vanderelst had hired to aid in the demonstration against capital punishment were grounded by bad weather.

Mrs. Vanderelst organized demonstrations coincident with previous British hangings.

Class Plans Easter Party.
The ninth grade of the Takoma-Silver Spring High School, Silver Spring, Md., will hold an Easter party in the school auditorium tonight. Miss May Louise Wood, of the faculty, is in charge of arrangements. The evening will be spent in dancing, games and music.

Easter Accessories

The Trustworthy kind . . . all KNOWN names . . . insuring authentic fashion, fine quality and the utmost in value.

"FIFTH AVENUE" by KNOX

FOR Easter Day KNOX presents the accredited fashions of the Spring—in "ovalized sixteenths." Shades to bring out the new suits. And the ever present Knox quality and value. The 5th Ave. picture is $7.

Other Knox Hats $5 to $20

SHIRT by "MANHATTAN"

MANHATTAN enters into Easter of 1935 with a colorful array of fine new shirts to carry out the effects in new Easter attire. Smart new designs and color combinations. The Manhattan shirt pictured is $2.50.

Other Manhattan Shirts $1.95 to $3.50

"FEATHERWEIGHTS" by HANAN

FINE leathers, smart new styles and only the very finest in workmanship is the Easter message of Hanan shoes. These are the choice of men everywhere who know fine shoes. The Featherweights sketched are $10.50.

Other Hanan Shoes to $12.50

CHARGE ACCOUNTS INVITED

RALEIGH HABERDASHER

WASHINGTON'S FINEST MEN'S WEAR STORE—1319 F STREET

To New Attack Hull Provoked Upon Lobbyists

Letters From Maine Pupils on Potato Tariff Prompts A Outburst.

By Franklin Waltman, Jr.

For the second time in recent weeks Secretary of State Cordell Hull yesterday flayed high-tariff lobbyists for spreading propaganda consisting of false statements designed to arouse hostility to the Administration's reciprocal trade program.

The occasion was the receipt of a large number of letters by the White House, many of them written by Maine school children in identical language, protesting against any reduction in the duty on potatoes in connection with a trade agreement with Canada, now being negotiated.

Denying that any reduction in the potato tariff was contemplated, the State Department in a formal statement contended that these protests were inspired by "propagandists of high protection who are not so much distressed over the condition of the producers as they are desirous of furthering their own selfish interests and hampering the whole trade-agreement program, by arousing fears that have no basis in reality."

Calls Statements False.
"It would appear," the statement continued, "that these tariff lobbyists, or ex-lobbyists, interested in maintaining in positions in Washington, or regaining their public offices, have generated these fears by circulating rumors and false statements designed to befuddle and mislead the farmers and others whose interests they profess to safeguard."

Not only is the Administration fully aware of the distressed conditions in the potato-growing section of Maine and other stricken agricultural regions, but through the reciprocal trade program it is seeking to find foreign markets for these farm surpluses, it was contended.

In the first trade agreement negotiated with Cuba, the statement explained, American potato growers were benefited. As a result, in the last four months of 1934, when the trade treaty was in effect, Cuba imported from the United States 30,727,000 pounds of potatoes, or twice the amount imported during the same months of 1932 and 1933 averaged. Moreover, these shipments were almost twice the annual potato shipments to Cuba for the entire year of 1932 and 1933.

Form Protests, U. S. Charges.
The State Department statement explained that the numerous letters received protesting against reducing the potato tariff "are obviously the result of organized and directed propaganda," a conclusion said to be supported by the fact that the wording of the large proportion of the letters corresponded exactly with four or five set forms.

"Many of the letters to the President have been written by school children whose views could not possibly be founded upon an adequate understanding of tariff questions," it was pointed out. "The letters from many school children are identical, as if they had been copied from the blackboard. Scores of other letters are carbon copies of a standardized wording, indicating a common source and not original authorship."

The assumption on which these letters were based was "wholly false," the statement charged, asserting that recommendations with respect to individual items which may be included in the trade agreement with Canada have not yet been formulated. Data now being collected on trade prospects between the two countries remain to be analyzed, it was added.

The statement asserted that "the Administration is desirous of knowing the views of citizens of this country in regard to tariff and other matters" and welcomed letters from the potato growers urging that something be done for them when the agreement with Cuba was being negotiated.

But the Administration, it was emphasized, "does not approve of high pressure lobbying methods such as those employed in this case" and "it can not allow such tactics to interfere with the trade recovery program."

The department in an effort to show that the present depressed price of potatoes did not result from importations cited figures from the Agricultural Year Book. These statistics showed that in 1929 when potatoes were selling for $1.31 per bushel, imports totaled 6,006,000 bushels against a domestic production of 327,000,000 bushels. This imports were 1.8 per cent of domestic production.

Import Ratio Declines.
In 1932 when the price of potatoes was 38 cents a bushel imports amounted to 440,000 bushels against domestic production of 358,000,000 bushels. This imports were 12-100 of 1 per cent of domestic production. In 1930 the Hawley-Smoot tariff of 75 cents per 100 pounds on potatoes became effective. In that year the price was 91 cents a bushel and in 1931 46 cents a bushel. The price is now around 25 cents a bushel.

Several weeks ago Mr. Hull took to task lobbyists who were protesting against a 50 per cent reduction in the tariff on manganese in the trade agreement with Brazil. He pointed out that in recent years only 200 or 300 persons were directly employed by the domestic manganese industry, but that the tariff, which amounted to 100 per cent of the value of the imported ore, was a heavy tax on the steel and other industries.

$350 Daily Received On Auto Title Levy
Annapolis, Md., April 16 (AP)—Receipts of approximately $350 daily are coming into the State comptroller's office from the new 1 per cent titling tax on automobiles.

The tax, which is under fire of a court proceeding, was enacted by the recent General Assembly. The Legislature exempted automobile dealers from payment of the 1 per cent gross receipts tax levied for relief purposes and placed the titling tax to care for the exemption.

D. A. R. Rivals Give Receptions, Testing Out the Political Winds

Congress Members Flock to Greet Mrs. Becker, Mrs. Gillentine.

Two straws in the wind were sent up by the rival candidates for president general of the D. A. R. yesterday.

These weather vanes were receptions to which all the more than 3,000 delegates and alternates attending the Forty-fourth Continental Congress were invited.

Mrs. William A. Becker, of New Jersey, the candidate first in the field, and the associates on her ticket formed the receiving line at the Mayflower Hotel. Their party was stormed by guests.

The crowd which went to the Willard Hotel, where Mrs. Flora Myers Gillentine, of Tennessee, Mrs. Becker's rival, and her associates were guests of the Tennessee society, was only slightly less.

The pages at the congress number 489 young women. A feature of the convention is the entrance of the pages at each session carrying the State flags. The pages are dressed in white.

Miss Dorothy DeG. Jenkins is chairman of the pages, aided by Mrs. E. R. Engler, vice chairman. Mrs. Russell William Magna, president general, is attended by four pages—Genevieve Dennett, Wynona V. Palmer, Doris L. Murdough and Emeline A. Murdough.

Missouri delegates will be guests of honor tonight at 8:30 o'clock at the Shoreham Hotel. The Missouri Society of Washington will be host. Musical entertainment has been arranged.

Martha Shakespeare, of Rutland, Vt., will place a wreath of Green Mountain evergreen on the tomb of Washington when the Children of the Revolution journey to Mount Vernon tomorrow. Her sister, Mary Shakespeare, is a page to the Vermont director, Mrs. Frederick Peters, of South New York.

Several hundred persons were in the Mayflower ballroom yesterday at the luncheon of the New York delegates. Other groups which had special functions yesterday included Maryland, Connecticut, Kentucky, New Hampshire and Vermont, Kansas, Indiana, Georgia, Texas and New Jersey.

Mrs. Becker was guest of honor at the West Virginia State luncheon at the Washington Hotel. Mrs. Becker was a busy woman yesterday, "calling in" at the luncheon of the New Jersey group and at the dinners of the Alabama, Georgia and Delaware groups.

A "Dutch treat" breakfast was held yesterday at the Mayflower by the Approved School Chairmen. A feature was a rehearsal of the Kentucky running set and mountain songs to be presented today at the Approved School meeting.

The Tennessee Daughters held their annual dinner at the Mayflower, complimentary to Mrs. Gillentine. Mrs. Allen Harris, State regent, presided. Guests of honor included Secretary and Mrs. Cordell Hull, Senator Kenneth McKellar, Speaker and Mrs. Joseph W. Byrns, Senator and Mrs. Nathan L. Bachman, Representative and Mrs. B. Carroll Reese, Mrs. Benton McMillin, Judge and Mrs. Finis J. Garrett, Judge and Mrs. Hugh Tate, Mrs. Nellie Taylor Rose and Mr. and Mrs. Jack W. Gates.

It was the pages' night at the ball given in their honor at the Mayflower Hotel by Mrs. Magna and the board of management.

The floor committee was headed by Brig. Gen. William E. Horton and included the following: Capt. Horace B. Smith, Lieut. Eugene Harrison, Lieut. David G. Erskine, Lieut. Fitch Cole, Lieut. Chester Hammond, Lieut. W. M. Haynesworth, Lieut. T. G. Perrin, Lieut. Arthur W. Ellis, Col. George H. Calvert, Jr., Waverly Taylor, Col. Reginald L. Foster, Reginald H. Foster, Archibald C. V. Wells, Col. Stanley K. Hornbeck, Herbert C. Hengstler, William D. Cheatham, Col. Frederick E. Johnston, Col. John P. Hains, Baron Hans von Dreyhausen, Wilbur R. Hubbard, Col. George T. Weltzel, Maj. Lawrence Leonard, Dr. Josef Nemecek and George L. Williams.

Mrs. Ned B. Harris, Washington correspondent for the Minneapolis Star and the Memphis Commercial Appeal, will be host to Mrs. Gillentine at a tea at 3:30 p. m. today at the Newspaper Women's Club at 1406 H street northwest. Washington newspaperwomen have been invited.

At a dinner last night at the Mayflower Hotel the Alabama delegates honored Mrs. Zebulon Judd, of Auburn, Ala., candidate for vice president general.

Alabama's colors, red and white, were used in decorating the tables. Pecans, grown, prepared and salted by Mrs. Judd, were served in individual nut baskets.

Mrs. B. Y. Martin, of Ozark, Ala., the chairman, presented Mrs. Val Taylor, who presided. Guests included Mrs. Magna and Mrs. Becker and her associate candidates, while all the candidates for vice president were special guests of Mrs. Judd.

The Minnesota dinner also was at the Mayflower. Among the members attending were Mrs. Carl T. Thayer, Mrs. James Morris, Miss Minnie Kelley, vice president general, and Mrs. Fred Schlipf. Arrangements were handled by Mrs. S. M. Stollwagen.

Women of the Alabama State Society will entertain Alabama delegates at a luncheon today at the Cosmos Club. Luncheon will be served at 12:30 p. m. Mrs. Hugh Grant, wife of the society's president, announced.

Deputy Sheriff Named.
Westminster, Md., April 16.—Announcement has been made of the appointment of Walter Shipley as chief deputy sheriff of Carroll County. Shipley replaces Robert L. Pickett, resigned.

Before Selling
INVESTIGATE the Prices We Pay for OLD GOLD SHAH & SHAH
921 F St. N.W.
Phone NA. 3443—and we will call.

Do You Know
That the National Limited is the only train between Washington and Cincinnati, Louisville and St. Louis, offering women passengers complete hotel and members service?

Leave Washington 6:30 P. M.
NO EXTRA FARE
BALTIMORE & OHIO

NATIONAL LIMITED

The D. A. R. Program Today

Morning.

Organ: 9:00 until 9:30 o'clock.....Mrs. Frank Akers Frost
Organist, Georgetown Presbyterian Church, Washington, D. C.

Entrance March.
Entrance of the president general and national officers, escorted by the pages.

Congress called to order.....The President General
Scripture and Prayer.....The Chaplain General

The Pledge of Allegiance to the Flag.....The Assemblage
The National Anthem.....The Assemblage

Reading of the Minutes.....The Recording Secretary General
Report of the Resolutions Committee.....Mrs. Robert J. Johnson, chairman

Reports of National Committees—Continued:
Report of Buildings and Grounds Committee, Mrs. J. M. Beavers, chairman

Report of Constitution Hall Memory Book
Mrs. G. L. H. Brousseau, chairman

Report of Financial Status, Constitution Hall.....The Treasurer General
Report of Constitution Hall Committee

Contributions to Constitution Hall
Mrs. Russell William Magna, chairman

Announcements.
Recess.

Afternoon.

Assembly Call.
Entrance March.....Mrs. James Shera Montgomery

Entrance of the Pages.
Reports of National Committees—Continued:

Ellis Island.....Mrs. J. Warren Perkins, chairman
National Defense Through Patriotic Education

Mrs. William A. Becker, chairman
Daughters of American Revolution Student Loan Fund

Mrs. E. R. Engler, vice chairman
Filing and Lending Historical Papers, including Patriotic Lectures and Lantern Slides.....Mrs. Flora Myers Gillentine, chairman Approved Schools.....Mrs. William H. Pouch, chairman

Program by pupils from schools on our approved and reserve lists.
Sons and Daughters of the U. S. A.....Mrs. Robert Bagnell, chairman

Program by officers and members of the District of Columbia, Maryland and Virginia Sons and Daughters of the U. S. A. Clubs.

Americanism.....Miss Mary C. Welch, chairman
Program....."Scene in a Naturalization Court"

Interpreted by pupils from the Americanization School in the District of Columbia.

Evening.

Concert from 8 until 8:30 o'clock.....United States Navy Band Orchestra
Lieut. Charles Benter, leader

Assembly Call.
Entrance March:
Entrance of the president general and all candidates for national office, escorted by the pages with State flags.

Invocation.....The Chaplain General
Nominations—(to be elected for three years): The president general, seven vice president generals, chaplain general, recording secretary general, corresponding secretary general, organizing secretary general, treasurer general, registrar general, historian general, librarian general, curator general, reporter general to the Smithsonian Institution.

The Retiring of the Colors.
Exit March.....United States Navy Band Orchestra

Striking Ohio Convicts Assail Parole Plan in Plea to Warden

Board's Slowness and the Indeterminate Sentence System Attacked.

By the Associated Press.

Columbus, Ohio, April 16.—Striking Ohio Penitentiary convicts recited their grievances to Warden James C. Woodard today.

The warden appeared before 16 companies composed of 1,056 convicts who laid down their tools yesterday in four shops of the prison. The prison population is 4,426.

From each company he received the same complaint—that the convicts felt the State Board of Paroles had not acted speedily enough and that the State's indeterminate sentence law was unfair.

All was quiet within the prison as spokesmen for the convicts presented their views to Woodard, Col. Gilson D. Light, who represented Gov. Mary L. Dawsey, and Deputy Warden August F. Pisk.

Col. Light said: "I'm going to put your grievances before the Governor and I will suggest that he call the board of paroles into a conference and consider what you men have said."

The spokesman of one of the groups, assured by Col. Light, attempted to be heard by "put him on the spot," declared the difference between serving definite sentences and an indeterminate term is "the difference between life and eternity." Another asserted the parole board is "utterly calloused."

Texas Guards Answer Brutality Charge

By the Associated Press.

Angleton, Tex., April 16.—Guards accused of such brutality that convicts maimed themselves to escape working under them told their story today to a Texas legislative committee investigating the Retriever State Prison Farm near here.

About 25 convicts—many appearing on crutches—were questioned before the committee turned to officials and guards. Eleven guards, seven from the fields, were called. Proceedings were kept secret.

Officials asserted the convicts have maimed themselves to get out of work, but W. A. Boyett, prison board member, charged April 3 in a message to Gov. James V. Allred that "convicts are maiming themselves by cutting their legs off because of the brutality of the guards in the field."

Dr. W. B. Veazey, head physician of the prison system, said 11 prisoners at Retriever had mutilated themselves since January 1. Some chopped off fingers, others cut off toes, some broke their arms and others their legs. Still others poured kerosene in their wounds to cause infection. Only 12 mutilated themselves in 1934.

Canal Zone Flier, Girl Lose Lives in Crash
Cristobal, C. Z., April 16 (AP)—Capt. G. M. Daniels, 45, Canal Zone pilot in the marine division, and Josephine Dunn, 15, were killed today in a plane crash at Fort Davis Army post. The bodies were burned beyond recognition. Daniels was from Stonewall, N. C.

Before Selling
INVESTIGATE the Prices We Pay for
OLD GOLD SHAH & SHAH
921 F St. N.W.
Phone NA. 3443—and we will call.

Do You Know
That the National Limited is the only train between Washington and Cincinnati, Louisville and St. Louis, offering women passengers complete hotel and members service?

Leave Washington 6:30 P. M.
NO EXTRA FARE
BALTIMORE & OHIO

NATIONAL LIMITED

Mrs. Gillentine Group Charges Revolt in D.A.R.

Politics Still Holds Sway Despite Business and Social Events.

Continued from Page 1.

tion in D. A. R. history, the reception, was a show of beautiful gowns and colorful pomp which attends a formal affair of the Daughters.

A score of attendants were needed to keep in check the throng which flocked to Mrs. Becker's reception at the Mayflower Hotel. In the receiving line with the New Jersey candidate were the members of her state and numerous D. A. R. officers.

Rival Reception.
Mrs. Gillentine's reception began at 4 o'clock, one hour earlier than her rival's, at the Willard Hotel. She and her running mates shook the hands of hundreds of supporters. Both receptions ended at 7 p. m.

The statement from Mrs. Gillentine's supporters, read in part as follows: "There is undercover revolt in the D. A. R. State delegations are refusing to toe the mark, much to the confusion of those who have grown used to easy recognition of heresy."

"For more than a year the campaign for the election of Mrs. Becker as president general was energetically promoted, and when her election was announced last October, much capital was made of the fact that nearly all her associate candidates were members of the national board."

"Her supporters pointed out that a number of State regents were pledged to her. This made it appear that Mrs. Gillentine, the opposing candidate, had an uphill fight, at best."

Wide Split.
"It has been years since there has been any sharp division in the list of national officers, but in the present contest it is different. Not only is the group of administrative officers known as the cabinet divided, but there is a split in the board of management."

"It goes much deeper, in that the split has gone down through the ranks, and only a few State regents are in control of State delegations—some being in the attitude of leadership with only a minority of faithful followers."

Electioneering was criticized when the morning business session opened by Mrs. George Maynard Minor, honorary president general, who said: "What kind of a country are we making for our descendants? Remember, we are not here primarily to electioneer."

Mrs. George T. Guernsey, another past president general, complained of present parliamentary rules under which the delegates themselves had an opportunity to talk.

"So many of the delegates are leaning on the records of their ancestors that they are not making records for themselves," she said.

Praise of Programs.
Mrs. Magna made her last report at the morning session, expressing appreciation for the support of her associates and terming results in all the educational and other programs of the organization "gratifying."

"We can turn with just pride to steady activities and steady growth," Mrs. Magna said. "The society is in a splendid condition."

"We reeled the sails of our society ship to the prevailing winds and, with an eye to the weather, have managed our three-year course and steered into our final port of this term with the hull intact, barnacle-free, our cargo safe and a good bill of health for all on board."

About Constitution Hall, Mrs. Magna declared: "I am justly proud that over a nine-year period the society has never had even a 2 per cent shrinkage of pledged money." She added that she was confident that the debt on the hall "will be canceled before this Congress adjourns."

Other national officers made reports at the morning session. Katherine Arnold Nettleton, treasurer general, explained the debt on Constitution Hall had been reduced from $266,500 April 1, 1932, to $185,000 April 1, this year.

Although membership during the last year had dropped slightly, Mrs. Nettleton reported, during the last year there were more applicants and reinstatements than at any time since 1921.

Surplus Greater.
The society had on hand at the end of March this year $189,232.51, Mrs. Nettleton reported, as compared with $181,584.74 on hand a year ago. Total receipts during the year were $453,168.35, while total disbursements were listed at $215,375.

Mrs. Frank Madison Dick, librarian general, reported the library had expanded during the year. She spoke of the increased interest in bookplates, declaring the D. A. R. collection now numbers between 3,000 and 4,000. Nearly 1,500 of these, she said, were presented by Mrs. William H. Harvey through the Boston Tea Party Chapter.

Mrs. Dick acknowledged many gifts, including the Virginia historical index compiled by Dr. E. G. Swen, from Virginia society, given in honor of the State regent, Mrs. Charles B. Keesee.

The business session yesterday morning opened with an organ recital by Mrs. James Shera Montgomery, of Washington. After the entrance march, the gathering was called to order by Mrs. Magna. Patriotic exercises were held and a report was made by Miss Page Schwarzwelder, chairman of the credentials committee.

Five honorary presidents general were called upon for greetings. They were Mrs. Minor, Mrs. Guernsey, Mrs. Lovell Fletcher Hobart, Mrs. Grace Brousseau, and Mrs. Anthony Wayne Cook. Mrs. Cook, who could not be present, sent her message by Miss Janet Richards, who read it before the congress.

His Gag Rule.
When Mrs. Guernsey attacked the "gag rule," which limits each delegate to three minutes' speech on the floor a day unless a two-third vote of permission is obtained, her action called attention to the fact that both candidates for president general have come out vigorously for scrapping this regulation.

The first indication of the voting strength of the congress came with an announcement that there were present yesterday 1923 voters and 1,421 alternates. Later arrivals may swell these figures.

The report of Miss Myra Hazard, curator general, declared that one of the outstanding gifts received by the national society during the year is a salt dish owned by George Washington and carried by him during the Revolutionary campaigns.

Others who reported were Mrs. Raymond G. Kimball, chaplain general; Mrs. Henry Bourne Joy, recording secretary general; Mrs. John M. Beavers, corresponding secretary general; Mrs. Frank Howard Parcells, organizing secretary general; Mrs. Stanley Forman Reed, registrar general; Mrs. William Louise Dunne, historian general; and Mrs. Emmet H. Wilson, reporter general to the Smithsonian Institution.

Firemen's School April 26.
Special Dispatch to The Post.
Clarksburg, W. Va., April 16.—Fire fighters from cities and towns in several central West Virginia counties will attend a regional school, which will open April 26, in charge of Lewis W. Carpenter, of the State university. J. W. Just, chief of the Chicago (Ill.) Fire Department, will be the principal instructor in fire extension service.

49c up
We Deliver
Grey Squirrel Nut Shop
1515 H St. N.W.

EASTER TIME IS GIFT TIME
And what better gift than a delicious chocolate egg, chock full of crisp, meaty freshly roasted and salted nuts. Various sizes.

20 YEARS PROVED IT WAS GREAT BEFORE WE MADE IT GREATER!
Take the word of motorists who bought Amoco-Gas for 20 years—not just a few weeks. They called it great and proved it. And now it's even greater. Try it!
AMERICAN OIL COMPANY

GREATER AMOCO-GAS

Crystal water made even finer...

Crystal fresh water is still not pure enough for Canada Dry. It must be softened, filtered and finally ultra-violet rayed... it is made super-pure, so to speak, and looks diamond bright. Just one of many reasons why, when it comes to buying ginger ale...

...of course it's CANADA DRY
"THE CHAMPAGNE OF GINGER ALES"

Wherever good taste reigns, Canada Dry is found... sparkling and dry and fragrant as a fine old wine. In all the many years since it first came down from Canada, it has always set the standard for purity, fine flavor, and joyous sparkle. There is still only one Champagne of Ginger Ales.

And Canada Dry's Sparkling Water is better, too. Opened and in your refrigerator for 24 long hours, it still will be full of lively, long-lasting sparkle.

Salvatore Desio
926 F St. N.W.

Do You Know
That the National Limited is the only train between Washington and Cincinnati, Louisville and St. Louis, offering women passengers complete hotel and members service?

Leave Washington 6:30 P. M.
NO EXTRA FARE
BALTIMORE & OHIO

NATIONAL LIMITED

Before Selling
INVESTIGATE the Prices We Pay for
OLD GOLD SHAH & SHAH
921 F St. N.W.
Phone NA. 3443—and we will call.

Do You Know
That the National Limited is the only train between Washington and Cincinnati, Louisville and St. Louis, offering women passengers complete hotel and members service?

Leave Washington 6:30 P. M.
NO EXTRA FARE
BALTIMORE & OHIO

NATIONAL LIMITED

Before Selling
INVESTIGATE the Prices We Pay for
OLD GOLD SHAH & SHAH
921 F St. N.W.
Phone NA. 3443—and we will call.

Do You Know
That the National Limited is the only train between Washington and Cincinnati, Louisville and St. Louis, offering women passengers complete hotel and members service?

Leave Washington 6:30 P. M.
NO EXTRA FARE
BALTIMORE & OHIO

NATIONAL LIMITED

Do Not Neglect Arthritis
Thousands suffering from arthritic pains have found relief in Mountain Valley Mineral Water. It is the only natural mineral water in the world. It is pure, healthful, and refreshing. It is the only natural mineral water in the world. It is pure, healthful, and refreshing. It is the only natural mineral water in the world. It is pure, healthful, and refreshing.

Special Bulletin
L. A. Bulletin. $1.15
For use in manuscripts and all other publications.

UNITED TYPEWRITER

EASTER TIME IS GIFT TIME

And what better gift than a delicious chocolate egg, chock full of crisp, meaty freshly roasted and salted nuts. Various sizes.

49c up
We Deliver
Grey Squirrel Nut Shop
1515 H St. N.W.

EASTER TIME IS GIFT TIME

And what better gift than a delicious chocolate egg, chock full of crisp, meaty freshly roasted and salted nuts. Various sizes.

20 YEARS PROVED IT WAS GREAT BEFORE WE MADE IT GREATER!

Take the word of motorists who bought Amoco-Gas for 20 years—not just a few weeks. They called it great and proved it. And now it's even greater. Try it!
AMERICAN OIL COMPANY

GREATER AMOCO-GAS

Crystal water made even finer...

Crystal fresh water is still not pure enough for Canada Dry. It must be softened, filtered and finally ultra-violet rayed... it is made super-pure, so to speak, and looks diamond bright. Just one

Baruch Dodges Issue, Munition Probers Claim

Senators Write Their Own Proposals in House Bill Embodying His Ideas.

By the Associated Press.

Asserting that Bernard M. Baruch is "running away" from efforts to take the profit out of war, members of the Senate Munitions Committee yesterday answered the financier's criticisms by at once starting to write their own proposals into the House bill embodying his ideas.

Baruch, New York financier, said the committee's drastic taxation program might cause defeat in war-time, by crippling industry. This aroused Chairman Nye (Republican), of North Dakota, and Senator Vandenberg (Republican), of Michigan, of the committee.

Lindsay Declines Comment.

Meanwhile, Sir Ronald Lindsay, the British Ambassador, conferred with Secretary Hull yesterday but declined any comment on reports from London that he had made representations against the Munitions Committee making public correspondence concerning British war-time financing. Secretary Hull also declined any comment.

The Ambassador was reported to have raised the question informally with the State Department 10 days ago after he learned that the Senate Committee might subpoena correspondence between the British and J. F. Morgan & Co. and the Guaranty Trust Co., dealing with munition purchases during the World War.

Nye said committee investigators were going ahead with the study of correspondence in the files of Morgan & Co.

With little comment or outward evidence of interest, the committee yesterday heard the closing story of how Ben Smith, Wall Street operator, acquired control of the New York Shipbuilding Corporation.

There was some laughter at his picturesque narration of events surrounding attempts to get the company for competing interests.

Executive Session Today.

Afterward the committee announced that immediate executive sessions would begin today and continue the balance of the week, while it built into the McSwain war profits bill, passed by the House, its far more drastic plan for scraping every vestige of war earnings out of industry and trimming individual salaries to the minimum. The McSwain bill contains most of Baruch's proposals.

Roughly, the two plans compare as follows:

Baruch proposes putting a ceiling over prices in time of war "that will prevent a rise and protect the Government and the civilian population, whose needs must be second only to those of our fighting forces." The President would be empowered to make adjustments.

The committee plan, drawn by John T. Flynn, proposes to make the Nation "pay as it fights" without borrowing.

Tax Proposals Compared.

Baruch advises a tax that will take "practically all the profits from war activities."

Flynn urges a tax taking everything from industry above 3 per cent of profit, and all individual earnings above $10,000, as well as a large slice of earnings under $10,000. Baruch would "raise all corporate and income taxes to the highest point possible, but not so that they will stop the flow of munitions" to troops nor hinder production for the civilian population.

"All this we must arrange," Baruch said in an interview in New York yesterday, "so that so far as possible we can pay as we fight and with the least possible change in our economic structure."

His statement supplemented one on Monday in which he decried the plan drafted by Flynn, the committee's economic advisor, as giving evidence of a "singular innocence of business" and threatening to change the nation's industrial structure "when the enemy is at the gates."

Calls Position Unchanged.

Nye replied that the chairman of the War Industries Board under President Wilson had at first endorsed the Flynn plan and then had changed his position.

"Not so," was the essence of the financier's reply from New York. "Although I may differ with others as to methods," he said, "my position for taking the profits out of war has not changed one iota."

Senator Vandenberg was as emphatic as Nye in assailing Baruch. "I daily disagree with Mr. Baruch, and he disagrees with himself," he said. "He concurred with our committee that we should 'pay as we fight.' We simply propose to make that formula mean what it says."

Efforts of the committee to elicit evidence from yesterday's witnesses that those interested in buying New York Shipbuilding stock had "inside information" of the Roosevelt naval program of 1933 brought emphatic denials from all. "It was all in the newspapers," Smith summarized.

Wall St. Man Quizzed

Associated Press Photo.
BEN SMITH,
spectacular Wall street operator, as he appeared before Senate
Munitions Committee yesterday in connection with shipbuilding inquiry.

Churches Hold Special Service For Holy Week

Communion Set Tomorrow for 2 Congregations at Woodside.

Special services are being held in the churches of the Silver Spring, Md., area in observance of Holy Week, with music programs planned for Easter Sunday. In the two Episcopal churches, the church year will close Monday with election of officers.

Tomorrow evening at the Woodside Methodist Episcopal Church, Woodside, there will be a candlelight communion service with reception of members. Good Friday at 8 p. m. the senior choir will give the oratorio, "The Crucifixion," by Sir John St. Sainer. Guest artists will be Edward Stimson and Eugene Kressin. A sunrise service will be held Sunday at 7 a. m. and at 11 a. m. a pantomime service, "Easter Gifts," will be presented with music by the girls' chorus.

A candlelight service will be held at 7:45 p. m. today in the Church of Ascension. Maundy Thursday will be observed with Holy Communion at 8 p. m. and services will be held Good Friday from noon to 3 p. m. Special music and a sermon by the pastor, the Rev. James Cox, will mark the Easter services at 11 a. m. Sunday. Holy Communion will be at 7:30 a. m. church school at 9:30 a. m., and evensong at 8 p. m.

Grace Episcopal Church, Woodside, will celebrate Holy Communion tomorrow at 8 p. m., with a three-hour service beginning Good Friday at noon. Special services will be held by the rector, the Rev. Frederick M. Morris, at 8 p. m., and on Saturday afternoon baptisms will be held.

Tenebrae will be sung tonight, tomorrow and Friday nights at 8 o'clock at St. Michael's Catholic Church. Speakers during the services will be the Rev. John Burke, of St. Paul's College; the Rev. Michael Riordan and the Rev. Urban Abelman, of Capuchin College. Mass will be held at 9 a. m. both tomorrow and Friday, and high mass will be celebrated Saturday at 7 a. m. Masses on Sunday will be at 7, 8 and 9, with high mass at 10:30 a. m.

The Silver Spring Baptist Church will hold Communion services tomorrow night at 8 o'clock, and special services again the following night. The week will close Sunday with a cantata rendered by a large chorus choir under the direction of Mrs. Lorena Gawler.

How's your FACE Today?

Were there any little tell-tale marks of red on your towel this morning when you mopped your face after shaving? If there were it's time to think about your razor. Thousands of new users are finding in the Schick INJECTOR Razor a new idea of comfort—a smooth after-feeling, no harsh tender irritated skin. They like, too, the INSTANT BLADE CHANGE—the convenient INJECTOR containing 20 blades. Ask your dealer to show it to you. $1.50. This price includes INJECTOR with 20 blades.

Schick
Injector
RAZOR

Do You Know

That the National Limited is the only train between Washington and Cincinnati, Louisville and St. Louis, offering women passengers competent maid and manicure service?

Leave Washington 6:30 P. M.
NO EXTRA FARE
BALTIMORE & OHIO

NATIONAL LIMITED

Hechinger Co.

Baldwin Warns U.S. Arms Quiz Is Dangerous

Says Probe on War-Time Financing May Revive Long-Dead Disputes.

By the Associated Press.

London, April 16.—Stanley Baldwin, lord president of the council, today referred in the House of Commons to the proposed United States Senate Arms Inquiry with a warning of the danger of the United States reviving "a long-since obsolete controversy which might have an undesirable effect on the present international situation."

Baldwin's statement came in answer to a member of Parliament, who asked the nature and the object of a protest by the British Ambassador in Washington against certain evidence in the inquiry.

"No official protest has been made to the United States," Baldwin replied. "The Ambassador has, however, expressed informally to the Secretary of State the hope that when consideration is given the proposal to investigate war-time correspondence between certain United States banks in connection with financing certain purchasing commissions by allied commissions the danger of reviving a long-since obsolete controversy which might have an undesirable effect on the present international situation should be borne in mind."

Morgan Jones, Labor party member of Parliament, told the House that Great Britain's advocacy of "financial purity" in world affairs was inconsistent with her record in the question of the war debts owed the United States.

Jones stated he had noticed Neville Chamberlain, chancellor of the exchequer, had failed to mention the debt question in presenting the budget.

"I understand," said Jones, "that this government is against unilateral action, regarding international agreements, but here is unilateral action, and unilateral action, if not changed, subsequently does amount to repudiation."

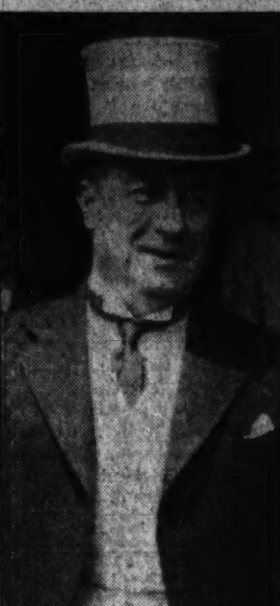

Pointing out the attention that Great Britain pays to its national interests in South America, the Laborite said "that is all right, but you can't repudiate your obligations to America and ask that other people should not be excused from theirs."

Twists Opposition.

Jones explained he personally preferred cancellation of the war debts by agreement, but he twisted the government benches with this final remark:

"I put a proposition to the supporters opposite that if they re-

Warns U. S. on Probe

Wide World Photo.
STANLEY BALDWIN.

Tree Blown on Road, Motorcyclist Killed

Frederick, Md., April 16.—Albert K. Castle, 31-year-old farm worker, was instantly killed last night when his motorcycle crashed into a tree which had blown across the road near Burkettville.

Justice Howard M. Jones, Brunswick, acting coroner, returned a verdict of accidental death. Shortly before the accident a motorist reported that he had run into the tree.

Benefit Dance Set.

The Women's Auxiliary of the Marlboro Volunteer Fire Department will hold a dance Monday night at Trinity hall, Upper Marlboro, for the benefit of the department's new firehouse, now under construction. Miss Virginia Ridgeway is chairman of the arrangements committee.

iterate the cry that Great Britain now is on the road to recovery, they should not overlook the fact that the cry may re-echo in America and an answering cry come back, 'What about the debt you owe to us?'

Opposition leaders charged the government with balancing its budget through failure to pay the war debt owed the United States.

Ex-Allies Force Reich Censure By the League

Steamroller Opposition of Poland and Denmark; Action Due Today.

Continued from Page 1.

will be punished by economic and financial penalties.

The resolution's chief points, listed after outlining the German action and previous peace efforts by the "Big Three," follow:

1.—The Council declares "that Germany failed in her duty, which lies with all members in the international community to respect undertakings which they have contracted, and condemns any unilateral repudiation of international obligations."

2.—The council invites those "governments which took the initiative in the plan of February 3, 1935 (France and England), or which gave their approval to it, to continue the negotiations so initiated, and particularly promote the conclusion, within the framework of the League of Nations, of agreements which may appear necessary to obtain the object defined in this plan."

3.—Considering that unilateral repudiation of international obligations may endanger the very existence of the League of Nations as an organization for maintaining peace and promoting security, (the Council) decides that such repudiation without prejudice to the application of measures already provided for in international agreements, should "bring into play all appropriate measures on the part of members of the league, within the framework of the covenant."

4.—The council "requests that a committee composed of . . . (to be named) . . . devise measures to render the covenant more effective for the organization of collective security, and define particularly economic and financial measures which might be applied, should, in future, a state, whether a league member or not, endanger peace by unilateral repudiation of its international obligations."

Salvador de Madariaga, of Spain, for the small powers, objected to the "steam-roller" tactics. The Danish delegate, M. Munch, said he approved of certain parts of the resolution, but held "serious doubts" as to others. Polish Foreign Minister Josef Beck strongly criticized the resolution.

By the Associated Press.

Berlin, April 16.—A threat never to return to the League of Nations was Germany's answer today to the French recourse to Geneva criticizing her rearmament in violation of the Treaty of Versailles.

A high official of the Wilhelmstrasse said the Reich was loath to return because other powers failed to disarm, thus violating the treaty long before Germany did. Other officials were bitterly scornful of the French action.

"We can not acknowledge such a one-sided resolution," the Wilhelmstrasse spokesman said. "You may be certain if this goes through the league Germany will never rejoin it."

"We will remain outside the league in good company, with the United States."

"France and Geneva are the real accused," the government spokesman continued. "Yet Laval (Pierre Laval, French Foreign Minister) appears at Geneva as accuser, prosecutor and jury. Geneva is on the stand, not us."

France Is Elated At Action Result

By the United Press.

Paris, April 16.—The Government was elated tonight at the results of France's strong stand on German rearmament at Geneva and Stresa. Premier Pierre-Etienne Flandin, back from Italy, reported on the Stresa parley last week, explaining France's activities there and at Geneva to put "teeth" into the league council resolution censuring Germany's rearmament action.

Plans also were completed for the visit of Air Minister Gen. Victor Denain to Rome to confer with air experts there on a Franco-Italian aviation pact. He eventually is to visit London, Prague and Moscow to arrange air aid pacts with these countries also, prior to combining them into a general treaty covering aerial assistance in time of war.

Denmark May Follow Poland's Arms Stand

By the Associated Press.

Stockholm, Sweden, April 16.—Reports from Geneva that Denmark may join with Poland to oppose the resolution on German rearmament now before the league council aroused great interest today.

The foreign ministers of Sweden, Denmark and Norway conferred recently at Copenhagen; the reported purpose being to form some general opinion of the course to follow at Geneva. The question being raised by observers is whether the opposition of Denmark could in any way be construed as indicative of general Scandinavian opinion.

Parsons Mill Will Reopen.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Parsons, Va., April 16.—The Parsons woolen mill is to be reopened soon after suspension since November. The spinning and carding departments are being started this week with the dye room. The new superintendent, A. L. Granger, arrived and more than 100 men and women will be employed.

Czechs Arrest Score in Reich Spy Syndicate

4 High Army Officials in Group Seized by Own Government.

By the Associated Press.

Praha, Czechoslovakia, April 16.—A score or more persons, the majority of them said to be Germans, were reported under arrest today as Czechoslovakia continued investigation of an alleged pro-German "espionage syndicate."

At least four of those held, it was said on good authority, are high Czech army officials.

Government authorities continued to observe strictest silence in connection with the alleged spy ring, which first came to light with the arrest of ten government officials March 1, but it was reliably learned police on the trail of the alleged spies have found an ever-widening espionage ring.

Publication of news concerning the arrests and investigations has been strictly prohibited, heavy punishment being threatened for noncompliance.

A comprehensive government statement may be expected, it was said, after the investigations are completed, probably next week.

The arrest of three Germans—Fritz Kamm, Nazi German student leader; Adolf Borstenoefer and Milos Melxner—in Praha late in February led authorities to the door of an alleged espionage ring in which, it was asserted, high Czech officials were involved.

Ten officials were arrested March 1, among them three described as "personages" of the ministry of war.

At that time the supreme court banned publication of news concerning the arrests.

3 Month Term Given For Holdup at Store

Chestertown, Md., April 16.—Ernest Robinson, 45, was sentenced to three months in the Maryland House of Correction by Judge Owen C. Knotts in Kent County Circuit Court today after being found guilty of robbing the store of Oliver Jervis and beating the proprietor. Seven dollars was taken from the cash register.

Elizabeth Lee Engaged.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Charlottesville, Va., April 16.—Mr. and Mrs. Robert Edward Lee, of Mountain View, this county, have announced the engagement of their daughter, Elizabeth Erwin, to Mr. Eliot Guthrie Fishburne, son of Mr. and Mrs. Pliny Fishburne, of Waynesboro, Va.

Join and See the EASTER PARADE ON FIFTH AVENUE

STOP AT HOTEL WEBSTER. A Short Walk to the Theatres, Shops and Radio City.

ROOM $2.50 BATH

HOTEL WEBSTER

40 West 44th St., New York N. Y.

FREDERICK W. BERGMANN, Mgr.

Formerly Manager Hotel Pennsylvania, N. Y.; Lee House, Washington.

THROAT SORE?

THE BACTERIAL COUNT OF YOUR MOUTH IS

Out of balance!

Your throat feels raw. Swallowing hurts. Germs have forced your salivary glands below par—throw the bacterial count of your mouth out of balance. The bars are down—bronchitis, even sinus infection may develop.

Gargle with LA LASINE

full strength, or 50-50 with water. Double-action relief comes! The antiseptic foam of La Lasine surrounds and kills bacteria present. Its membrane-restoratives quicken the release of natural enzymes and ferments from your salivary glands. Bacterial-mouth-count returns to balance.

La Lasine is safe—even if swallowed. $1.00 size makes 24 pints. Get it today from your druggist.

La Lasine International, Inc., N. Y.

LA LASINE

The DOUBLE-ACTION Antiseptic

Conduct becoming a Gentleman's Whiskey

TONIGHT

"You're late again, Ed!"

"But never too late for CALVERT!"

TOMORROW

"We're two weeks ahead of schedule, Tom."

"Ed, you sure know how to work and drink. From now on I'm sticking to CALVERT, too!"

LAYING plans for a tall evening? Then, see that tonight's build-up doesn't result in a let-down tomorrow. Here's a constructive suggestion. Drink only CALVERT'S old-time blended whiskies. Enjoy their amazing flavor in gentlemanly moderation. Tomorrow morning you'll feel okay! CALVERT'S exclusive blending process is the answer. Try CALVERT . . . today.

CALVERT'S SPECIAL RESERVE and CALVERT'S SPECIAL are superlative blends, amazing in flavor, distinguished in bouquet. Try them. Be glad tomorrow you said "Calvert" today.

Clear heads call for Calvert

BLENDED AND BOTTLED-IN-BOND WHISKIES

When you can't afford anything, but the very best, we suggest LORD CALVERT BOTTLED IN-BOND WHISKY . . . RYE or BOURBON . . . bottled-in-bond under Canadian Government Supervision. 100 proof.

Jury Selected, Dutch Schultz Shows Temper

Former Bronx Beer Baron Flares Up Twice Over 12 Chosen.

Syracuse, N. Y., April 16.—The jury that will try Arthur (Dutch) Schultz, flight engineer in his United States Court trial on charges of evading income tax payments was selected quickly today.

The survival of the Bronx beer industry in the twelfth year of prohibition showed his second flash of temper of the day when asked what he thought of the jury.

"That's a hell of a question," he growled, then in a twinkling changed face to add: "I think it's a very intelligent-looking jury."

Variety of Occupations.

The 12 include two clerks, two merchants, three who said they had retired, and one each listing occupations as insurance broker, carpenter, plumber and farmer. The two alternates were a merchant and an automobile service man.

Schultz's first burst of temper occurred as his chief of defense, James M. Noonan, sought to learn if one of the veniremen had a prejudicial opinion in the case.

Repeatedly and in varying phraseology, Noonan had put his questions to George E. Boschert, of Syracuse. Schultz had understood Boschert to say he was biased, then that he was not.

Outburst Unnoticed.

It was this right-about-face on the part of the prospective juror that stirred the dapper defendant. With brow suddenly contracted, he swung nervously round in his chair and protested:

"He said he did."

Presiding Judge Frederick H. Bryant did not indicate by any action or word that he had noticed the outburst and Schultz, who sat facing the bench, resumed his study of the faces of the men who might be selected to try him.

The United States marshal's staff of deputies was increased to strengthen the guard in the corridors forming a quadrangle around the courtroom.

Spectators Are Fined.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Shepherdstown, W. Va., April 16.—State Game Warden Orr, Roderick and Wiley arrested Oliver Rickard and James Kirby, of near Millville, W. Va., here yesterday on charges of violating State game and fish laws. Justice of the Peace C. E. Jones fined the men $1 and costs each.

Aviatrix Fails in Speed Flight

Laura Ingalls, noted aviatrix, is shown in the cockpit of the plane in which she took off from Los Angeles yesterday on an attempt to shatter Amelia Earhart-Putnam's transcontinental record.

Senate to Vote Billion to End Farm Tenancy

Bill May Pass Upper House Today; Lower Body Advances Plan.

By The Associated Press.

The Senate yesterday carried to the point of passage a bill creating a billion-dollar corporation to make farm owners out of several million farm tenants and share-croppers.

Democratic leaders predicted that the measure, introduced by Senator Bankhead (Democrat), Alabama, and supported by the Administration, would be approved today after some slight modifications.

The bill was given preference over the Costigan-Wagner anti-lynching bill after several Southern Senators had blocked an attempt by Senator Costigan (Democrat), Colorado, to get the latter measure before the Senate.

Senator Bankhead made a fervent plea for his bill, describing it as a "program in favor of the underdog in agriculture."

Over in the House Agriculture Committee Secretary Wallace was approving a similar bill by the committee chairman, Representative Jones (Democrat), Texas.

"I think the objectives of the bill are absolutely sound," said the Cabinet member, around whom is raging a controversy over the entire farm adjustment program.

"It is high time we set about saving America from tenancy," he said, adding present conditions in the South "offer fertile soil for radical and communistic activities."

The Bankhead bill would create a farm owners' corporation with $50,000,000 capital stock from relief funds. It would have authority to issue up to $1,000,000,000 in bonds and use proceeds to buy and improve small farms and sell them on easy terms and over a long amortization period to farmers, tenants, share-croppers and farm laborers.

New York Call Money Quoted at 1/4 Per Cent

New York, April 16 (AP).—Outside, or call, money rates were quoted by some New York banks today at 1/4 of 1 per cent, believed to be a new record low for these funds. At the same time the official rate, sliced yesterday by the New York Stock Exchange to 1/2 of 1 per cent, remained unchanged.

With the banks loaded down with idle money the financial district was not surprised that the unofficial rate at which money can be borrowed on securities was again cut to the small fractional figure.

Post Classified Ads bring 'Today's Results Today.' National 4200.

Giant Clipper Roaring Away To Honolulu

Ship Takes Off to Blaze 2,400-Mile Route Over Pacific.

Continued from Page 1.

line and 300 gallons of oil, enough to take it 3,200 miles. It also carried 102 pounds of mail, 8,000 letters sent by philatelists all over the world.

Emergency rations also were aboard, although the crew didn't figure on needing them.

Radio stations at Alameda and Keweenaw Bay, Hawaii, began sending their directional signals to guide the pioneering plane.

Welcoming Squadron.

Squadron VP-10 of the Navy, which flew from California to its Honolulu station, will take off to welcome the clipper to Hawaii.

Rear Admiral Harry E. Yarnell and Maj. Gen. Hugh A. Drum, with Gov. Joseph B. Poldexter, plan to greet the flyers on arrival.

Musick's crew includes Victor A. Wright, engineering officer; Fred J. Noonan, navigation officer; Harry R. Canaday, junior flight officer, and W. Turner Jarboe, Jr., radio officer. Musick, born in St. Louis in 1894, has spent 22 years in commercial aviation and is America's first international airmail pilot. He never has had a serious accident, despite the fact he has flown 10,000 hours. He has piloted aircraft more than 1,000,000 miles.

Virginia Stage Concern Buys Fisher Business

Waynesboro, Va., April 16.—Announcement of the sale of the Fisher Bus Lines, oldest in the Shenandoah Valley and one of the oldest in the State, to the Virginia Stage Lines, was made at the terminal office here yesterday by Norman Fisher, president of the Fisher Lines. The sale price was not revealed, but it was understood several bus companies had been interested in obtaining this independent link between Staunton and Charlottesville.

The first round trip of a Fisher bus between Staunton and Waynesboro was made January 23, 1915. The route was extended to Charlottesville ten years ago. S. A. Jessup, of Charlottesville, president of the Virginia Stage Lines, was in Waynesboro today completing details of the transfer. He indicated changes in schedules may be made.

House Presses Dern to Speed Foulois Ouster

Secretary Replies He Still Lacks Report From His Investigators.

By The Associated Press.

Secretary Dern said last night he could not answer the demands of the House Military Affairs Committee for an immediate report on charges against the Chief of Army Air Corps because his investigators had not reported to him.

Dern's statement, made to newspapermen, came a few hours after the House committee had voted to back the action of its sub-committee in recommending that Maj. Gen. Benjamin D. Foulois be removed as Chief of Air Corps, and had decided to remind Dern it had been waiting for several months for a report on an inquiry he ordered.

"The Foulois case," Dern said last night, "still is in the hands of the Inspector General, and as soon as he makes a report to me it will be transmitted immediately to the committee."

Howell Sees Separate Post.

"I obviously can not give them the report until a complete investigation has been made and a report made to me."

The charges and recommendation that Foulois be relieved grew out of an extensive investigation of War Department business methods by a military sub-committee under Chairman Rogers (Democrat), of New Hampshire.

Meanwhile, Chairman McSwain (Democrat), of South Carolina, of the full committee, gave out a letter from Clark Howell, chairman of the now disbanded Federal Aviation Commission, asserting it was "inevitable" that the United States place air transportation under a separate cabinet officer.

Lack of Co-operation Charged.

Should that not be done, Howell said, "all our defense agencies, war, navy and air, should be consolidated under the direction of a National Defense Cabinet Ministry, with an assistant secretary assigned to each branch of the service."

He said aggressive opposition of the Army and Navy, with "each contending for independent operation," had blocked adoption of such a plan "before now."

Likewise he accused the Army and Navy of failing to cooperate "in plans, training and procurement."

Members of the Army high command have opposed a separate department for air.

Convention President

Underwood & Underwood. MRS. J. F. WEINMAN.

War of 1812 Daughters To Hold Session Here

The forty-third annual convention of the Daughters of the War of 1812 will be held at the Willard Hotel Sunday and Monday. Memorial services will be held Sunday at 2:30 p. m. at St. Thomas's Protestant Episcopal Church, preceding ceremonies at the grave of Christian Hines, 1812 war hero buried at Rock Creek Cemetery. Mrs. J. F. Weinman, of Little Rock, Ark., president of the Daughters, will preside, aided by Mrs. H. D. Sheppard, Hanover, Pa., chaplain. A banquet is scheduled Sunday night. Monday will be devoted to an open house, from 2 to 5 o'clock, and business sessions. National headquarters are at 1416 Rhode Island avenue northwest.

Grant Relics Stolen From Cabin Museum

St. Louis, April 16 (AP).—Relics once owned by Gen. U. S. Grant have been stolen from "Grant's Cabin" on the estate of the late August A. Busch, police said today.

Five old rifles were among the articles taken. The cabin, once occupied by Gen. Grant, had been converted into a museum for a private collection of the general's relics by the Busch family.

Arrests Bare Plot Against Duke Heiress

Third Man Sought as Police Uncover Extortion Ring in Harris Case.

By The Associated Press.

New York, April 16.—Details of an alleged $25,000 extortion plot aimed at Doris Duke Cromwell, one of the world's richest heiresses, were pieced together by police tonight following the arrest of two suspects.

The prisoners, Arthur Ulisse, 24, and Dominick Piloti, 25, walked into an elaborate police trap which had been set for the men, who were seeking to extort $5,000 from Mrs. George U. Harris, wife of a New York Stock Exchange governor.

Detectives said the procedure followed against Mrs. Harris was the same as that used last fall in an unsuccessful plot against the Duke heiress. In each case a letter was sent to the intended victim demanding money for the suppression of faked photographs purporting to show the subject in a compromising position.

As a result of information obtained from Ulisse and Piloti, police set out on a search for a third man, who was described by the two prisoners as the "brains" of the scheme.

Ulisse and Piloti, seized by detectives posing as house servants when they allegedly called at Mrs. Harris' home for the $5,000 yesterday, were held without bail on extortion charges.

New, Faster Evening Plane to CHICAGO

Only United offers the popular 4:30 P. M. departure with 8:35 P. M. arrival in Chicago. 3 other fast convenient schedules all the way in the popular 3-mile-a-minute Boeing. (Via connecting line to Cleveland).

Tickets: Washington Airport, ME 5436

Hotels: Travel Bureau; Telegraph Office

UNITED AIR LINES

75,000,000 MILES EXPERIENCE

Milk Must Have a Passport

A MILKMAN'S day begins at night.

While the city sleeps thousands of cows on distant farms are being milked.

The milk is put in cans and trucked to receiving stations. There it is weighed by employees of the dairy company. Other men test it for butter fat—the element that gives it richness.

Milk rides best when cool. That means refrigeration at the source.

By railroad and tank truck the morning's milk is hustled to urban distributing centers. Public health inspectors and the distributor's own inspectors check and recheck it.

Milk must have a perfect passport to enter your home.

O.K'd by the inspectors, the milk is passed into storage tanks—brine-jacketed turkeys big enough to hold thousands of quarts. The temperature is kept at 40° Fahrenheit.

From the receiving tanks the milk is put through a heater, 143° for thirty minutes, to kill harmful bacteria.

After reduction to 40° again it is ready for bottling.

The bottles have been sterilized for 30 minutes in washing machines. The biggest one can toss off 66,200 bottles in an 8-hour day.

A bustling conveyor rolls them up to the bottling machine. It thinks nothing of filling 8,400 bottles an hour.

Capped and cased, the bottles are ready to show milk what life is like in a great city.

Harry M. Brown

PRESIDENT

CHESTNUT FARMS—

CHEVY CHASE DAIRY

There is no need for a lot of whangdoodle talk about cigarettes—just plain common-sense

When you stop to think about your cigarette—what it means to you—here's about the way you look at it—

Smoking a cigarette gives a lot of pleasure—it always has.

People have been smoking and enjoying tobacco in some form or another for over 400 years.

Of course you want a cigarette to be made right. And naturally you want it to be mild. Yet you want it to have the right taste—and plenty of it.

In other words—you want it to Satisfy.

Scientific methods and ripe mild tobaccos make Chesterfield a milder and better-tasting cigarette. We believe you will enjoy them.

The Washington Post

Lyons Mayer, Publisher.
 Eugene MacLean, General Manager.
 Floyd R. Harrison, Comptroller.

The Associated Press is entitled exclusively to use for publication of all news items credited to it or otherwise credited in this paper and local news of continuous or special interest. Rights of reproduction of all other matter herein are also reserved.

OFFICE OF THE WASHINGTON POST.
 770 Madison Avenue
 New York, N. Y. 17. 77.50 Daily, 1 week 13c
 Daily only, 1 yr. 1.25 (Daily only, 1 week 10c)
 Sunday only, 1 yr. 2.50 (Sunday only, per copy 5c)

DELAVERED IN WASHINGTON.
 Daily, Sunday, 1 yr. 77.50 (Daily, 1 week 13c)
 Daily only, 1 yr. 1.25 (Daily only, 1 week 10c)
 Sunday only, 1 yr. 2.50 (Sunday only, per copy 5c)

BY MAIL—MARIETTA, VIRGINIA, WEST VIRGINIA AND NORTH CAROLINA.
 Daily and Sunday, 1 yr. 77.50 (Daily, 1 week 13c)
 Daily only, 1 yr. 1.25 (Daily only, 1 week 10c)
 Sunday only, 1 yr. 2.50 (Sunday only, per copy 5c)

OTHER STATES, MEXICO AND CANADA.
 Daily and Sunday, 1 yr. 77.50 (Daily, 1 week 13c)
 Daily only, 1 yr. 1.25 (Daily only, 1 week 10c)
 Sunday only, 1 yr. 2.50 (Sunday only, per copy 5c)

Entered at the Postoffice, Washington, D. C., as second-class mail matter.

TELEPHONE NATIONAL 4200.

Wednesday, April 17, 1935.

Catch Them Young.

Americans are properly disgusted when they read that the Nazis organize kindergarten children to wear the swastika and cry "Heil Hitler" in shrill treble. We feel the same way when the toddlers in Soviet Russia are lined up in Communist youth formations, and when Mussolini gives instructions that 8-year-olds must learn to handle rifles for the greater glory of Fascism.

Completely un-American, all that; completely discordant with the ideals of a country founded upon the conception of individual liberty, completely foreign to a political philosophy which maintains that the state should be the servant and not the master of its citizens.

Yet, at one of the D. A. R. meetings this week, Representative McSwain, chairman of the House Military Affairs Committee, advanced a thesis not so essentially different from that currently employed by alien dictators to discipline and direct the minds of children at an impressionable age. Predicting that the next war will be fought in the air, Mr. McSwain was quoted as urging that boys "who are now playing with toy airplanes in the living room" should be trained (presumably by the state) as fliers.

It is very easy to see the vicious aspects of governmental regimentation when it is operated by foreigners. It is not so easy, under the influence of patriotic emotion, to realize that at this time even America is far from immune from the same virus.

An organization with the great traditions implied in the name of Daughters of the American Revolution will not easily fall for the doctrine that almost from the cradle the lives of children should be molded according to the principles of European dictatorships. In the D. A. R., if anywhere in this country, one is entitled to expect an interpretation of patriotism more thoughtful and more inspiring than that which emanates from Moscow, Rome or Berlin.

What's The Rush?

With the current appointment of two politically prominent Baltimore lawyers as special attorneys, it now seems certain that at least the chairman of the special Senate committee to investigate the Virgin Islands will soon leave to scrutinize the administration of Gov. Paul Pearson. Whether Senator Tydings can persuade his colleagues to accompany him is not so certain. The abrupt resignation of Senator Clark suggests that there is not complete agreement as to the wisdom of the proposed junket.

Nor should there be. For the untimeliness of the investigation at this particular moment is glaringly apparent. Even though the Maryland Senator "hopes" the inquiry will necessitate only three weeks' absence, that period applied to a study of pending Federal legislation would offer far greater value to the Nation. Nor is Senator Tydings so long returned from the Philippines as to make another insular tour on his part seem immediately desirable to his constituents.

The country rightly regards Congressional investigations as effective curbs on otherwise unchecked departments of the Government. By the same token their use for partisan or political ends will not be tolerated. If there is any truth in the assertion that the administration of the Virgin Islands is "wasteful, extravagant, inefficient and tainted with corruption," no one will say that an inquiry is not in order. But the logical procedure would be to take testimony in Washington now from the responsible Administration officials, proceeding to the islands themselves when Congress has adjourned.

Provincial Self-Sufficiency.

In an address at the Town Hall Sunday evening, Prof. Harry D. Gideonse declared that domestic as well as international trade is menaced by the trend toward economic self-sufficiency. "Buy at home" movements, and laws providing that preference be given local products by purchasers for State governments, were cited as evidence of a progressive breakdown of free trade within the country.

While there is a logical connection between exclusionary trade policies designed to shut out foreign competition and the narrow nationalism that calls for patronage of home industries even at a sacrifice, constitutional prohibitions upon the levy of export and import duties by the States limit the extent of legal interference with the free flow of commerce. If it becomes apparent that any State is seeking to circumvent these prohibitions, the Constitution will provide protection against such usurpation of power.

During a period of depression, the social pressure to patronize home industry is unusually strong, but it is a factor that always has to be taken into account. So long as this provincial spirit is not developed to an absurd degree, it even has economic value, in protecting local industries against sudden shifts of custom that may be subsequently regretted. It seems unlikely that a mistaken kind of State or civic pride will in the future interfere seriously with a free flow of goods within the United States. Indeed, as State labor laws and protective legislation become more uniform, sectional competition will be placed on a fairer basis and the injunction to patronize home products will not be heard so often.

In trade with other countries, however, the arguments in favor of self-sufficiency are buttressed by a mistaken kind of nationalistic pride and by a failure to comprehend the mutually beneficial effects of free interchange of goods.

It's A Law Now.

Some members of Congress have suddenly found new interest in the public works program. Rumors that Governors may be permitted to administer expenditures within their States from the $4,886,000,000 fund sent a delegation scurrying to the White House. Members of Congress want to know if they are to be "kept in the dark" until allocations have been made.

If this measure were not so closely associated with the national welfare, this latest twist in its tortuous history would be merely comic. The House accepted this huge appropriation bill without attempting to scrutinize its provisions. Congressmen were given no inkling as to how the money would be spent. They were so eager to jump through the hoop at the presidential signal that they temporarily forgot about the patronage which this measure might provide. Now they are trying to overcome some of the results of their own neglect by lobbying at the White House.

Having acted in haste, members of the House should have time to repent at leisure. The public works resolution is now entirely out of their hands. When that measure was before Congress there was ample time for constructive legislative scrutiny. But that opportunity has passed. The legislative function having been completed, members of Congress are now entitled to no consideration whatever in the allocation of the funds.

After visiting the White House in an apparently futile attempt to make his influence over work-relief allotments felt, one Congressman expressed the belief that "some of the fellows around here" may start "using their own heads." It is a pity that the legislators of whom he is typical did not indulge that useful activity before surrender of legislative prerogatives and abdication of control over the Nation's purse strings.

The President has acquired full responsibility for expenditure of the work-relief fund and he must use his own best judgment, keeping aloof from political influence. The failure of Congress to function as a real legislative body must not be followed by failure of the President to exercise his executive prerogative unflinchingly. The country will be solidly behind every evidence that Mr. Roosevelt plans to pay a little less than no regard to congressional patronage ambitions in work-relief administration.

The Bonus In The Senate.

Delay in the introduction of Senator Harrison's compromise bonus bill suggests that Administration leaders in the Senate are again studying that measure with the object of mitigating the burden it would impose upon the Treasury. If unofficial reports are correct, there is a wide margin within which last-minute revisions may well be undertaken.

Any compromise that may be worked out in the Senate will be preferable to the Patman bonus-inflation bill passed by the House. It may be assumed that the Senate will reject the inflationary provisions of this measure. Even so, the enactment of a compromise bill requiring a large sum of money would put a severe strain upon the Treasury, following so closely behind the $4,886,000,000 public works resolution.

It is reported that the original Harrison bill would make the bonus payable in 1935. Instead of 1945, with a provision that veterans in need might immediately obtain cash minus interest over the next three years. This suggestion constitutes more of a surrender to the veterans' lobby than a compromise, for advancement of the maturity date of the bonus certificates by seven years would substantially increase the total outlay which the Government would be compelled to make. Certainly a plan of this general character calls for further scrutiny before it is formally presented to Congress as an Administration measure.

Charivari To The Sun.

The spirit of spring is definitely in the air, in spite of chilling northwest gales. Diaphanous dresses and sun-shading hats lend an encouraging, if somewhat mocking, note when glimpsed through show-windows misted by steam heat from the inside and errant snowflakes on the outside. It is part of the imperfect understanding between man and nature for the former to act as if everything were perfectly regular.

Now photographers are obliged to make hay whether the sun shines or no, and are optimistically in search of the traditional first crocus for the calendar-conscious rotogravure. All of which boils down to the inescapable fact that the time for the spring scene has arrived and the seasonal show must go on!

It is learned with regret, therefore, that New York's mayor has failed to get his cue and is apparently in league with the weather man to keep winter here as long as possible. For Mr. LaGuardia persists in abiding by his determination to dispense with spring's prime harbinger—the hurdy-gurdy! And what is even more irritating, facts corroborate his contention that the cheery hand organ has outlived its usefulness, both from a musical as well as a practical viewpoint. Even the most prejudiced old-timer must perform admit that there is little cultural value to be derived from its wheezy tunes. And metropolitan traffic hardly lends itself these days to childish dancing in the street.

But, after all, what has spring to do with facts? Perhaps that temperamental young lady is simply shivering in the wings, waiting to be wooed by the familiar strains of a half-tuned hurdy-gurdy. At least, it would be worth trying as a last resort. Everybody is getting a little out of patience, what with switching from heavies to thinners weaves and alternating umbrellas with muffs. This much is safe to say—only the undimmed cacophony of a hurdy-gurdy could hope to drown out the clamor of complaints that greets each day's cloudy skies.

Housing In Washington.

In some respects Representative Sabath's proposal that the Government construct apartment buildings to relieve the housing shortage in Washington is more reasonable than other plans to regulate rental charges. It is designed to increase existing facilities, while Government supervision over rents might discourage new housing construction and thus, in some measure, defeat its own purpose. Nevertheless, Mr. Sabath's plan must face a number of pertinent criticisms.

If Congress should decide to enter the housing business in Washington, at least a year would be required before new apartments could be designed and constructed. In the meantime private capital might well withdraw from new enterprises of this kind which the FHA is forwarding.

There is no lack of private capital to finance home and apartment building in the District. Activity in this field remains moderate primarily because of the uncertain status of those New Deal agencies which have brought thousands of employees temporarily to Washington. If real estate interests were certain that the present demand for housing would continue over a long period, building would doubtless be stimulated immediately. So long as the present uncertainty exists, however, the Government as well as private interests must proceed with caution. Some local companies have not yet emerged from the disastrous ruins resulting from the last overexpansion of apartment house facilities.

From the long-range viewpoint, the most important question raised by Mr. Sabath is whether the ownership and management of apartment houses in the National Capital is a proper function of the Government. The use of public funds to promote low-cost housing is justified because of the far-reaching social factors involved in slum clearance. But resort to the Government's taxing power, and its ability to command low interest rates, in providing apartments for favored groups with more than average incomes is an entirely different proposition. Concentration upon the development of adequate low-cost dwellings appears to offer far greater opportunities for community service.

To A Classicist.

There is no doubt in the columnar mind of Mr. Heywood Brown that communism is on the march in America. It has begun to take hold and multiply, he writes in the current issue of The Nation. "In fact," he adds with the chummy twinkle of an old alumnus who rather fancies himself as a bit of a rake, "at the moment it has displaced 'sex' as topic A in all the colleges."

Mercy on Mr. Brown! In your day did quotation marks sex (close quotation marks) rank as topic A? One would have gathered that those four glorious years "neath the elms had been quite completely given over to turtle-neck sweaters and raising hob on the square when the Yales' football team came to town. Casual inquiry among more recently graduated circles suggests that today Rabalais and Marx alike are considered old stuff even by sophomores, though it must be said that the anecdote and lusty ballad apparently are not to be shaken from their high position in undergraduate favor.

And if students are thinking seriously of communism, more power to them. They are not so easily duped, Mr. Brown, as you seem to imagine. The extremist case, whether Communist or Fascist, will probably receive no more intelligent criticism than from the challenging mind of the college student. It will do him good to sharpen his wits against enervating arguments of every type. And as a classical scholar, Mr. Brown, you should recall what Gibbon sadly said of the first followers of communismistic Plato, that: "The faint impression which had been received in the schools was soon obliterated by the commerce and business of active life."

A Chicago jeweler proposes that a special badge be given a person when he pays his taxes. It's something a taxpayer might appreciate wearing—if he had anything left to pin it on.

Samson And Delilah.

Letters To The Editor

On Masculine Susceptibility.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: As a sop to Cerberus, I will preface by saying I like to read Carlisle Barger's column—it is light, amusing and sufficiently ironic to give a tang—a species of hors d'oeuvres. But, apropos of the effusion of April 15, I think it possible that he is so firmly established in his own esteem as to affect not to pass the hat for admiration or flattery; but he can take it, now, and he will get there—he will get there with both feet—unless he dies of early palsy—which seems doubtful.

The writer has been in business among men for more years than she cares to mention, and has found that all men like it. The "big, strong, silent men" require a more skillful and subtle administration—perhaps a diffident concurrence, or a feeling look of admiration—and lean backward in trying not to strut; but to others it can be dished out like a ladleful of soft soap to a washing machine.

Perhaps the most all-conquering method is to give an earnest look of admiration, lasting about six seconds, into the patient's eyes, and then glance quickly away under drooping lids, with a shy smile. That appealing glance works wonders, and the only man known to pay tribute to a woman "who has no supplication in her eyes" was Emerson. All women know the tender susceptibility of the sterner sex and the reason they do not use it more is that some are not predatory. BIG BUSINESS GIRL. Washington, April 15.

Brickbats For The U. S. E. S.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: No more worthless effort and bureaucratic ineptitude exists in our Government's well-meant plans than the employment service of the Department of Labor.

Set up in the main to adjust, reclassify and orient the unemployed to prevailing labor conditions with first thought at finding work for them, its only service so far is the proof of its inability and impossibility of purpose.

They can't get you work if it

The Post welcomes letters from its readers. All communications must be signed with the writer's name and address. Upon publication initials or pen names will be used if requested. Letters are subject to condensation, and in no case should they exceed 250 words.

"Efficiency Ratings."

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The commission has read with approval the constructive comment in your editorial on the subject of "Efficiency Ratings" in The Washington Post of April 8, 1935, and desires to take this opportunity to express its appreciation for your support of the merit system in the public service. H. B. MITCHELL, LUCILLE FOSTER MILLIN, LEONARD D. WHITE, Commissioners of the United States Civil Service Commission. Washington, April 11.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I wish to express my appreciation of the exceptionally well-written editorial in The Post of Monday, April 8, on the subject of efficiency ratings. It shows an unusual insight into the problem. The presentation is one of the best that has come to my attention. L. J. O'Rourke, Director, President's Council on Personnel Administration.

doesn't exist—but that's the point. Why set up a string of employment centers and spend $3,000,000 to do nothing? No one can have confidence in its classifications as no examination is given and no proof is asked of the applicants' competency.

If with these coming public works projects the President would group among "made work" all existing defunct bureaus, commissions and administrations, kept now for no other purpose than to fill office space, he would relieve himself and his Administration of doubt and establish a new standard of administrative usefulness. SAMUEL ROSENFELD, Washington, April 10.

The District Primary Proposal.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I am writing, as author of the bill for a presidential primary law for the District of Columbia, introduced in the Senate (S. 2012), by Senator Copeland and in the House (H. R. 5443), by Mrs. Norton, to urge the influence of your paper in demanding an end to the delay in action on this bill and call upon Congress for its early enactment into law. Your paper went on record last year as being definitely behind this bill.

The people want it. They have given expression to this in as many ways as the peculiar condition of their citizenship permits; that is to say, through the Citizens Association, the various political clubs, the Association of Government Employees and other organizations and political leaders.

Besides the editorials of your paper last year, other dailies have all at one time or another editorially endorsed this bill, which is intended to, and which they believe will, correct the deplorable condition existing in the Nation's Capital, by which its residents, already deprived of legislative representation, are condemned to nonrepresentation in the National political conventions.

In a word, public opinion in Washington demands the relief sought by this bill, which, however, owing to the pressure of business of more general import is very apt to be pushed aside by the present Congress again. However, if given an opening, its passage would be, I am sure, but a routine matter.

Nevertheless, this bill has apparently been pigeon-holed, as no action whatever has been taken upon it in either house, although it was introduced more than two months ago. It is a matter of common knowledge around the city that certain pseudo-politicians are exerting every effort to prevent the passage of this bill, which is conclusive evidence of the iniquity of the system they represent and hope to perpetuate, and the reason, of course, is that the enactment of this vitally needed legislation will sound their local political doom.

I trust, therefore, that in the light of civic decency, as well as your generally appreciated regard for the desires of the residents of the District of Columbia, you will exercise with all force the power of your paper to bring about the speedy passage of this bill.

JOHN P. MULLEN, Washington, April 13.

The Friends Of Mr. Baker.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I believe in handing flowers to people while they are alive and can enjoy them. So, here is a bouquet for your Mr. Morgan Baker, editor of the Federal Diary.

When I came to Washington to reside some months ago, all the papers here looked pretty much the same to me. I didn't care which one I bought. However, gradually I began to find myself asking for The Post for no other reason than it had Baker's Federal Diary in it. I had come here after a Government job and I found that Baker's column packed more real news about Federal departments in a comparatively small space than I could find in all the pages of other local newspapers.

So, reading Baker's Federal Diary has become a habit with me. I am told that Mr. Baker has become the "father confessor" of many Government workers who look to him, through the instrumentality of The Post, to help them right wrongs and get a square deal where such a thing might not be forthcoming. Mr. Baker probably has more friends among the Government workers than any other newspaperman in Washington.

Mr. Morgan Baker's Federal Diary is the sort of intelligent, constructive newspaper work that strengthens the tie between a newspaper and its readers. It's too bad there are not more like Mr. Baker. A. L. DUNN, Washington, April 13.

Delinquent Tax Rate.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Regarding that high delinquent tax interest rate, we who are up against it have to pay 12 per cent a year, and if we run over one day we have to pay for a full month, or an added 1 per cent. To meet more pressing needs my taxes have been unpaid. Why shouldn't it be reduced to 9 per cent a year, which would have ample penalty, no charge only the actual number of days.

I hope some considerate Congressman or Senator will be good enough to look into this.

DELINQUENT, Washington, April 11.

"The Glory That Was Jones."

"The tumult and the shouting dies, the captains and the kings depart." The second "masters' tournament" on Augusta's Euclidean course is history. The "bow of Ulysses" has been bent like a waxen weed. Only an epilogue remains.

Let us sit at the tomb of Bobby Jones' greatness. A year ago at the dedication, they expected him to remount the throne voluntarily abdicated. The old skill was wanting. The experts, having drowned their disappointment, looked across the brims of glasses tall and frosted and found comfort in the vision of '23.

The julep has its qualities, but it is no crystal ball. Deep in the ruck of mediocrity, his robes of invincibility in tatters, the glory that was Jones is one with the glory that was Greece. And this abject confession is reported: "When I get down in two putts now from 10 feet, I am tickled to death."

Let "the merry men of circumstance" shout, "Long live the king!" The charter members of solemnity mutter to themselves, "Emperor Jones is all washed up." (St. Louis Post-Dispatch.)

The Post Impressionist

Social Note—Of a Sister

Post Office, Wednesday.

DESPITE all the advance of feminism on a world-front, precious little is heard about the women folk of Europe's newest rulers.

There's not much gets into print concerning the ladies of Stalin's entourage. Very little is published on the subject of Signora Mussolini. Perhaps this is as it should be. Yet the iniquitousness of mankind equals mankind's gregariousness. So the Column is relieved to be able to report that Fraulein Paula Hitler, of Vienna, is giving up her apartment in the Schonburgstrasse and is moving to suburban Döbling.

One of our European correspondents in Europe sends us this vital piece of news. Need we add that the Fraulein Paula, Austrian citizeness, is the youngest sister of Austrian-born bachelor Adolf Hitler, Chancellor of the German Reich?

The contemplated shift of address must be something of a domestic revolution for Fraulein Hitler. She has lived in a flat at 33 Schonburgstrasse ever since 1919, although not always in the same flat. She came there, a young girl just under 20, in company with her sister, Frau Raupal, then widowed, and leaves, still unmarried, at the age of 35.

The house is not distinguished, but at first the girl and the woman occupied one of the best apartments it provided on the second story, with a generous balcony. They led a simple and retired life, occasionally had some relative or other to visit them—among whom, however, brother Adolf seems never to have figured—and, once in a long while, had a neighbor in for a meal.

They went out rarely. With the political life of Austria, let alone that of Germany, they maintained no observable contact whatever. Not even the first growth of the Nazis in the north seemed to affect the even tenor of their ways, nor did their house-acquaintances connect these lodgers with the German Nazi leader.

Nevertheless, there at last arrived a brusque change. It arrived immediately upon the establishment of the Third Reich. To the stupefaction of the janitor, the mail-carrier began to leave letters postmarked "Berlin," across the long envelopes of which was printed the legend: "Secretariat of the Chancellor of State."

At once, the whole house began to ask questions of these quiet sisters. At once, the sisters very properly became even more reserved than theretofore.

"Now," the neighbors unanimously predicted, "these good women will be moving into quarters fitting the estate of real ladies of importance."

Well, this didn't happen—quite. At least, it didn't happen in quite the sense, or to quite the extent, which was expected.

For only Frau Raupal moved out of the house—and that not until about a year later.

She, to be sure, was summoned to Berlin to preside over the marriage of the German Reichsführer. And she obeyed the summons. But Fraulein Hitler? All the best of the sisters' furniture Fraulein Hitler did indeed move to a storage-warehouse. Yet herself she moved upstairs in the old Schonburgstrasse house. She rented a room in its attic.

The Column's informant—who, we may as well admit, is Leon Herman, a Viennese journalist connected with the Paris Soir—writes somewhat thus:

"No 53 Schonburgstrasse is a house of very bourgeois appearance. On the ground floor—a locksmith's shop and a coal merchant's. But there is a dressmaker's above, patronized by an elegant clientele, and there are apartments occupied by a Herr Doktor and a lawyer. There are four floors and an attic. "The attic landing gives on a space where the servants of the house hang out the linen to dry. It faces also a narrow door. Behind that door lodges Fraulein Paula Hitler."

Vienna whispered that she chose this room because of necessity. Vienna said her brother neglected her. Herr Herman climbed the narrow stairs and knocked on the narrow door—to find out.

The intruder's unwilling hostess gave him an ocular examination that was scarcely favorable. "Yes," she replied to his queries. "I am a sister of Adolf Hitler; his youngest sister. But I am a private person. I have absolutely nothing to do with politics—and I don't give interviews. As for being in poverty, that piece of gossip is a lie. Then the scrutiny must have acquired greater severity, for the door closed with this declaration: "But I have not anything to spare for beggars."

You may have remarked that this Column generally exhibits a certain coldness toward the Reichsführer. But we confess to some degree of sympathy with his sister—on this occasion. Anyhow, we don't wonder that she is changing her address!

Fate Of China Hangs On Loan Maneuvering

U. S. Silver Purchase Policy Adds to Troubles of Nation Hard Hit by Depression.

By Mark J. Ginsburg.
Special Correspondence of The Post.

A MOST exciting diplomatic game is being played today in the Orient, with China's fate hanging on the outcome. It began last December, when the Nanking government, under the pressure of Japan and economic circumstance, concluded an agreement with the Japanese military authorities on various North China issues, including the resumption of postal, railroad and telegraph communications with Manchukuo.

Simultaneously the Nanking government made an opening bid, asking London for a $200,000,000 loan to aid China in her economic distress. This is on the authority of Sir John Simon, who explained in the House of Commons that Great Britain did not at that time regard the request favorably.

In appealing to Whitehall, Nanking undoubtedly banked on the psychological effect on Great Britain of the Sino-Japanese agreement in Peiping. It is still uncertain whether China has made a similar request to Washington, although there are reports that Prof. Buck's recent trip to the United States, as "an adviser to the Chinese Department of Agriculture," was not unconnected with China's fiscal problems.

According to Japanese reports, Nanking did approach the local branch of the Chase National Bank, and also asked one of the two American advisers attached to the ministry of finance (Dr. Lockhart and Arthur Young) to transmit the appeal for aid to Washington. An unofficial request for a loan was also made to the all-powerful British Hongkong and Shanghai Banking Corporation, according to Japanese reports, declined the request under pressure from London. In the annual bank report, however, one of the directors intimated that the bank was quite pleased with its previous loan ventures in China and was looking forward to "more ambitious schemes."

HAVING failed in its first attempt, Nanking did not despair. Negotiations continued with Japan. Late in January, Minister Arita, accompanied by his military attaché, visited Nanking for conversations with the central government's leaders. Japan's Col. Lawrence, Maj. Gen. Kenji Doihara paid a visit to China, as the unofficial secretary of the war office. China's World Court judge, Wang Chung-hui, went to Japan for three weeks of amiable conversations with Nippon's ministers and generals.

Sensational reports of Sino-Japanese rapprochement, whether authentic or inspired, had their effect on Downing street. British diplomats began to feel out the ground in Tokyo, Washington and Paris. In Nanking, Sir Alexander Cadogan, British minister to China, no longer declared that Britain would decline to grant a loan but asked the nationalist government to submit a description of purposes for which such a loan would be used.

The British scheme was extremely ingenious. London apparently reasoned that were Japan permitted to monopolize political philanthropy in China, other powers might just as well pack their Oriental belongings and seek a port of refuge in East Asia. It was necessary either to aid China over Japan's head, or through an international consortium, of which Japan would be a member, controllable by the other participants.

JAPAN, however, is seldom caught napping. As soon as the idea of an international loan was broached here, she came out in determined opposition, declaring that such a step would lead to an international control of China, and asserting that China needed no loan.

An official statement issued on March 6 by Mr. Shigemitsu, vice minister for Foreign Affairs, said: "Japan has so far not received any overtures from China regarding loans and she has no intention at present to give consent to any such proposals. But there may be room for consideration if China approaches Japan with a request for loans which will be used for recovery purposes."

"Japan will flatly refuse to participate in a discussion to give international economic assistance to China, as such a step would be tantamount to making China a colony of the senior powers. Only when the powers make negotiations individually for the giving of assistance to China, Japan would gladly take part."

Official circles also declared that China could regain stability only through Sino-Japanese cooperation, and that she did not really want foreign aid, for "God helps those who help themselves."

The matter stands there now, with China playing Japan against the other members of the dead but not forgotten 1920 consortium. Meanwhile, the depression wolf is making Nanking's position, to put it mildly, very uncomfortable.

The United States silver purchase policy has already pumped this country's metal out to the extent that only 60 per cent of China's currency is now secured by silver. The world economic depression has cut heavily into China's trade, with foreign merchants aided by the rise in price of silver and the devaluation of their own currencies.

The heavy military expenditures of the central government, amounting to $30,000,000 Chinese dollars, or almost a half of the budget (after deducting $25,000,000 for loan service), add a burden to Nanking's shoulders. This year's budgetary deficit will probably exceed $100,000,000, with Gen. Chiang Kai-shek's new military campaigns in west China demanding more money, and with the Shanghai capitalists, who foot the government's bills, near their last breath. With collapse of the monetary system a distinct possibility, plans for the rejuvenation of the Chinese dollar call for an expenditure of at least

Along The Potomac

With Carlisle Barger

The Show Will Go On.

THE Senate moved quickly yesterday to repair the most serious of its faults in the Third Economy. For more than two years now we have gone along without any thought to what might happen in the event of an unforeseen catastrophe.

Ch. $500,000,000, which the government does not have. China's financial troubles provide adequate explanation of why this country wants a large foreign loan. Yet, many and serious objections are advanced here to the idea of such a loan.

THERE is more than a grain of truth in Japan's statement that a large international loan to China would lead to this country's financial vassalage. In granting the loan foreign powers would naturally seek to secure it in some manner. This quite legitimate desire would lead to a partial control of China's finances, and thus restrict China's freedom of political action.

The uses to which the loan would be put also present a problem. If the Nanking government utilizes borrowed funds to cover its deficit, caused by the military expenditures, or to subsidize new anti-Communist crusades (in the course of which Gen. Chiang extends the sphere of his influence), the loan will not alleviate China's economic distress. If the funds are used to stimulate internal trade and construction, it may lead to an increase in governmental expenditures at a time when rigid economy is essential.

There is also the warning uttered by the Shun Pao, a leading Chinese daily, that "in the past loans have been devoted to political use and appropriated by individuals in the government. That practice should not be repeated."

All these considerations apparently do not disturb the government, which, faced by the ghost of financial breakdown, continues to press for a loan. Dr. H. H. Kung, China's finance minister, declared at a recent press interview:

"Since the world depression and the adoption by America of her silver purchase policy, China's silver has taken rapid flight, thus seriously affecting the social and economic structure, and creating a stagnant market."

"Friendly countries, with their own interests in view, are hoping the market will be stabilized at an early date. They have, therefore, indicated their willingness to extend a loan. Our people, in the hope that the government will thus be enabled to relieve the financial situation and stabilize the market, are in favor of this. Negotiations for the loan have taken place previously and are being continued."

IT is difficult to indicate remedies which can aid China in lieu of the loan. Perhaps a readjustment of China's foreign trade, with a view of eliminating the enormous unfavorable balance, would turn the trick. The Central Political Council has just made a step in this direction, by approving the issuance of $100,000,000 worth of bonds to encourage domestic industry, and by proposing to reduce export duties and abolish the transit levies.

But in the international card game being played in the Orient today the loan is not a trump card. Japan, with her proximity to Nanking, with her mailed fist in Kwangtung, with her cheap goods, and with her readiness to take "positive action" at a moment's notice, holds all the trumps.

Musical Events Listed For Good Friday Here

Among the musical events of Good Friday evening will be the presentation of Maunders' "Olivet to Calvary" by the choir of Luther Place Memorial Church, under the direction of Cornelia Long Kin-sella. The soloists will be Mrs. George J. Chaillet, Mrs. Mitchell A. Marques, Paul Ledig and Harry Yeide.

"The Crucifixion" will be sung by the choir of the Church of the Epiphany, under the direction of Adolf Torovsky, with Ray Baine and Ambrose Durkin as soloists.

Selections from Haydn's "The Seven Words of Christ" will be sung by Les Fauvettes, under the direction of Augustus King-Smith, in conjunction with the performance of Strindberg's play, "Easter," in the Wardman Park Theater.

Fund Effort Is Urged. Continuation of a "quiet effort" to complete the National Symphony Orchestra's drive for funds for the 1935-6 season was urged yesterday by Dr. William McClellan, who presided at a luncheon attended by 40 members of the campaign committee at the Carlton Hotel.

"I told him he looked like Clark Gable—but he gave me a 'chick' anyway!"

Tri-State Gallery

HARRY WHINNA NICE, Governor of Maryland... only third Republican to hold that office since Civil War... staged a remarkable political come-back... defeated by Albert C. Ritchie for the governorship in 1919 by 165 votes, bided his time, out-manuevered old guard Republican leaders to get his party's nomination last year and defeated the four-term Ritchie... shortly after inauguration confessed he did not like the job, which chiefly has been one of balancing a budget in face of increasing deficits and hostile Legislature... orates with a tremor in his voice and in youth had reputation for making juries weep... gray-haired and round... born in Washington, son of Methodist preacher... married and father of one son... in 57 years has had varied career... served once as secretary to Mayor of Baltimore... became election supervisor... appointed assistant State's attorney and later State's attorney for Baltimore... judge Appeals Tax Court... general law practitioner... now mentioned as possible Republican candidate for Vice President as result of fishing trip (his favorite sport) last week with former President Herbert Hoover.

Such a large proportion of those who have been pictured by Mr. Robles have asked for the originals that The Washington Post is saving all these drawings to honor the requests of any future members of "The Tri-State Gallery."

Once Overs
By H. L. Phillips.
The Brain and the Electric Pencil.
"Thoughts in a human brain were harnessed to an electric pencil and made to write their record by Harvard Medical School scientists. Highly sensitive electrically-detecting apparatus were attached to the head of volunteers. When a problem was given to a volunteer and he began to think, the electric pencil immediately scribbled curious patterns." News item.

Elmer Twitthell volunteered to submit to the electric pencil test this morning.

"Are you all set?" the professor asked as he completed the task of wiring Elmer's head for the test. "I think so," said Elmer.

"How much is 1 times 30?" demanded the professor.

(Note: The electric pencil swung into furious action. It scribbled a pattern that looked like an effort to make a street map of Boston, Mass., with heavy black lines denoting trolley lines. From time to time the pencil nipped off the paper and scratched telephone numbers on the mahogany desk. It was evident that Elmer was thinking very hard. Suddenly the pencil transcribed a pattern for a Japanese kimono, drew a head of a chorus girl and put down the name "Mabel-3567 ring 4.")

"Have you got it?" asked the professor.

"Got what?" asked Elmer.

"The answer," said the professor. "I didn't even get the question," stammered Mr. Twitthell.

A couple of extra wires were plugged into Elmer behind the left ear, some more water put in the cells.

"Concentrate," ordered the professor. "What will $350.65 amount to if put in the bank at 6 per cent, compound interest for 11 years?"

(The electric pencil swung into action again. The professor watched the paper intently. At the end of five minutes the pencil had set down something that appeared to be a statement of Government finances by Jim Farley, and a chart showing recent car loadings west of the Mississippi.)

"What's the answer?" demanded the professor.

"Hastings, October 14, 1066," replied Elmer.

It was evident that something was wrong with Elmer or with the electrically-detecting apparatus, for the trouble was due to a deposit of shaving soap on Elmer's ear, causing a short circuit. The ear was dried and the wire inserted again.

"Rooney has raised the price of newly mined silver to 71.1 cents an ounce," said the professor. "This is an increase of 7.02 cents. One-fourth of the people of the world used silver as a medium of exchange. How much is that in our money?"

Blue flames shot from the top of Mr. Twitthell's cranium, and the pencil popped out of the holder. There was a suffocating odor of burning rubber. Every light in the room went out. Great confusion reigned until somebody procured a kerosene lamp. A strange sight met the eyes of the experts. Elmer's head had come off and was in the pencil-holder. The pencil was between Elmer's shoulders where his head should have been.

"Well, anyhow," apologized the professor, "you folks get the general idea."

Yoohee, Herbert!

Elmer Twitthell is one of the few people who think Herbert Hoover will have a swell chance for the Presidency in 1936. "I would run him on the slogan, 'Hoover for President! It will take an engineer to identify the parts and put them together again!'" he said today.

By the end of 1936, Elmer thinks, the trouble we had under Hoover will seem relatively like a mere half an inning of bad pitching in a ball game between the married and the single men.

Two hundred million dollars will be spent by the Government to eliminate grade crossings so the railroads on their rush to bankruptcy won't be delayed by motorists.

Add smiles as futile as a student parade against war.

Copyright, 1935, by Associated Newspapers.

unimportant. The best thing which this book teaches us is to look and to see. And for ourselves.

Junior Dictionary

By Wm. Lyon Phelps

PROF. E. L. THORNDIKE has prepared an excellent dictionary of a little less than 1,000 pages, which is called a Junior Dictionary, because it is intended for boys and girls. It would be an acceptable and excellent gift for any schoolboy or schoolgirl, for the material—that is, the words, pronunciations, definitions, etc.—are all very clearly set down. Usual words and technical words are omitted, and there are plenty of illustrations.

The brief prefatory matter consists of the following paragraphs: To the Pupil, To the Teacher, The Selection of Words, Teaching the Meaning of Words, Teaching the Spelling of Words, Teaching the Pronunciation of Words, Preparing Children to Use an Adult or "Big" Dictionary, Protection Against Eyestrain.

These paragraphs are followed by Notes on the Use of the Dictionary, with separate paragraphs as follows: Changes in the Form of Words, Restrictions of Usage, Cross References, and the Key to Pronunciation.

This is a very easy dictionary to use, and I should think many adults could profitably use it in business offices.

It is published by the D. Appleton-Century Co.

Copyright, 1935.

No End of Books

Natchez And Magnolia In The Deep South; Photographed By A Gentleman From San Francisco.

By Theodore Hall.

The "Deep South," as a phrase, I hear, is Joseph Hergeshimer's invention. He should have put a patent on it and the royalties would have kept him rolling in clover without the necessity of fashioning another smooth and unctuous line.

For the Deep South is one of our best literary properties. How many readers of the moonlight-roses-and-magnolia school? How many readers, for example, have taken "So Red the Rose" to their bosom that even their telephone order to the butcher of a gray morning turned sourly and magnificently?

Unlike to many literary estates, the moonlight and roses are real. Around about this time of year, depending on the weather, a good many people go down to see for themselves what the Deep South was and is like. They're welcomed by Pilgrimage Week in the place.

I dare say, where magnolia was copyrighted—Natchez, Miss. It's a small town still (about 13,000—half of them Negro, and almost as quiet as the day 50 years ago or so, when the citizens asked a railroad for funds to bring the main line through town, offered it the same sum to stay out. You can get in now by a branch line. In a day-coach, hitched at the end of a freight train with a few more or less to go 100 miles. As for Natchez—under-the-hill, its heyday is over. Where once, on the river, below the 300-foot bluffs, were dives and honkeytonks whose roaring could be heard from New Orleans, there is now only a quiet and empty street.

WE have all sorts of arts and crafts books, but it takes The Studio, N. Y., to distinguish a topic. Latest number in their "How To Do It" series is "Making a Photograph."

($3.50)—a manual of the art from start to finish, not exhaustive enough for professionals, but subtly and ably direct for the amateur who wants to produce fine prints, grimey Wees, or the like. It is a many a salon wall; here he shows his skill in explanatory text and especially in photographs which illustrate focus, alter, perspective, composition, and so on. There are full descriptions of equipment, diagrams of ideal dark-rooms, chemical tables, and notes on the varieties of photography from action to advertising. And the numerous "final draft" photographs, printed on lacquered paper so that you'd think they were actual prints, are breath-takingly superb.

"In a sense," he says, "all photography is documentary"—that is, it presents the culture and social scene of the time. This is most evident in a print of a bread-line, less so (but still strikingly) in a scene of one of the cracked and tarnished pseudoclassic statues in Suro Gardens, San Francisco, taken against a background of the Pacific shoreline—"the emotional impact of this picture," he remarks, "lies in the juxtaposition of a definitely dated element and a timeless naturalistic one, plus satirical connotations of a sufficiently remote period of culture."

The photographer, by his choice and import, can't help but step in you see. Which rather puts a damper on Edward Weston's well-meaning but testy sentences in the foreword: "Self-expression is an objectification of one's deficiencies and inhibitions. In the austere discipline of camera technique the artist can become identified with the whole of life and realize a more complete expression."

But the friction over the point is

Taxes Like Britain's Might Balance Budget

Superficial Comparisons Of British And American Situation Are Misleading, However.

By Elliott Thurston.

THE proverbial odiousness of comparisons does not discourage the drawing of them. And ever since the British emerged from the worst of the depression a favorite pastime has been to compare British with American "recovery," invidiously to the latter. The latest occasion for unpleasant contrasts is the none-too-happy coincidence that Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau's broadcast on the state of the Nation's finances preceded by but a few hours Chancellor of the Exchequer Chamberlain's announcement that the British budget has been balanced for the second successive year, with a prospective surplus of some $28,000,000, and that income taxes in the lower brackets would be reduced as examples of relief.

This, however, is particularly odious comparison because even with the reductions, the British tax rate is something terrific. Exact statistical comparisons are difficult and prone to error, but the New York Times presented yesterday a table which undertakes to show that the British income tax, even under the proposed reductions, is several times heavier than the Federal and New York State income taxes combined. Inferentially—though this is not so easy to demonstrate statistically—if our taxes were at all comparable we would have a balanced budget, too, and a surplus to spare.

THE Times figures, for example, making comparisons between the new British rates and those for the Federal Government and New York State as they affect, in each case, an earned income of $4,650, show that a single Britisher would pay $684.85 as compared with $138.40 paid to the United States and $115.50 paid to New York State under our rates. Similarly, a British couple, without children, would pay $880.50 as against $74.80 for the Federal and $70.00 for the New York income tax; a British married couple with one child would pay $534.70 compared to $58.50 on the Federal and the same amount on the New York tax; a British married couple with two children would pay $480.15 as against $42.36 on the Federal, $31 on this New York tax.

Much the same ratio prevails throughout. Moreover, the British tax reaches much further down the income scale. Thus, on an income of but $70 the new British tax is $21.60, while Americans pay nothing either to the Federal and New York treasuries; a British married couple without children must pay $150.35 on an income of $24.25, whereas no tax would be put on that income either to the United States or to New York—and so on.

THIS is not to suggest that the unbalance of the American budget ought to be accepted with complacency—as indeed it is not. Nevertheless, it seems to this sideline that the current "cult of gloom" badly exaggerates the case, or at least does not present it reasonably. It is contended that the British in order to balance the budget or that we should reduce our expenditures to fit our present national income? Manifestly most of those who complain the loudest about the Federal deficits are not agitating for higher taxes. They would be horrified at the thought of paying the British income rates. They want to reduce expenses. And this is by no means the easy question that it is too often taken to be.

No candid observer of the scene will deny that there has been a waste of funds, but it is far from certain that the waste has been scandalous or even excessive for politically administered democratic processes of handing out money. It is not so much a matter of waste as of prudence, and here argument inevitably divides almost hopelessly. It gets back to the question of the role versus made work, with all the elaboration of arguments on both sides. In the end, it seems fair to conclude that while the present rate of spending, Federally and locally, could not doubt be considerably reduced, it does not, as yet, justify the panicky alarm so often sounded, that the country was willing to endure the taxation imposed in England our budget could be balanced in all probability.

YET few business men would approve of imposing such necessary taxes to balance the budget at once. They prefer to have more recovery first, which, in turn, will yield greater revenues. It is doubtless true that an attempt to levy the necessary taxes at this time would be a heavy blow to the continuance of business revival. On the other hand, it is at least open to argument whether it is either politically possible or economically vital to reduce expenditures sufficiently at this time to achieve a balance.

The pressures for achieving a balance especially of the Federal budget undoubtedly should not be relaxed; but those who are most concerned would be more effective if, instead of drawing superficial comparisons with the British, they would address themselves to the American political-economic situation by itself and suggest, practically, plans for balancing tax income with a reduced outgo. To cut out to fit present income is politically out of the question for this or any other Administration at this time. To impose taxes to cover outgo is equally undesirable, and perhaps undesirable.

Somewhere in between, perhaps, is the happy medium. It would be far more helpful all around if viewers-with-lamp would search for instead of pointing without aid and with much passion to the incomparable British situation.

Bay Bridge Bill Veto Is Sought At Annapolis

Commissioners Tell Gov. Nice They Oppose New Expenditure.

By The Associated Press.

Annapolis, April 16.—The board of Anne Arundel County commissioners today went on record as favoring the veto of the pending Chesapeake Bay bridge bill by Gov. Harry W. Nice.

The board acted after receiving a letter from A. Charles Stewart, president of the Western Shore Association of Commissioners, urging a veto of the measure.

Stewart, who also is president of the Board of Allegany County Commissioners, wrote:

"While we are not entirely familiar with the details of the Chesapeake Bay bridge legislation, after conferring with several of the boards of county commissioners of the Western Shore we find that they are all in accord with our position in the matter, namely, if this project is to entail any cost to the counties of the State of Maryland, we are absolutely opposed to its being enacted by the Governor's signature."

"We are, therefore, writing to ask the cooperation of your board in bringing whatever influence you may have to bear upon the Governor asking for his veto of this measure."

Church Auxiliary Opens Convention

Delegates at Winchester Hear Dr. Fulton.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Winchester, Va., April 16.—The Presbyterian Church here is making great effort to bring it out of the depression years, Dr. Darby Fulton, D. D., of Nashville, Tenn., told delegates to the annual meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary of Winchester Presbytery, which opened its annual session here last night.

Dr. Fulton, executive secretary of foreign missions, discussed work the Presbyterian Church is doing in the foreign field. Already, he pointed out, there are indications that the church is gaining ground in the fight against adverse economic conditions.

Miss Laura Campbell, of Charles Town, W. Va., discussed work being done at Massanutta Springs. Others who participated in the program were Dr. R. B. Woodward, of Petersburg, W. Va., and Mrs. C. D. Hawpe, of Lexington, synodical president, and the Rev. R. B. Campbell, pastor of Highland Avenue Church, More than 300 persons are attending the meeting.

West Virginia Realty Session Set Thursday

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Morgantown, W. Va., April 16.—West Virginia realtors will hold their sixteenth annual convention here Thursday. Henry E. Mulligan, of Fairmont, is president of the organization.

The program includes addresses by O. S. Hawkins, State director of the Federal Housing Administration; Earl A. Arford, of Uniontown; and J. R. Brady, secretary of the Pittsburgh real estate board.

The program includes addresses by O. S. Hawkins, State director of the Federal Housing Administration; Earl A. Arford, of Uniontown; and J. R. Brady, secretary of the Pittsburgh real estate board.

Other Handbags, from $3.00. Let our Expert pack your luggage. There is no charge. Agents Oshkosh Luggage.

Camalier & Buckley The Leatherware

1141 Conn. Ave. 2 doors above the Metrocenter Expert Repairing

An Ideal Easter Gift For Her

This snappy, up-to-the-minute bag is for the good dresser. Has compartment for cigarettes, lighter, vanity, change, and bills—as well as room for other things.

$7.50

Other Handbags, from $3.00. Let our Expert pack your luggage. There is no charge. Agents Oshkosh Luggage.

Camalier & Buckley The Leatherware

1141 Conn. Ave. 2 doors above the Metrocenter Expert Repairing

Throng Attends Funeral Rites For Dr. Unger

Services for Educator Are Conducted by Bishop of Maryland.

Westminster, Md., April 16.—A throng of State and county officials, school teachers, pupils, patrons and others Dr. H. M. S. Unger had known during his lifetime paid final tribute today to the Carroll County educator.

The Ascension Episcopal Church was filled half an hour before the funeral services began. Every educational, Department of State, many of the institutions of higher learning and ten county boards of education were represented.

The faculties and many from the student bodies of several schools of Carroll County attended out of respect for the man who had been their superintendent of education for 19 years.

The funeral was the most largely attended one held here in many years. More than 60 floral designs were brought into the church, sent from all sections of the State.

Services were conducted by the Right Rev. Edward T. Helfenstein, Bishop of Maryland, assisted by the Rev. H. G. C. Martin, pastor of the church, and the Rev. Thurston N. Null of near Fairmont. Burial was in the Westminster Cemetery.

Dr. Unger died Saturday at a Baltimore Hospital after a brief illness.

T. D. Campbell.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Piedmont, Va., April 16.—Funeral services will be held tomorrow for Thomas D. Campbell, 58, for 11 years mayor of Piedmont. Masonic rites will be observed.

Mr. Campbell was a past master of Allegany Lodge, of Barton, Md., where he was born. The Rev. P. Paul Harris, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal Church of Barton, will officiate, assisted by the Rev. Alfred W. Eppard, pastor of the Presbyterian Church here, of which Mr. Campbell was an elder. Interment will be at Philom Cemetery, Westminster, Md.

Mr. Campbell was president of the Campbell & Laurel Valley Coal Companies and the Piedmont Grocery Co. He was a director in the Liberty Trust Co. of Cumberland, Md.; Citizens National Bank, Westernport, Md.; First National Bank, Piedmont, and First National Bank, Barton. He was an active Republican and served for four years as president of the Mineral County Court. He operated two grocery stores in Piedmont and one at Westernport.

Surviving are his widow, the former Miss Jennie MacDonald, and five brothers, John Campbell, Washington, D. C.; Joseph Campbell, Akron, Ohio; James Campbell, Westernport; Dr. W. D. Campbell, Hagerstown, Md.; and Dr. George D. Campbell, Lonsdale, Md. His father, the late James Campbell, served in the Union Army. He was a member of the Maryland House of Delegates several terms and filled Federal positions in Baltimore and Washington.

Mrs. Fannie D. Ott.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Harrisonburg, Va., April 16.—Funeral services for Mrs. Fannie D. Ott, 81, wife of Harrisonburg's oldest merchant, and mother of E. Dulaney Ott, prominent attorney, will be held at her home Wednesday with interment in Woodbine Cemetery.

Mrs. Ott, who died yesterday, had been in poor health for ten years. She was active in Confederate societies and in the Presbyterian Sunday School. Her husband, Lewis P. Ott, 87, a son, E. Dulaney Ott, attorney, and a brother, W. A. Dulaney, of Albemarle County, survive.

Lewis C. Spitzer.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Harrisonburg, Va., April 16.—Lewis C. Spitzer, 59, prominent Bridgewater resident who died yesterday, will be buried Wednesday following services conducted at the Methodist Church. Officiating will be the Rev. E. A. Wilcher, the Rev. O. D. Lambert and Dr. John S. Flory, president emeritus of Bridgewater College.

Besides his widow, who was Miss Resie Stoutamper, he was survived by 11 children, including Roscoe Spitzer, of Washington, and Mrs. Evelyn Davis, of Hagerstown, Md.; one brother, N. A. Spitzer, of Spring Creek; and four sisters, including Mrs. J. S. Cupp, of Columbus, Ohio.

Pioneer Passenger

NOEL T. MITCHELL.

of St. Petersburg, Fla., who was the first man to buy a ticket on a scheduled airline, came to Washington yesterday on a trip over the Nation's aviation systems as the guest of the operators. Mitchell bought the first ticket on January 1, 1914, on the St. Petersburg-Tampa Airboat Line.

and Mrs. Alice Monehan, of Richmond.

W. E. Inge.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Lynchburg, Va., April 16.—Funeral services for W. E. Inge, 82, who died Saturday at his home at Concord, were held yesterday afternoon.

He was a member of Mount Vernon Baptist Church and is survived by the following sons and daughters: E. D. Inge, of Roanoke; F. L. Inge, of Monroe; Mrs. S. C. Drinkard, of Appomattox; Mrs. W. E. Heddley, of Drake's Branch; D. M. Inge, of Brookneal; Mrs. L. B. Taylor, of this city, and J. G. and C. H. Inge, of Concord. A brother, R. C. Inge, lives at Big Island.

There are ten great-grandchildren and 40 grandchildren in the family.

Mrs. Ida A. Miller.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Waynesboro, Pa., April 16.—Funeral services will be held in the Reformed Church at Sabillasville tomorrow afternoon for Mrs. Ida Alice Miller, 68, wife of John Miller, who died yesterday morning at her home near Sabillasville, Md.

Surviving are her husband and two children, Harry and Goldie, one brother, of Blue Ridge Summit, and four sisters.

Mrs. John F. Wilt.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Winchester, Va., April 16.—Services were conducted today for Mrs. John F. Wilt, of Berryville, who died in a hospital here after a protracted illness. The Rev. James H. Brown, Jr., officiated. Burial was in Green Hill, Berryville.

She is survived by her husband and four daughters, the Misses Evelyn, Helen, Anna and Flossie Wilt, all of Berryville; three sisters, Mrs. J. W. Riley, of Winchester; Mrs. Earl Lloyd, of Smock, Pa.; Mrs. Hardee Lloyd, of Berryville, and one brother, Ashby Talley, of Shepherdstown, W. Va.

Mrs. Harriet Z. Foreman.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., April 16.—Mrs. Harriet Zimmerman Foreman, 78, widow of Milton W. Foreman, who died Sunday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Carleton Tabler, this city, was buried here today.

Surviving are one daughter, Mrs. Tabler; one son, E. Weber Foreman, of Elizabeth, N. J.; two grandchildren and a number of brothers and sisters.

Samuel C. Loller.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Worton, Md., April 16.—The funeral of Samuel C. Loller, 59, recently re-elected as member of the Commissioners Vote Approval Of Bond Issue

Walter Bachrach Appointed to Montgomery's Zoning Board.

Approval of the $250,000 bond issue of the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission which is to be bid on today was voted yesterday by the Montgomery County commissioners. No opposition developed at the meeting.

The issue previously had been approved by the Public Service Commission and the Prince Georges County commissioners. The money is to be used for extending service connections in Montgomery and Prince Georges Counties.

The county commissioners appointed Walter K. Bachrach, Bethesda real estate dealer, a member of the board of zoning appeals. He replaces Noah R. Robinson, whose term expires, and will serve for one year. Charles Israel, Democrat, whose services on intricate machines in the county accountant's office were found essential, was reappointed at his prior salary. He had been discharged last week as part of the fusion patronage program.

Wilton T. Allen, secretary-treasurer of the Republican State central committee for Montgomery County, was recommended to Gov. Harry W. Nice by the commissioners for post as member of the Maryland National Capital Park and Planning Commission. He would replace Frederic P. Lee, prominent Washington attorney, of Leland, whose term expires.

The commissioners voted to reduce the per diem pay of election officials in county elections from $10 to $8. Payment of the final $8,000 installment on the Liquor Control Board building at Silver Spring to Francis M. Tompkins, the builder, was ordered.

Montgomery County offices are to be closed from Thursday at 4:30 p. m. until Monday morning in observance of Good Friday and the Easter holiday, the commissioners ordered.

board of commissioners of Kent County and prominent Democratic leader who died here today, will be held Friday. Interment will be in Chester Cemetery, Chestertown. Mr. Loller is survived by his wife, Ida Loller; a son, William E. Loller, a brother, Arthur Loller, Southampton, Pa., and three sisters, Mrs. Elizabeth Crossley, Kent County; Mrs. Ella Stevens, Baltimore, and Mrs. Margaret Elliott, Owings Mill, Md.

Mrs. Laura E. Lineburg.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., April 16.—Rites will be held here tomorrow afternoon for Mrs. Laura Ellen Lineburg, 78, widow of James H. Lineburg, who died Sunday at the home of her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Youtz, this city.

Surviving are four daughters: Mrs. Youtz, Mrs. Charles Monagan, Mrs. Margaret Sullivan, this city; Mrs. Brent Sharff, of Detroit, Mich.; a step-daughter, Augusta Renner, of Star Tannery, Va., and a brother, William Bowman, of Wheatfield, Va.

Guaranteed OIL BURNERS

Guaranteed by the Marketers of METHOLINE and RICHFIELD SHERWOOD BROS., INC.

1723 Connecticut Ave., N.W. DECATUR 4181

The Play's the Thing, Jobless Actors Sing!

Members of traveling FERA troupe presenting Shakespeare's "Taming of the Shrew," in their Army van.

Mrs. Sally L. Towers Dies at Residence

Mrs. Sally L. Towers, 85, mother of Chatham M. Towers, District tax collector, died at her home, 1024 Massachusetts avenue, northwest. She was the widow of C. M. Towers, for 35 years a city postoffice employee.

She had lived in this city more than 70 years. A son, William Towers, Norfolk, Va., and two married daughters survive her, besides Chatham Towers.

Robert Latimer Rites Set for 2:30 Today

Funeral services for Robert C. Latimer, who died after a long illness at his home, 3425 Fifteenth street northwest, will be held this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at the home of his aunt, Miss Francis P. Smith, 1414 Buchanan street northwest. Interment will be at Oak Hill Cemetery.

Mr. Latimer, who was connected with the District Title Insurance Co. for 10 years, was a graduate of Central High School. He had studied engineering at Lehigh University. He was graduated from Georgetown University Law School and was a member of the District bar. Surviving are his mother, Mrs. Bessie R. Latimer, and a brother, Lieut. Samuel Latimer, U. S. N., now attached to U. S. S. Pennsylvania.

Funeral Set Tomorrow For Mrs. Heintzelman

Funeral services for Mrs. Stuart Heintzelman, wife of Maj. Gen. Heintzelman, commanding general of the Seventh Corps Area, will be held in Arlington Cemetery tomorrow at 9 a. m. It previously had been announced the funeral would be today. Chaplain Julian E. Yates will officiate at the grave, reading the Episcopal service.

Honorary pallbearers will include Maj. Gens. Malin Craig, George Simonds and Leon Kromer; Brig. Gens. Stanley Embick and Evan Humphrey; Col. Russell Roeder and E. R. Warner McCabe and Maj. Wesley Cox. Mrs. Heintzelman died Sunday in Omaha.

Bolivian Town Captured.

Asuncion, Paraguay, April 16 (AP). The war ministry today announced the capture of Charaguá, important communication center in the Bolivian province of Santa Cruz.

COAL
Phone MOunt 3609
J. EDW. CHAPMAN
37 N. St. N.W.

Special—TYPEWRITER
RIBBONS 60c
Full length, standard quality, will not break or jam.
All colors.
UNITED TYPEWRITER
A BIDDING MACHINE CO. INC.
WASHINGTON, D. C.

TRAVEL BARGAINS
Round-Trip Fares
Good on specified routes only—details and fares—consult agents
(Easter) Sunday, April 21
$3.00 Philadelphia
$2.75 Wilmington
$2.55 Atlantic City

Saturday, April 20
$7.00 Boston
New Haven, Providence
$3.00 Wilkes-Barre Scranton

Baltimore
$1.35 Every Saturday—Sunday
$1.50 Daily—Good for 3 days
$5.45 New York Daily
one way, coaches only. Ls. 12.25 c.m.

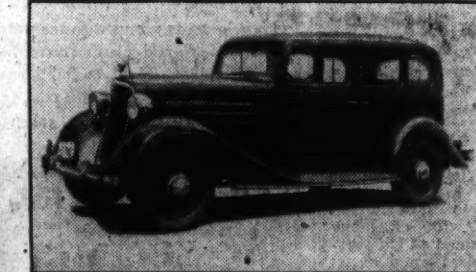

OVER EASTER
Round-Trip Fares Reduced 1/3
Leave next Thursday, April 18 up to next Sunday, April 21. Final return last week night Monday, April 22.
Round-trip sleeping car fares reduced.
PENNSYLVANIA RAILROAD

CHEVROLET

Reduced to save you money

these genuine "OK" reconditioned

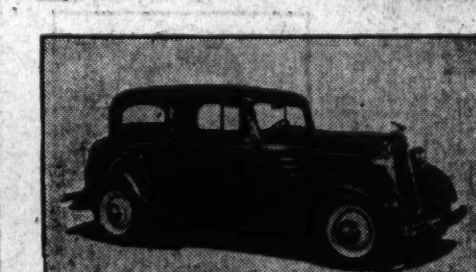

USED CARS

1934 CHEVROLET MASTER SEDAN—Fisher body; no draft ventilation; mechanically right; finish and upholstery excellent; this car is a good value at $529

1934 CHEVROLET MASTER COACH in perfect condition; beautiful Duco finish; restful Fisher body; no draft ventilation and mechanically right. Only $499

1934 CHEVROLET MASTER TOWN SEDAN—a smart automobile perfect in every respect, that will make somebody proud of their investment in transportation. Only $519

SIX reasons why it pays to buy "OK" used cars

- 1 "OK Used Cars" are thoroughly checked and conditioned.
- 2 "OK Used Cars" are backed by our guarantee of satisfaction.
- 3 Back of each "OK Used Car" stands the high reputation of your Chevrolet dealer.
- 4 Only highest quality, late model used cars are selected to carry the "OK that counts."
- 5 "OK Used Cars" are priced fairly.
- 6 "OK Used Cars" can be purchased on convenient terms.

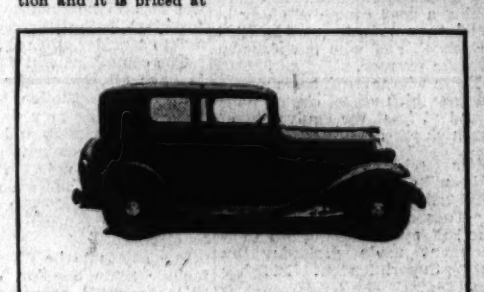

1933 CHEVROLET MASTER SEDAN—has had exceptional care by an owner who realized that satisfactory transportation entailed attention to lubrication and appearance. Spotless and only $429

1933 CHEVROLET MASTER COACH—Knee action; fine motor and excellent finish. This is better than an average car. $399

1933 CHEVROLET MASTER BUSINESS COUPE—for someone who must make an automobile productive from a transportation standpoint, this car should give miles of inexpensive transportation and it is priced at $389

1932 CHEVROLET COACH—just the car to take the kiddies out in—they can't fall out by opening a door or falling out the window, incidentally it can also be used for business. Condition o. k. Price $309

1932 FORD TUDOR—Spotless interior; mechanical condition excellent and appearance is good and its price is $279

These Cars Can Be Financed Through G. M. A. C.

- | | | | |
|---|---|---|--|
| Addison Chevrolet Sales, Inc.
1437 Irving St. N. W.
R. L. Taylor Motor Co.
1840 14th St. N. W.
Donohoe Chevrolet, Inc.
1620 M St. N. W.
Ourisman Chevrolet Sales Co.
610 H St. N. E. | Barry-Pate Motor Co., Inc.
1130 Connecticut Ave.
1123 18th St. N. W.
Owens Motor Co., Inc.
6323 Georgia Ave.
Mandell Chevrolet Co., Inc.
13th and Good Hope Road, S. E.
Stohlman Chevrolet, Inc.
3311 M St. N. W. | Makely Motor Co.
East Falls Church, Va.
Wolfe Motor Co.
8617 Georgia Ave.
Silver Spring, Md.
Lustine Nicholson Motor Co.
Hyattsville, Md. | Aero Auto Co.
1101 King St.
Alexandria, Va.
Warfield Chevrolet Sales
Rockville, Md.
Imirie-Rowe Chevrolet, Inc.
6909 Wisconsin Ave.
Bethesda, Md. |
|---|---|---|--|

Chevrolet Dealers sell "OK" Used Cars

SHELF-AGE

Is the Big Bad Wolf That Steals Coffee Flavor

With cunning, wolf-like sneakiness the rancid, staling, flavor-devouring fangs of SHELF-AGE extract the freshness from all package coffees. The coffee-wise recommend Mescos Coffee because Mescos is rushed direct to you before SHELF-AGE has time to attack its fragrant, naturally-fresh flavor.

Delivered Direct to YOU! and YOU!

MESCO COFFEE

NO SHELF AGE

UNSEALED ■ UNAGED
UNCANNED ■ UNSPOILED

M. E. SWING
1013 E ST. DELIVERIES NAT. 7601

Only 6 DAYS LEFT

THE NEW TELEPHONE DIRECTORY CLOSES APRIL 23

To order a telephone, extra listings, or advertising in the yellow pages, just call

MEtropolitan 9900

7,500 Qualified To Cast Ballot At Arlington

Poll Tax Must Be Paid by May 4 for Primary Vote, Jesse Warns.

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST, P. O. Box 200, Arlington, Va.
According to reports from the office of Charles T. Jesse, county treasurer, 7,500 of the 12,000 whose names are on the list in his office have paid their poll taxes, thus permitting them to participate in the coming election for all county officials.

In explaining who may vote at the coming election, Jesse said: "In order to be qualified to vote a person must have been a resident of the State at least a year, and of the county six months, must have paid all capitation taxes assessable against him, if any, for the three preceding years, and must be registered."

"The deadline for payment of capitation taxes in six months prior to the date of the general election. This year it is Saturday, May 4. Any one who would be qualified to vote in the general election, which is always held on the Tuesday after the first Monday in November, is qualified to vote in the preceding primary on the first Tuesday in August."

"Capitation taxes, like other taxes, are assessed as of January 1, and are payable prior to December 5 without penalty."

"A person becoming of age during the election year is required to pay the capitation taxes for the succeeding year, whereas a person moving into the State after January 1 of the previous year is not required to pay a capitation tax as a prerequisite to voting."

"A person moving from one county to another or a precinct to another must get a transfer, except that a person may vote in his old precinct if he has moved therefrom within 30 days."

Jesse's office at the courthouse is open each day, except Saturday, from 8:30 to 4:30 p. m. and on Saturdays from 8:30 to 1 p. m.

The county board will hold a public hearing tomorrow night at the courthouse at 8 o'clock to determine what shall be the front foot assessment for the installation of lateral sewer lines.

Despite the published statement at the time of the sewer bond issue that the rate would not exceed $1.25 per foot, it has been found that the cost is much greater.

R. C. L. Moncure, distributor for automobile tags in Arlington County, reports that he has sold 6,500 tags for pleasure cars. With a number of truck licenses the total collection of funds which goes to the State is $80,000.

Moncure announced that he would close his office opposite the courthouse tonight at 6 o'clock. After today he will be at his office in East Park Church on the Lee highway, where tags may be obtained.

Persons attempting to operate their cars with 1934 tags displayed are in danger of being cited into court, as State police have announced they are now on the lookout for all violators of the law.

Fletcher Kemp, county school superintendent, announced that the State department of public instruction will offer an examination for college entrance on Friday, May 10, at the Washington-Lee High School. Persons wishing to take this examination must file their applications at his office in the courthouse not later than April 30.

The examination, Kemp pointed out, is intended to include:

1. Superior pupils who are finishing an accredited high school course in less than the usual four years.
2. Pupils who have finished or are finishing a good course of study in a public or private unaccredited high school, and who have shown above the average.
3. Those who through some means apart from high school classes have acquired at least the equivalent of a good high school education.

Public schools in Arlington County will close tomorrow afternoon at 3:30 and remain closed until next Tuesday morning for the Easter holidays, according to an announcement made yesterday by County Superintendent Fletcher Kemp.

The Arlington County Kiwanis Club will hold its luncheon meeting today at 12:30 o'clock at the Washington Golf and Country Club. The program committee announces that a surprise plan of entertainment has been arranged and all members are asked to be on hand promptly at the opening hour.

The Woman's Club of Lyon Village will hold its semi-monthly meeting tonight at the home of Mrs. Arthur Clark, 170 Key boulevard.

Lake in Shenandoah Lures 1,000 Anglers

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Harrisonburg, Va., April 16.—Silver Lake, at Dayton, the Shenandoah Valley's largest body of water, was the Mecca for 1,000 anglers yesterday, the opening day of the trout season, and despite the cold and wind they caught 2,500 fish.

The lake was stocked last year by the Virginia Game and Inland Fisheries Commission. County Game Warden Wade Farley was on hand throughout the day. He arrested two persons who caught more than the limit of 15 brook trout.

Maryland Sportsmen Meet

Baltimore, April 16 (P).—A meeting to discuss recent legislation and plans for the coming year will be held tomorrow by the Maryland State Fish and Game Protective Association. Talbot Darnall is president of the organization.

Ponds Stocked With Bass

Levinston, Md., April 16 (P).—Ten ponds for propagating and rearing of bass have been stocked here following their completion by CCC labor. The ponds cover about 100 acres and approximately 25,000 bass 8 to 12 inches in length are expected to be in the ponds next fall.

Policeman Killed in Gun Battle

Birmingham police fired more than 1,000 shots into this garage in which Ben Gilham, former convict, had barricaded himself. Gilham was captured, critically wounded, and Patrolman J. M. Early was killed.

Rust Will Run For Reelection, He Announces

Will Be Opposed by Reid in Virginia Primary for State Senate.

FAIRFAX BUREAU OF THE POST, P. O. Box 25, Fairfax, Va., Phone CLarendon 126-3.

State Senator John W. Rust, of Fairfax, Va., yesterday announced his intention to become a candidate for reelection subject to the Democratic primary in August. Senator Rust represents the Thirteenth Senatorial District composed of the counties of Arlington, Fairfax and Prince William and the City of Alexandria, and having a population of about 100,000 people.

Senator Rust was first elected to the State Senate in 1931, defeating Col. C. T. Jesse, of Arlington County, and has attended the regular session in 1932 and 1934 and the extra session in 1933. He is a member of the following committees: Roads and internal navigation; courts of justice and moral, social and child welfare. He was an advocate of the Byrd road law for secondary highways in Fairfax County.

Hugh Reid, former member of the House of Delegates from Arlington County, will oppose Senator Rust in the primary.

The Democratic Executive Committee of Fairfax County, Va., will open officially the annual primary campaign with a meeting tomorrow night in the courthouse at Fairfax. The meeting was called by County Chairman Robert R. Buckley to set the fees to be paid by candidates for office in the primary in August and to consider other party business. The committee will outline a plan to have all Democratic voters pay the annual capitation tax prior to May 4 so they may participate in the August primary and the general election in November.

This year the voters will select all county officials and members of the State Legislature. The Democratic nomination is usually tantamount to election.

The offices to be filled this year include State Senator, delegate to State Assembly, county clerk, Commonwealth's attorney, county treasurer, commissioner of revenue, sheriff, six members of the board of supervisors and, during the primary, a member of the county Democratic executive committee from each of the 25 precincts.

Judge Paul E. Brown of the Trial Justice Court of Fairfax County, Va., has been appointed a delegate to represent Virginia at the thirtieth annual convention of the National Rivers and Harbors Congress by Gov. George C. Peery. The congress will be held in Washington on May 2 and 3.

The membership drive of the Young Democratic Club of Falls Church, Va., will close with the club's spring dance to be held in the auditorium of the Madison School on May 3, according to Francis Jones, chairman of the entertainment committee.

Sharon Chapter, Order of Eastern Star, of McLean, Va., last night celebrated its thirtieth birthday anniversary. An exhibition drill was put on by a team from Arlington Chapter in Cherrydale. Visitors were present from Cherrydale, Clarendon, Alexandria, Del Ray Herndon, Vienna, Falls Church and New Jersey.

Mrs. Grace Magarity, matron, has appointed Mrs. Esther Rector as chairman of the ways and means committee, Mrs. Cecile Rawlings, chairman of entertainment, and Mrs. H. A. Storm-chairman of sickness and distress committee.

Officers Freed in Drowning

Danville, Va., April 16.—Police Officers Curtis Fields and L. O. Belton have been exonerated in the death of Willie Jones, Negro, who rather than surrender on a charge of disturbance, waded into Dan River until he was swept into the current and drowned. His body was recovered.

Takoma Park's Prisoners' Aid Society Backs Jail Removal

Caucus Next Monday to Nominate Councilmen; Election in May.

Voters of Takoma Park will hold their annual caucus next Monday under the terms of an ordinance adopted by the mayor and town council at a meeting in the Takoma Firehouse. At the caucus nominations will be in order for candidates to fill three posts on the town council. The election will be held two weeks later.

Prior to the election, voters will register on the municipal books. The town council fixes the registration days as April 30 and May 1 in the Takoma Firehouse. Registration officers announced by the council are Mrs. C. F. Ferry, Fred C. Duehring and Robert Lyon, clerk. Judges for the election May 6 will be Mrs. Rose S. Rutledge, John W. Coffman, Jr., N. C. Nelson and Mr. Duehring with Mr. Lyon as clerk. Polls will be open that day from 6 a. m. to 7 p. m.

To Elect for 2-Year Terms

Members of the council whose terms are expiring are John R. Adams, Col. Arthur B. Conger and Millward C. Taft. Their successors will be elected for a two-year term. All of the candidates are elected at large and plans for the election are proceeding on this basis pending action by Gov. Harry W. Nice of Maryland on a bill passed by the State Legislature at its recent session establishing a ward system in the town.

Announcement also was made at the council meeting Monday night that the council will sit as a board of review May 20 to hear appeals from assessments recently levied by the town's board of assessors.

A hearing was held Monday by the council on the proposed sidewalk construction program for the town, which will be undertaken on a front-foot benefit assessment basis if sentiment of taxpayers indicates the improvements are desired.

Portal Fund Voted

Petitions were presented at the hearing by several groups of taxpayers seeking construction of sidewalks and paving on several town thoroughfares, including portions of Cedar avenue, Takoma avenue, Philadelphia avenue and Chestnut avenue.

An appropriation of $100 was voted by the town to match a similar fund from the Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission to beautify the portal entrance to the town adjacent to the recently completed railroad underpass on Piney Branch road at the District Line.

Loudoun Democrats To Hear Rush D. Holt

Leesburg, Va., April 16.—Rush D. Holt, Senator-elect from West Virginia, will speak at a meeting of the Young Democratic Club of Loudoun County May 7.

The club will give an Easter dance at the Goose Creek Tavern Monday night, under the auspices of the social committee, which is composed of Mrs. Lloyd Slack, chairman; Mrs. James di Zerega, Miss Mildred Russell, Matt Pulliam, William J. Luke and John Paul.

Miss Anne B. Kelley Wed.

Luke, Md., April 16.—Mr. and Mrs. Thomas A. Kelley announce the marriage of their daughter, Anne B. Kelley, to Randolph P. Kinney, of Detroit, the ceremony having been performed at Cumberland, Md., Wednesday, April 10, by the Rev. Dr. Harry Evald, pastor of Centre Street Methodist Episcopal Church.

Charles Town Child Succumbs to Burns

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Charles Town, W. Va., April 16.—Howard Fellers, 4 years old, was fatally burned while playing with matches near his home on the Charles Town-Middletown pike yesterday evening and died early today at Charles Town General Hospital. The child, whose parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Fellers, live on the Ware farm near here, strayed from his home to the Ware house, where he found matches in the kitchen. Mrs. Ware, working in her flower garden nearby, heard screams and hurried to the house to find the child's clothes in flames. She extinguished the blaze and called her son and the injured child's father, who took him to the hospital.

$520 Seed Loans Asked, County Agent Reports

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Westminster, Md., April 16.—Four applications for Federal loans totaling $520 for the purchase of seed were received at the office of County Agricultural Agent L. C. Burns here yesterday, the first day on which applications could be made. According to Donald E. Clark, supervisor, the number of applications yesterday represented a considerable decrease from the total received on the first day last year.

Chilton-Grant Nuptials Held at Charlottesville

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Charlottesville, Va., April 16.—Miss Elinor Constance Grant was married to George Hamilton Chilton, of Lakota, near Warrenton, yesterday in St. Paul's Memorial Church of the University of Virginia. The Rev. Samuel B. Chilton, of Hanover, brother of the bridegroom, performed the ceremony. The bride is a daughter of Dr. Henry Colles Grant, of Remington. Mr. Chilton is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Blackwell Chilton, of Herford, Culpeper County.

Everybody's BIG FIX-UP SALE at the Hechinger Co. 1400 Atlantic

Gov. Nice's veto of the Chesapeake Bay bridge legislation. Stewart said it was his observation it would be an added financial burden to the county and that the western counties were not in favor of it.

Mount Saint Mary's Plans Dance April 27

Emmetsburg, Md., April 16.—The junior class of Mount St. Mary's College will hold its promenade Saturday, April 27, in Flynn Hall. William T. Muse, of Baltimore, is arranging for the dance assisted by Henry Bevens, Cornwall, N. Y.; Robert Leahy, Chicago, and Edmund Bennett, Troy, N. Y.

Old Accomac Record Copied as Memorial

Accomac, Va., April 16 (P).—One of Accomac County's oldest record books, "Deeds and Wills, 1662-1718," has been copied for the badly mutilated original. The work was financed by Mrs. H. D. Sheppard, of Hanover, Pa., as a memorial to her father, the late Richard Johnson Ayres, Jr., of this county. The copy makes three volumes.

Plant to Open New Section

Richmond, Va., April 16 (P).—Operations preliminary to the manufacture of rayon will start this week in a portion of the new $5,000,000 addition to the du Pont Rayon Company at Amphyll. Spinning will start next week.

RESORTS.

Virginia Beach, Va. SPRING HOLIDAYS HOTEL CHALFONTE VIRGINIA BEACH, VIRGINIA REASONABLE RATES

Enjoy EASTER WEEK Spring weather is at its best during Easter Week at the Cavalier. Social activities and all sports. Golf on famous courses of Cavalier and Princess Anne Country Clubs; adjacent to the hotel. Excellent stables and miles of rambling bike paths. Indoor salt water swimming pool. Easily accessible by train, boat or motor. Write for illustrated booklet.

RESORTS.

West Virginia White Sulphur Springs "Greenbrier" Atlantic City.

THE AVALIER HOTEL

SIDNEY BANKS, Mgr. Dir. VIRGINIA BEACH VIRGINIA

SPRINGTIME IS VACATION TIME AT The CLARIDGE ATLANTIC CITY

Large outside rooms with sea water bath, tub and shower. Sundecks and solarium on roof. Unobstructed view of beach and boardwalk. Golf, horse back riding and sailing. SINGLE from $4. DOUBLE from $6. EUROPEAN PLAN ALSO AMERICAN PLAN SPECIAL WEEKLY RATES use-it to...

LET THE Telephone BE YOUR EASTER ERRAND BOY

Order Easter Flowers and Candy. Invite Easter Guests. Do the Family Marketing. Buy the Unforeseen Incidentals to the Easter Outfit. Extend Easter Greetings.

* Florists, Confectioners, Druggists, Grocers, Department Stores and shops of all kinds welcome telephone orders at Easter time. Telephone your order early and avoid the Easter rush.

The Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company (Bell System) METropolitan 9900

"Shipwreck" Kelly, the flag-pole sitter, lives on top of columns... and steeples, too.

The Post Impressionist has been living behind a column for some time, now. We still don't know much about him. He hides behind a mask of anonymity, and when we approach his column to get a better view of him, he scurries around the other side like a squirrel on a tree.

Thousands of our readers, who turn to The Post Impressionist's spicy column right after the orange juice every morning, have implored us to tell something about him. According to them, more legends have grown up about The Post Impressionist than about Paul Bunyan or Santa Claus. Everyone wants to know more about him.

Well, we'll tell you what we know. The Post Impressionist is real, despite his anonymity. He is a world traveler. He knows the European Big Shots by their first names (he knew about Hitler when Der Fuehrer was just plain Adolf!) and for years, he reported the doings of the League of Nations at Geneva.

He has been a war correspondent, and has sat with the generals in their bombproof dugouts, and with the privates in their muddy ditches. His battered typewriter has tapped out stories of gallant charges, of heart-breaking defeats, in more than one war.

And he has written books in the best-seller class, too. He is perfectly at home at a literary tea, where the long-haired authors and the giggling spinsters gather. But for that matter, he would be perfectly at home in a Hottentot village, for he has been everywhere and he has seen, well, almost everything.

But we still don't know his name. We know only that, as The Post Impressionist, he has endeared himself to tens of thousands of readers, that his column is one of the most intelligent and amusing in the world, that his exceedingly civilized viewpoint is that of a true gentleman, that you can not afford to miss reading him every morning.

He's still hiding behind his column. He won't tell us his name. But he can remain behind that column, in peaceful anonymity, if only he'll continue to write The Post Impressionist for the editorial page of

Friends Here Await Visit Of Sir Adrian

Baillie, Former Diplomat, Arrives in U. S. From Great Britain.

Time Secretary of Embassy Was Popular Host in Capital.

By Evelyn Peyton Gordon.

There are still many members of Capital society who remember the hospitality of Sir Adrian Baillie, one-time Secretary of the British Embassy, and his colleagues, "Tock" Balfour, who were among the most popular bachelors Washington has known in many years. During their tour of duty here Sir Adrian and Mr. Balfour occupied a charming house on Tracy place, where they entertained charmingly at informal dinners, gay luncheons and cocktail parties, which in those days of prohibition were called teas.

Then came orders of transfer for Mr. Balfour. That gave cause for much entertaining in the household, and on the heels of his departure came the word that Sir Adrian was to return to the foreign office. He has not visited in Washington since, but yesterday Sir Adrian William Maxwell Baillie, sixth baronet of Polkennet, member of Parliament from Louth, arrived in the Berengaria. He surely will come to Washington for a visit, however brief, with some of his old friends.

Sir Adrian left Washington to return to England, and on the death of his father resigned from the diplomatic service and entered the constituency to take his place. It was Mr. C. J. W. Torr, second secretary of the British Embassy, who took the place of Sir Adrian in Washington. He and Mrs. Torr arrived a few days before the departure of Sir Adrian, and one of the last parties given in the house on Tracy place was a dinner of welcome to the Torr and of farewell to M. Frederic Knobel, second secretary of the French Embassy, who was a close friend of Mr. Balfour and Sir Adrian.

In 1931, the year he was elected to Parliament, Sir Adrian was married to the Hon. Mrs. Arthur Wilson-Filmer, the former Miss Olive Cecilia Paget. Lady Baillie is the daughter of Lord Queensborough and the first Lady Queensborough, who was Miss Pauline Whitney, daughter of William C. Whitney, Secretary of the Navy under President Cleveland. At the time of the marriage, Lord Queensborough was Sir Almeric Hugh Paget and was created a baron in January, 1918.

The late Payne Whitney were the wife of Lady Baillie and Mrs. Julius Vanderbilt Whitney is her cousin.

Also arriving in New York yesterday on the Berengaria was Mr. John Hay Whitney, of New York and Middleburg, Va., a cousin of Lady Baillie, who has been in England to attend the Grand National Steeplechase, which was run at Aintree last month.

Pennsylvanians To Give Dance

Democratic Congressional Delegation Will Be Honored May 1.

Democrats from Pennsylvania and former Pennsylvanians residing in Washington will attend the reception and dance at the Shoreham Hotel May 1 sponsored by the Pennsylvania Democratic Club of Washington in honor of the State's Democratic congressional delegation.

Senator Joseph F. Guffey, as the guest of honor, will head the receiving line. Among others receiving will be Governor and Mrs. George H. Earle, Mrs. Emma Guffey Miller, Miss Ida Guffey and Miss Emma Guffey.

Among the members of the club who met at dinner last night to complete plans for the celebration were the Third Assistant Postmaster General, Mr. Clinton B. Ellenberger; Mr. John J. Doyle, president of the club, and Mr. J. F. Quinn, chairman.

Margaret Fishback Will Become Bride

Mrs. Frederick Lewis Fishback has announced the engagement of her daughter, Miss Margaret Fishback, to Mr. Albert G. Antolini, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dante Antolini, of Rutherford, N. J.

Miss Fishback, who now makes her home in New York, is well known as a writer of light verse and has published two books of poems. She was born in Washington and after attending school here went to Goucher College in Baltimore, from which she was graduated.

Mr. Antolini was graduated from the University of Florence, Italy, in 1924, and the University of Switzerland at Zurich, in 1926.

No date has been set for the wedding.

Mrs. Anne Patten's Marriage Announced

Mrs. Thomas Martin Boyle has announced the marriage of her daughter, Mrs. Anne Boyle Patten, to Mr. Carlie Bolton-Smith. The ceremony took place Friday in the bishop's private chapel at the Washington Cathedral. Canon Anson Phelps Stokes officiating.

A Rest After Practicing for Post Ride

MISS VIRGINIA RODGERS, daughter of Mrs. Philip Owen Coffin, and Lieut. Marshall Frame, of Fort Myer, rest after practicing for the last ride of the season, which will take place at Fort Myer April 23.

NOTES OF SOCIETY

Official and Resident

Mrs. Harold L. Ickes, wife of the Secretary of the Interior, will be hostess at luncheon April 26 in honor of Miss Grace Hiler, of Boston.

Mrs. Park Trammell entertained at tea yesterday afternoon from 4 until 6 o'clock in her apartment at 2633 Sixteenth street in honor of Mrs. Milo M. Ebert, State Regent of Florida, and the other delegates from that State to the Congress of the D. A. R.

Mrs. Hardin Peterson and Mrs. Josiah Verris, Jr., assisted Mrs. Trammell.

Representative and Mrs. Donald C. Dobbins have as their guest, Mrs. L. N. Cooley, of Brookline, Ill., who has just returned from a Mediterranean cruise. Mrs. Cooley was met in New York by her daughter, Mrs. Joseph E. Thompson, Jr., of Phoenix, Ariz., who is also visiting the Dobbins.

Mrs. and Mr. T. Kinsey Carpenter entertained at dinner last night in their home in Wesley Heights. Guests included Senator and Mrs. Daniel O. Hastings, Senator John G. Townsend, Jr., Miss Lyla Townsend, Mr. Charles Curtis, Mrs. Jerome Colvin, of Topeka, Kan., Mr. and Mrs. Edward Everett Gann, and Mrs. Edwin Bowman.

The Chancellor of the Legation of Switzerland and Mrs. Ernest Faesch will have with them for the Easter season, with her brother-in-law and sister, Maj. Edward Crews Black and Mrs. Black, at Langley Field, Hampton, Va. Miss Doe will leave New York Friday night, following her appearance in "Parafal," the last opera of the season to be given at the Metropolitan Opera House.

On Easter Sunday she will sing a solo at the post church at Langley Field.

After spending a week with her relatives, she will come to Washington, where she will be guest-vocalist at a luncheon to be given for Miss Franklin D. Roosevelt at the Congressional Club, April 23. Her first grand opera appearance was made in Washington seven years ago when she sang with John Charles Thomas in "Rigoletto." In 1930 she was chosen for the role of Edla in "Das Rheingold," the only American picked for that performance of the opera given by the Stadsoper in Dresden. In 1932 she made her debut at the Metropolitan Opera House as Brangäne in "Tristan und Isolde." In February of this year Miss Doe was soloist with the Washington Symphony Orchestra under the direction of Dr. Hans Kindler.

In June Miss Doe will go to Rhythm Hills, her farm in Bennington, N. H., where she will pass the summer.

New Zealand Visitor Stopping at the Dodge.

Mr. and Mrs. D. C. Pescock and their two daughters of Wellington, New Zealand, who are on an extended tour of the United States and Canada, are at the Dodge.

Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Kelly, of Atlantic City, N. J., and their daughter, Miss Mary Louise Kelly, are making their residence at the Shoreham. Mr. Kelly is a special legal assistant in the office of the Comptroller of the Currency, Mr. J. F. T. O'Connor.

April Book Review To Be Given Today

Mrs. Van Hagan to Speak at Wardman Park.

Mrs. Arthur Van Hagan will present her April review of "World Events as Reflected in Current Literature" at the Wardman Park Hotel this morning at 11:15 o'clock. "The Price of Peace," by Frank H. Simonds and Brooks Emeny; "Restless Days," by Lilo Linka; an autobiography of a German girl; and "Fatherland," by Karl Billinger, the experiences of a prisoner in a Nazi concentration camp, will be reviewed. Comments on the best new novels of the month will conclude the lecture.

The final review of the season will be given on the third Friday in May.

Mrs. Thomas H. A. Sities and Miss Mary Henry Sities, of Crescon, Pa., who are here for the D. A. R. meetings, are at the Shoreham.

Mrs. John B. Daniel, of Temple, Tex., and her daughter, Miss Claire

Miss Doris Doe To Sing at Fete For First Lady

Metropolitan Contralto to Be Heard April 29 at Luncheon.

Miss Doris Doe, contralto of the Metropolitan Opera, will pass the Easter season with her brother-in-law and sister, Maj. Edward Crews Black and Mrs. Black, at Langley Field, Hampton, Va. Miss Doe will leave New York Friday night, following her appearance in "Parafal," the last opera of the season to be given at the Metropolitan Opera House.

On Easter Sunday she will sing a solo at the post church at Langley Field.

After spending a week with her relatives, she will come to Washington, where she will be guest-vocalist at a luncheon to be given for Miss Franklin D. Roosevelt at the Congressional Club, April 23. Her first grand opera appearance was made in Washington seven years ago when she sang with John Charles Thomas in "Rigoletto." In 1930 she was chosen for the role of Edla in "Das Rheingold," the only American picked for that performance of the opera given by the Stadsoper in Dresden. In 1932 she made her debut at the Metropolitan Opera House as Brangäne in "Tristan und Isolde." In February of this year Miss Doe was soloist with the Washington Symphony Orchestra under the direction of Dr. Hans Kindler.

In June Miss Doe will go to Rhythm Hills, her farm in Bennington, N. H., where she will pass the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Campbell, of Louisville, Ky., are passing a few days at the Shoreham.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Van Houten, of Denver, Colo., are passing a few days at the Shoreham.

Mrs. Chester Bolton, who has returned from Florida, will receive the members of the Ohio delegation to the D. A. R. Congress this afternoon at 5 o'clock.

Horton Is Host To the Bonhams

General Gives Dinner for Guests of Mrs. Jacob Leander Loose.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick T. Bonham, of New York, and Riverside, Conn., are at the Shoreham for a few days visiting Mrs. Jacob Leander Loose.

Brig. Gen. William E. Horton entertained at dinner in honor of the visitors last night. As the former Mrs. Valeria Langlois, Mrs. Bonham is well known in Washington, where she has visited frequently.

Mrs. Bonham established and endowed the Valeria Home at Occawana, N. Y.

Harold C. Donnelly's Parents of Daughter

Lieut. and Mrs. Harold Cooper Donnelly have announced the birth of a daughter, Margaret Calvert, on January 25 at the Colon Hospital, Panama Canal Zone.

Before her marriage last year at Fort Monroe, Mrs. Donnelly, was Miss Dorothy Bishop, daughter of Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Percy Poe Bishop.

Daniel, are spending some time at the Wardman Park Hotel.

Mrs. William Benjamin, of New York, and her son and daughter are at the Dodge for a few days.

Mr. and Mrs. Phil Runion, of Lincoln, Neb., are at the Shoreham.

Mrs. G. H. Edgerly entertained at luncheon yesterday at the Carlton in honor of delegates to the D. A. R. Congress from Mississippi. The company numbered 20.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul H. Peterson, of New York City, are here on a short vacation, and are staying at the Wardman Park Hotel.

Mrs. M. A. Gilbert, of Camden, N. J., is at the Carlton during the D. A. R. Congress. Other delegates from New Jersey stopping at the Carlton are Mrs. Thomas E. Borton, Mrs. Harold T. Leach and Mrs. Stanley Ironside, of Camden; Mrs. J. E. Tennyson, of Short Hills, and Mrs. Edmund Brandes, of Newark.

Mrs. H. F. Van Nostrand, of Port Washington, N. Y., is at the Carlton for a few days.

The Gazdas, of Paris, Are at Wardman Park.

Mr. and Mrs. Anton C. Gazdas, of Paris, France, are at the Wardman Park Hotel.

Mr. and Mrs. F. Frederick Martin, of Ambler, Pa., have arrived at the Shoreham for a visit of several days.

Mrs. P. M. Walker, of Boyce, Va., is at the Carlton.

Col. E. V. Rickenbacker, of New York, is at the Carlton for a brief stay.

Mr. and Mrs. John Alexander, Jr., and Mrs. M. E. Rudolph, of Aurora, Ill., are at the Shoreham for several days.

Mr. and Mrs. Homer B. Kendall, of Portland, Ore., are at the Shoreham for a few days on their way to New York.

Mr. and Mrs. Moritz Kahn, of Detroit, are occupying a suite at the Wardman Park Hotel.

Mrs. and Mrs. Donald D. Cooke, of Tenafly, N. J., are passing some time at the Carlton.

Mrs. J. West Roosevelt, of New York City, who has been spending several days at the Wardman Park Hotel, returned to her home yesterday.

The Gibsons of Vermont Are Guests of Senator

Senator Ernest W. Gibson and his daughter, Miss Doris Gibson, have as their guest at Wardman Park Hotel, the senator's son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Gibson, Jr., of Brattleboro, Vt. Mrs. Gibson was formerly Miss Dorothy Switzer, daughter of Col. John Switzer, retired, and Mrs. Switzer. Mr. Gibson is secretary to the Vermont Senate.

GLOVE CLEANING ALL KINDS OF GLOVE REPAIRING

Long Gloves Cleaned—25c Black Gloves Retained—50c SOUTHERN STELOS CO. 612 12th St. N.W. NA 8-8442

Rug Beauty Our Duty

Call Mr. Pyle Nat. 3257-3291-2036 Sanitary Carpet & Rug Cleaning Co. 168 2nd Ave. N.W.

Major Thayer Welcomed Back By 3d Cavalry

Arrives From Kansas Post to Command Squadron at Fort Myer.

Maj. Arthur P. Thayer, Third Cavalry, has arrived at Fort Myer, Va., from Fort Riley, Kan., and has been assigned to command the Second Squadron, Third Cavalry, relieving Lieut. Col. George S. Patton, Jr., who leaves shortly for duty in Hawaii.

Maj. Thayer's arrival was in the nature of a homecoming celebration because of his service with the Third Cavalry. He is the son of the late Col. Arthur P. Thayer, one of the Army's most distinguished Cavalry leaders of an older generation, and was born at West Point, N. Y. Most of Maj. Thayer's boyhood was spent in the Third Cavalry at various Army posts in this country and in the Philippine Islands, and it was to the Third Cavalry that Maj. Thayer was ordered when he received his commission as second lieutenant of Cavalry in 1916.

During the war, Maj. Thayer served as a troop commander and regimental adjutant of the Third Cavalry when the regiment was a member of the American Expeditionary Forces in France. After the armistice, the regiment was ordered to Fort Myer. Maj. Thayer remained a short time when he was ordered to Fort Riley, Kan., for a year's duty at the Cavalry school. Upon the completion of this duty he returned, remaining until 1923.

From 1923 until the present time, Maj. Thayer has served as instructor of the Massachusetts National Guard, has been a member of the Olympic equestrian team, and lately has been the senior instructor in the Cavalry Advanced Equestrian School at Fort Riley, Kan.

Mexican Envoy Guest of Honor

Dr. Rowe Gives Luncheon for 12 in Annex of Pan-American Union.

The Director General of the Pan American Union, Dr. L. S. Rowe, entertained at luncheon in the Annex of the Pan American Union yesterday in honor of the Ambassador of Cuba, Senor Dr. Guillermo Patterson y de Jauregui. Other guests were the Secretary of Agriculture, Mr. Henry A. Wallace; the Assistant Secretary of State, Mr. R. Walton Moore; the Assistant Secretary of State, Mr. Sumner Welles; the Ambassador at Large of Peru, Senor Dr. Victor M. Maurias; the Counselor of the Cuban Embassy, Senor Dr. Jose T. Baron; the First Secretary, Senor Dr. Vincente Valdes-Rodriguez; the Military Attaché, Senor Dr. Emilio de la Asunción; the Assistant Secretary of Commerce, Mr. John Dickinson; Dr. James Brown Scott, president, American Institute of International Law; Mr. Spruille Braden, chairman, Inter-American Commercial Arbitration Commission; Mr. John J. Cushman, executive secretary of the Pan American Society.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Talbot McElvenny are receiving congratulations on the birth of a daughter Friday. Mrs. McElvenny was formerly Miss Elizabeth Stelwer, daughter of Senator and Mrs. Frederick Stelwer, of Oregon. The child is also a granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. F. McElvenny.

Herridges Give Dinner For Noted Visitors

The Minister of Canada and Mrs. William Duncan Herridge entertained at dinner last night in the legation on Massachusetts avenue in honor of Viscount Byng and Viscountess Byng, who are visiting at the legation.

President's Mother Visiting in South

Mrs. James Roosevelt, mother of the President, has gone to Charleston, S. C., to spend several days at Fenwick Hall, the John's Island estate of Mr. and Mrs. Victor Morawetz, of New York.

No entertainments have been planned for Mrs. Roosevelt as she wishes to spend her stay visiting the Magnolia Gardens and other places of interest in and near Charleston. Mrs. William Franklyn Paris, a friend of Mrs. Roosevelt, is also a guest of Mr. and Mrs. Morawetz.

SAFE STORAGE

For household goods ••• silverware ••• rugs, heavy, curtains, tapestries ••• furs and garments ••• wines and spirits ••• works of art ••• pianos ••• automobiles ••• luxuries. Warm storage, cool storage, cold storage, fumigated storage. Capital, Surplus and Reserve Over $1,200,000

ARNOLD GALLERIES

Antique Jewelry, Silver, Sheffield Furniture, Mirrors, Brasses, Art Objects and Wedding Gifts A Specialty.

GIRTH CONTROL

The heavy waistline and the hips mean discomfort, chafing, slow and difficult locomotion and premature aging. Double chin and fat can be controlled by the most efficient and painless facial treatment. Our pure, rejuvenating cream. Colonic irrigation—trained nurses. RIGGS LADIES' TURKISH BATH 1616 14th St. N.W. NE. 7556

There is no Premium for SAKS Improved Storage

100% Protection for Nearly 50 Years!

610 Twelfth St.

Phone Today NATIONAL 1647

100% Protection for Nearly 50 Years!

610 Twelfth St.

100% Protection for Nearly 50 Years!

610 Twelfth St.

100% Protection for Nearly 50 Years!

League Will Give Party Tomorrow

The League of Republican Women will give a reception in honor of the Republican members of the D. A. R. Congress tomorrow afternoon from 4 to 6 o'clock in the league's headquarters at Sixteenth street and Scott Circle.

Mrs. William Fitch Kelly, president of the league, will preside, and Mrs. Edward Everett Gann will receive the guests. Mrs. Daniel O. Hastings, Mrs. Robert P. Lamont, Mrs. Floyd Thurston, Mrs. Harry Clay Ransley, Mrs. Charles Eaton and Mrs. William Nuckles Doak will assist at the tea table. Others asked to assist are Mrs. James J. Davis, Mrs. Edward F. Colladay, Judge Mary O'Toole, Mrs. Murray Boocock and Mrs. Ellis A. Yost.

PIERRE

Conn. Ave. at Que

The Chef Says:

Come to DINNER TONIGHT

Try Our FROG LEGS

TIOGA YARN SHOP

401 Kresge Building

Wakefield MILK

SHIELD YOUR FAMILY'S HEALTH

Wakefield MILK

OLSON RUGS

MY OLD RUGS AND CLOTHING SAVED ME ABOUT $20

SENT FREE This Big Book in COLORS

DISPLAY-ROOM

OLSON RUG CO.

OPEN—9 A. M. TO 5:30 P. M.

SAFE STORAGE

For household goods ••• silverware ••• rugs, heavy, curtains, tapestries ••• furs and garments ••• wines and spirits ••• works of art ••• pianos ••• automobiles ••• luxuries. Warm storage, cool storage, cold storage, fumigated storage. Capital, Surplus and Reserve Over $1,200,000

ARNOLD GALLERIES

Antique Jewelry, Silver, Sheffield Furniture, Mirrors, Brasses, Art Objects and Wedding Gifts A Specialty.

GIRTH CONTROL

The heavy waistline and the hips mean discomfort, chafing, slow and difficult locomotion and premature aging. Double chin and fat can be controlled by the most efficient and painless facial treatment. Our pure, rejuvenating cream. Colonic irrigation—trained nurses. RIGGS LADIES' TURKISH BATH 1616 14th St. N.W. NE. 7556

There is no Premium for SAKS Improved Storage

100% Protection for Nearly 50 Years!

610 Twelfth St.

Phone Today NATIONAL 1647

100% Protection for Nearly 50 Years!

610 Twelfth St.

100% Protection for Nearly 50 Years!

610 Twelfth St.

100% Protection for Nearly 50 Years!

610 Twelfth St.

100% Protection for Nearly 50 Years!

610 Twelfth St.

100% Protection for Nearly 50 Years!

610 Twelfth St.

100% Protection for Nearly 50 Years!

610 Twelfth St.

100% Protection for Nearly 50 Years!

610 Twelfth St.

100% Protection for Nearly 50 Years!

Davis, Mrs. Edward F. Colladay, Judge Mary O'Toole, Mrs. Murray Boocock and Mrs. Ellis A. Yost.

Phillip-Louise

1737 J. Street (Four Doors East of Conn. Ave.) Closing Out Many Spring Suits $12.95 and Coats. Since 12 to 40

BIGGS HAS THOUSANDS OF CUSTOMERS who are furnishing their homes a few pieces at a time. Showing that there are authentic reproductions never change in design, and that they are always in season or added to.

BIGGS ANTIQUE CO., Inc. 1517 Conn. Ave.

STORE YOUR FURS with experts!

For thirty years furs and woollens have been entrusted to us for safekeeping.

We provide mothproof chests large enough for family use. These cost even less than the moderate charges for garments.

RUGS Cleaned and Stored

FIDELITY STORAGE 1420 U Street North 3400

RUGS CLEANED & STORED

Draperies, Curtains, Clothing, Blankets, cleaned and stored for six months at one price—SAMPLE VALUE $5 other prices proportionately low

Lerch's

Burkin Management 1712 CONNECTICUT AVE. DE 4488

HAWTHORNE HILL

HOME SITES Part of Estate of Victor J. Evans

Not a speculative subdivision. Offering only a few large-sized lots, carefully restricted. Unsurpassed setting, beautiful distant views, high elevation, adjoins U. S. Park. All improvements.

Located on Foxhall Road at top of Hawthorne Hill, between Spring Valley and Wesley Heights, reached via Cathedral Ave., 3 1/2 miles from White House.

James E. Schwab Southern Bldg. DE 4187

SAKS

610 TWELFTH ST.

We Recommend

The Wearin' o' the Green

... particularly if it is glorified by brown squirrel cuffs, and boasts a collar that follows the straight and narrow in back, then graduates to wide "pointed" allure to the fore.

Small Expense Will Give Suit Smart Effect

Accessories of Processed Silk Are Displayed at Downtown Store.

By Ruth Anne Davis.

JUST AN ordinary suit takes on the chic of a Parisian outfit after it has been doctored up with some of the smart accessories featured in a downtown store. They are showing lapels, belts, and scarves made of a processed silk which has a patent leather finish. The lapels, shiny on the outside, have a pique lining. They may be pinned or loosely tacked over the lapel of your coat. By the time you've adjusted the belt, which matches the lapel, and loosely knotted the scarf around your throat, you look for all the world like a picture from a fashion magazine.

In many instances attractive little suits are so modestly priced that it's no burden to the budget to spend a little on accessories to give it the degree of smartness. Certainly a combination of a patent leathery looking scarf, belt and lapels is all that can be desired for additional modishness.

Lamb's Wool Puffs

Eight little lamb's wool puffs neatly wrapped in cellophane quickly endear themselves to their purchaser. It's so nice having a soft downy puff that spreads the powder over your shiny nose in a smooth, soothing way. It's so nice having such little dainties to offer your guests. And, oh, it's ever so nice to pay only one quarter for this attractive, convenient little parcel.

While the puffs are simply ideal for your dressing table, they come in handy to use in your compact, too.

Flowers of Wool and Boucle

Some men seem to think of everything, and certainly this is right up on his toes catering to feminine fancies. He knows how the ladies like to wear a fresh garland, a carnation, maybe a sprig of apple blossoms on their frocks. He knows too, how easily the fragile blossoms fade and lose their fragrance.

So to give us a bouclier that will last the life of a frock and maintain its scent indefinitely, he designed some lovely little flowers from wool and boucle. He spiced these with a perfume which has a heaven-help-us fragrance. It's really that good! If you've never heard of a perfume that has a real "come hither" then you haven't heard of this one. And just imagine, buying a devastating little flower with that fragrance!

A Bargain in Pencils

What fun to find something you'd "go for" sufficiently to pay 10¢ for it and then discover that it's reduced to 4¢ cents! We refer to those little pencils which have the gift of being always ready for an instant's scribbling. Not only do the leads stay automatically on the spot but when the supply is low you can tell at a glance—the pencils are transparent.

Along with the pencils comes a little box of six erasers. For 4¢ cents where's another such bargain?

Make-Up Chart Prepared

Colors can't baffle us any longer. There might have been a time when carbon blue, poinsettia red, dusty pink or grape green would have left us in a quandary wondering what eye shadow, what nail polish? Now, though, with the help of a chart listing the high fashion colors and the make-up to accompany them. You have access to this chart wherever her products are sold.

As far as fingernails are concerned, that color problem is settled, too, by a specialist who manufactures 23 nail polishes and classifies them in regard to popular fashion shades.

This season she has a chart which includes all the "best" blues, greens, reds, yellows, browns and purples, and which tells polishes the recommends for them. For instance, she says if you're wearing Schiaparelli's Pillgrim henna (really a light brown) you should use fire-engine red or tomato colored polish. In the evening these same shades are correct, but if you like variety she recommends gold, topaz or bronze.

All of her polishes have fascinating names, such as Diane red, blush rose, cyclamen, oxblood and rose pearl.

Call Ruth Anne Davis, of The Washington Post National 4200, Extension 355, for further information, or write, inclosing stamped, addressed envelope.

Strictly Speaking

What About These?

1. Where is Stress and how is it pronounced?

2. Is the first "a" in dahlia short or long?

3. What is the preferable pronunciation for dachshund?

Check Here.

1. Stress is in northern Italy. STAY-ss.

2. The first "a" is preferably pronounced as in "ah." DAHL-ya, but DAYL-ya and DAL-ya are also often used.

3. DAKHS-hunt or DAKS-hund.

Business Girl Is Advised To Budget Time at Home

Business girls should not wear themselves out in petty home chores, warns Mrs. Dora S. Lewis, of Olympia, Wash., newly appointed agent under the United States Vocational Education Department.

New Government Vocational Agent Says Slavish Attention to Housekeeping Reduces Chance of Success

THE BUSINESS GIRL who mends her stockings after office hours may be using her time unwisely. Small amounts of money saved on washing, ironing and scrubbing is poor economy when stacked up against lost opportunity in one's life work. With slavish attention to housekeeping details, the career-bent woman only widens the margin between success and failure in her chosen vocation.

"So what the average business girl needs is a good course in home economics," smilingly concluded Mrs. Dora S. Lewis, of Olympia, Wash., newly appointed Federal agent under the vocational education department, who is a recent arrival in the Capital.

Economic orientation is badly lacking in the life of many working girls, believes Mrs. Lewis. The wise business or professional woman, she says, will not try to do everything for herself. She must choose the important tasks and trust to others those less significant, if she would taste success.

Evaluating Time.

"The average working girl," she continued, "hasn't yet learned properly to evaluate her time, money, energy, abilities and limitations. She buys food, clothing and leisure unwisely and manages to cheat herself all around. With but a little thought and study along the line of home economics, she could do more justice to her job, dress better, eat better, live in more attractive surroundings and save money."

Mrs. Lewis, who in spite of her youth has managed to roll into the last ten years a varied and colorful career, will be in charge of an educational program in 11 Western States including her own, Washington. Acting in an advisory capacity, she will travel continuously and meet State supervisors, training school teachers and others engaged in this type of work.

The science of home economics has a vital contribution to make to the recovery program, believes Mrs. Lewis. She has been alert to economic growth out of the present changes in social and economic life.

"The depression? We have it to thank for giving many educational programs a new meaning," she declared. "It provided the home economics teacher a rare impetus. The task of assisting families adjust their lives to lower incomes and solve the riddles of reconstruction offers a thrilling challenge."

Help Individual.

"We've ceased laying down patterns for the homemaker to follow. Today we help the individual figure out her own course in a new future. Nor is the study of home economics confined to the potential full-time housewife. Women of all classes are eagerly taking up the science of economic management. Of such vital importance is the subject becoming that high schools of many States are making it a required course."

Mrs. Lewis, whose career began to take on color as soon as she was graduated from the Washington State Teachers' College, filled one of her first assignments across the Pacific. She taught home economics and became the first dean of women at the University of Hawaii.

"There we had the racial problems to cope with. It was a most stimulating and interesting assignment," she stated. "Of course, at that time it was primarily the higher class Orientals who sent their girls to college. So, in addition to daughters of the American Navy and Army officers, I had those of the well-to-do Japanese, Chinese, Filipinos and Hawaiians under my guardianship."

The tendency to abandon native customs and go entirely American was not encouraged by Mrs. Lewis. She immediately inaugurated pro-

This BUSINESS of LIVING Finding Herself Outside Social Life of Persons Who Rented Her Room in Their Home, Girl Feels Herself Badly Treated.

By Mary Haworth.

DEAR MISS HAWORTH: Will you please give me some much-needed advice? I am renting a room in the home of a young woman and her brother, coming into this place with the understanding that we were to share the house and meals, go places together, and generally have a good time together.

At first everything was lovely. Then this girl began staying in her room when I was in the living room and going away at night and on Sundays, leaving me alone.

Last winter the two of them made me feel so much like the fifth wheel on a two-wheeled car that I told the girl that since she apparently regretted our trying to live together, I would look for another place as soon as I could do so. She suggested and promised pleasant ways of doing things and was so friendly—even affectionate—that I made no further plans to move.

Now again the two of them completely ignore me in all their plans. I am doing a great deal of studying, trying to better my position, and it is very inconvenient for me to move. Aside from their coolness, this is a pleasant place and ideal for anyone who likes attractive surroundings and quiet.

If the girl had been frank with me as I was with her, I would have respected her and sought another place even if it was inconvenient for me. Now I feel like taking my own good time about moving, but I wonder if I degrade myself for the sake of quiet and material comforts by staying in a place where I am so completely ignored. Thanking you for any advice in this matter, I am, gratefully yours,

UNWANTED.

Nonsensical Self-Pity.

DEAR UNWANTED: According to my analysis of this situation you are not at all the injured party you pity yourself as being; and are hitting wide of the mark in blaming your house-mates for your social isolation.

Rather, I am afraid you are unconsciously constituting yourself a sort of social leech, fastening upon the lives of your companions for social nourishment, not realizing you must achieve such psychic income by your own efforts and in your own right.

Since your status in the household—as one bearing a fair share of the financial responsibility—is that of co-partner, you automatically waive claim to such guest emoluments as having others formally remain in the living room while you are there.

Any member of any amiable household is—or should be—fully entitled to the privilege of retiring to the seclusion of his room, on any polite plea, whenever the need or desire arises.

The same freedom of action applies as well, in such a household as yours, to the making of social engagements. The only possible claim you can legitimately make upon the time or society of the others is that of spontaneously dictated by mutual congeniality and its concomitant desire to go places, do things and see people together.

If, in the beginning, there was a verbal agreement to the effect

Lady Baltimore Easily Wins Title of the Queen of Cakes

By Dorothea Duncan.

THE UNANIMOUS vote for the queen of cakes goes to the Lady Baltimore without question. Every pale silvery crumb of this cake expresses perfection. Fruit and nut filling hidden between the towering layers and drifts of white frosting cover top and sides. The Lady Baltimore cake is always on hand for important holidays, but that doesn't exclude it from its place as a popular favorite for everyday meals. Let's make it this way:

Lady Baltimore Cake.

1 cup of butter
2 cups sugar
1 cup of milk
3½ cups sifted cake flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
Whites of six eggs
1 teaspoon rose water
Cream shortening until light and fluffy. Add sugar gradually and cream well after each addition. Mix and sift baking powder and flour (sift flour once before measuring), and add alternately with milk to first mixture. Then add the rose water and cut and fold in egg whites, beaten until stiff and dry. Turn into three greased and floured seven-inch square or round tins and bake in a moderate oven (375 degrees Fahrenheit), 20 minutes. Put layers together with filling and cover top and sides of cake with frosting made as follows:

Fruit and Nut Filling and Frosting.
3 cups sugar
1 cup water
¼ teaspoon cream of tartar
Whites of 3 eggs
½ cup chopped pecan nut meats
Few grains salt
½ cup seeded raisins, chopped
3 eggs cut in thin strips
Put sugar, water and cream of tartar in a smooth granite ware saucepan, bring to the boiling point and let boil until sirup will spin a thread when dropped from the tip of a spoon (24 degrees F.). Pour gradually, while beating constantly, on whites of eggs, beaten until stiff, and continue the beating until the mixture is of the right consistency to spread. Put one-half of the mixture in a bowl and add raisins, nut meats, figs and salt. Use fruit mixture between layers and frost top and sides with remaining frosting.

For the frosting, beat the egg whites until stiff and add the creamed mixture with the vanilla. Beat well. Sift four cups measure and mix with baking powder and salt and sift again. Add dry ingredients to creamed mixture alternately with the milk. Bake in a moderate oven (layers, sheet or individual cakes, 375 degrees F., 20 to 30 minutes; loaf, 350 degrees F., 45 to 60 minutes).

Here is a dinner menu that has been planned especially from the viewpoint of a cake dessert:

Gold Cake.

¼ cup shortening
¼ cup sugar
6 egg yolks
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup milk
3 cups sifted cake flour
4 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
Cream the shortening until light and fluffy and add the sugar, gradually mixing thoroughly after each addition. Beat the egg yolks until thick and lemon colored and add to the creamed mixture with the vanilla. Beat well. Sift four cups measure and mix with baking powder and salt and sift again. Add dry ingredients to creamed mixture alternately with the milk. Bake in a moderate oven (layers, sheet or individual cakes, 375 degrees F., 20 to 30 minutes; loaf, 350 degrees F., 45 to 60 minutes).

Dinner Menu.

Mock Turtle Soup.
Tuna Fish soufflé.
Creamed New Potatoes.
Frenched Green Beans.
Lettuce and Tomato Salad.
Whole Wheat Crackers.
Lady Baltimore Cake.
Milk (for children).

Dorothea Duncan will glad to help you with your culinary problems. Write to her, inclosing a stamped, addressed envelope, in care of The Washington Post.

Tribe Leader Says Indians Pin Hopes on New Deal

Mrs. Dennison Says Race Will Never Adopt the White Man's Ways.

IF THE NEW DEAL becomes a square deal for the Indians, it will be because those in power have discovered you can't make a white man out of an Indian and you might as well make him as good an Indian as possible.

So believes Mrs. Adele Dennison, chairman of the business committee of the Kaw Indians. The only Indian woman delegate to the recent conference in Washington, Mrs. Dennison came in interest of the reorganization act for the Indians. While she waited for appointments with members of Congress, she granted an interview to discuss the Indian situation from an Indian point of view.

Of medium height, with a tendency to plumpness, Mrs. Dennison—the most important person in her tribe—sat quietly. Her tall, lean husband, sitting across the room, was more eloquent. Eagerly she was answering questions, too. Then, in a few minutes, she was talking without answering questions.

Compliments Commissioner.

Loyal to the Commissioner of Indian Affairs, Mrs. Dennison spoke of him as "understanding the mind of the Indian, his possibilities and his aptitudes." She complimented him, also, on his "sympathetic attitude" and the fact that he realized you can't make a white man out of an Indian.

Opposition to his policy, she said, was "instigated by white people who stood a chance to profit by some other plan." She further pointed out that the New Deal had given her tribe the first glimpse of hope they had ever had, since the days when the white man first began pushing Indians to the West.

There would be a chance now for Indians to receive Federal protection in retaining their lands; there would be an opportunity for them to obtain more and better land; and there would be a possibility of their learning how to help themselves, she asserted. "Only by these means can Indians hope to survive," she said.

Mrs. Dennison represents a small

Catholic Group Will Entertain

Spring Card Party and Dance to Be Held at Willard April 25.

THE DISTRICT of Columbia branch of the Catholic Daughters of America will hold its annual spring card party and dance April 25 at the Willard Hotel. Among the patrons are the Very Rev. C. F. Thomas, the Rev. E. H. Roach, Miss Grace Sprucebank, Mrs. Alice Ashe, Mrs. Mae Weidner, Mrs. Annie E. Barrett, Miss Dorothy E. Barrett, Miss Margaret Cahill, Mrs. Helen Coffren, Miss Dail C. Daley, Miss Marie Creahan, Miss Louise Daley, Mrs. Nena Diesman, Miss Katherine Dougherty, Miss Florence T. Eichen, Mrs. Marie Eliza, Dr. George R. Ellis.

Others are Miss Bess Fitzpatrick, Mrs. John R. Fitzpatrick, Mrs. Agatha Haines, Miss Florence Hoffer, George F. Howell, Joseph Johnson, Mrs. Mary Kamper, Mrs. Alice Kase, Mrs. Catherine Larkin, Katherine Lynch, Miss Olive Lynch, Mrs. Katherine R. Martin, Miss Mary Oliphant, Miss Agnes Quinn, Miss Ramona Riley, Mrs. Lottie Reynolds, Miss Gertrude Smith, Mrs. Katherine Ryan, Harry Schmitt, Mrs. Nora Schmitt, Mrs. Mary T. Shanahan, Miss Ethyl Sweet, Miss Augusta Uhl and Miss Charlotte Urd.

Mrs. Katherine Follard, general chairman, will be assisted by Mrs. Anna J. Uhl, hostesses; Miss Ethyl Sweet, secretary; Miss Marie Weidner, program; Miss Annabel Ardenes, tickets; Miss Margaret Trammell, treasurer; Miss Josephine Walsh, cards and tables; Mrs. Ida Howell, sponsors; Mrs. Elizabeth Rogers, prizes; Miss Mary O'Connor, dance; Mrs. McGrain, floor show.

Assisting Miss Weidner in the program will be Mrs. Dorothy A. Mahoney, Miss Dorothea U. Barrett, Mrs. Rose Andrews, Mrs. Margaret Keane, Miss Catherine Larkin, Mrs. Margaret Farrell, Mrs. Mildred Rosenberger.

Post Staff Photo. Indians can never be "made over to order" by the white man's standards, thinks Mrs. Adele Dennison, representative of the Kaws, who came to Washington to discuss details of the Indian reorganization act.

tribe of 508 Indians, living in northern Oklahoma, near Ponca City. The Kaws, she explained, were at one time associated with the Osages, but were peace lovers and "broke away from the bigger tribe because they didn't want to fight." The Osages then gave them the name of "Kaw," the Indian word for "coward."

Backs Government Schools.

"We are a little tribe now, with only about 60 full-bloods among us," she said. "Yet we are the only Indians ever to have a representative in the Vice President's chair. (She was referring to Charles Curtis, her distant cousin, who is part Kaw.)"

Mrs. Dennison was educated in Government schools, and believes Government schools should be retained on every Indian Reservation. She speaks English better than Indian and said most of the Kaws (unlike the Navajos) speak two languages.

Although she has five grown children and three grandchildren, Mrs. Dennison could easily pass for a woman in her late twenties or early thirties. Asked how she had retained her youth, Mrs. Dennison smiled and said she wasn't aware she had; but if she had, it was because she had "enough Indian blood not to take life too seriously. While people worry about everything, the average Indian takes life just as it comes."

What Today Means

"Aries."

IF APRIL 17 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 10:15 a. m. until noon, from 1:15 to 3:15 p. m. and from 7:15 to 9:15 p. m. The danger periods are from 8:15 to 10:15 a. m., from 3:15 to 5:15 p. m., and from 9:15 to 11:15 p. m.

The handling of anything on this date will require that strict attention is paid to whatever you are doing. If breakage or accidents are to be avoided. Allowing yourself to indulge in absent-mindedness, or attempting to do more than one thing at the same time, is likely to prove expensive. The discussing of irrelative subjects, when on a business call, should be kept clear of, as a good deal of valuable time may be wasted, and a busy man or woman is likely to become irritated.

It will be a mistake to try to combine business with pleasure on this date. Those socially inclined will perhaps find it unwise to try springing unexpected surprises.

Copyright, 1935, by The Bell Syndicate, Inc.

TO DAY

IT IS

New..

Zibeline Sachet

Boutonnieres...

The flowers that pop out of these Easter gift boxes are large and luxuriant and delightfully fragrant, though they're not real! They're a new idea, all done up in cotton or string or wool, with heart of that smart Zibeline sachet. And they're tucked carefully in green tissue in a little round box, tied with red ribbon.

$2.00

Fortunes, Street floor.

THE NEW

Jelliff

1214-1220 F Street

Larimer's

DEcatur 3366

1737 Connecticut Avenue

Just below Packard Sales Room

Senate Lobby Inquiry Opens;
Nine Escape in Plane Crash

Associated Press Wirephoto.
"SPARTAN" DAUGHTER OF FILM ACTOR—Greta Karen Hale, 9, daughter of Alan Hale, film player, concealed fact that she had broken back for two days in order not to worry father. Parents are shown with her.

Associated Press Wirephoto.
GOVERNOR AIDED BY THE PEOPLE—Public appeal of Gov. Martin L. Davey of Ohio, for funds to operate office brought flood of contributions. Senate had refused request. He is shown with Miss Irene Irwin, his stenographer.

Underwood & Underwood.
SENATE INQUIRY ON LOBBYING OPENS.—Members of sub-committee, which opened hearings on Senator Black's bill to regulate lobbyists, as shown yesterday. Left to right, Senators Norris, Black, Neeley and Hatch. Black was first witness.

Associated Press Wirephoto.
SERUM WINNING FIGHT AGAINST STRANGE AILMENT.—Dr. Frank G. Bolan claims "Formula X" has removed all "ape-like appearances" from George Bocklet, at Azusa, Calif. Bocklet feared evolutionary process had been reversed.

+ C. A. R. Assembles Here +

Post Staff Photo.
CHILDREN OF AMERICAN REVOLUTION ASSEMBLE.—Here is a general view of the group, meeting in connection with the Daughters of the American Revolution, in front of the Red Cross Building yesterday.

Associated Press Photo.
NEW JERSEY D. A. R. GROUP HOLDS LUNCHEON.—Members of the D. A. R. and their guests at the luncheon held here yesterday. From left to right are Mrs. W. Warren Barbour, Mrs. C. Edward Murray, Senator Barbour, Mrs. William A. Becker, Mrs. J. W. Ward and Senator Moore.

Post Staff Photo.
FLAG PRESENTED TO C. A. R. PRESIDENT.—Mrs. Arthur D. Wall, national chairman, use of flag committee of the D. A. R., presenting Colorado State flag to Mrs. C. A. Swann Sinclair, national president of C. A. R., yesterday.

Associated Press Wirephoto.
NINE ESCAPE INJURY IN PLANE CRASH.—Six passengers, two pilots and a stewardess narrowly escaped death when this airliner went through a fence at Detroit City Airport as it prepared to take off.

Flag Presented at Convention;
Page Honors Visiting Leader

Post Staff Photo.
PAGE HONORS LEADER OF C. A. R.—John Frederic Whitecomb, Jr., presents flowers to Mrs. Eleanor Washington Howard, left, national vice president of the C. A. R., and Mrs. Russell William Magna, right, president general of the D. A. R.

Post Staff Photo.
MARKER UNVEILED AT TREE.—Federation of Women's Clubs sponsored ceremony in Meridian Park yesterday. (L. to r.) R. T. Edwards, American Tree Association; Mrs. M. L. Briggs, handing corsage to Mrs. Harvey Wiley, its president, and Mrs. Harold Ickes.

Associated Press Photo.
NEWLYWEDS WITH DERBY HOPE.—Mrs. Charles H. Hainsworth and her jockey-trainer bridegroom, inspect Blackbird, Kentucky Derby entry, at Churchill Downs.

Associated Press Wirephoto.
OFF ON DUST AREA TOUR.—M. L. Wilson, left, Assistant Secretary of Agriculture, and Gov. Landon, of Kansas, are inspecting dust-blown region of State.

The Federal Diary

Trade-Mark Registered U. S. Patent Office.

By Morgan Baker.

STRONG support for various proposals to amend existing retirement legislation, notably those which would provide 30-year optional retirement, to legislative employees and provide for widows' pensions, appeared yesterday in testimony given by a dozen or more witnesses before a sub-committee of the Senate Civil Service Committee.

BAKER.

The sub-committee, composed of Senators Kenneth D. McKellar, Harry F. Byrd and Ernest W. Gibson, considered a number of bills embodying these points as well as a uniform retirement system for employees in the tropics and liberalization of provisions relating to disability retirement.

The first witness, Robert H. Alcorn, chairman of the joint conference on retirement, declared his organization is particularly interested in adoption of the optional retirement provision at this session.

Joseph B. O'Leary, representing the Typographical Union, pointed out that 30 years is a long time to operate a linotype machine or read proof and that after such service men should be relieved from the strain of work of this character.

E. Claude Babcock, president, American Federation of Government Employees, said his organization is fully in sympathy with the optional retirement plan and that retirement should benefit and protect employees as well as the Government. The Government can eliminate the superannuated, he said, and thus far the Government has consulted its own convenience in retirement procedure although the employees have paid more than their share into the fund.

Prior to the economy act, he said, there were about 24,000 persons eligible for 30-year retirement and 7,000 were actually retired under the compulsory provision of that act. Mr. Babcock estimated that 18,000 are now eligible for 30-year retirement. If all these were retired by compulsion, he said, the cost would be about $20,000,000 a year, but experience showed that only 5 or 6 per cent accepted optional retirement. He estimated the cost at $1,000,000 to $1,200,000 a year.

AFGE in New Home.

National headquarters of the American Federation of Government Employees moved yesterday from the Ouray building to the seventh floor of the Washington Loan & Trust Building, Ninth and F streets northwest. The FERA has taken over space vacated by the AFGE.

Offices of the District Department, AFGE, which also were located in the Ouray Building, have been moved to the fifth floor of the Washington Loan & Trust structure.

James W. Haley, Quartermaster Depot, War, is reported resting comfortably following an operation at George Washington University Hospital Monday. Mr. Haley is editor of the Hatchet, university paper. According to Dr. Daniel L. Borden, university physician, Mr. Haley should be out of the hospital in a week.

Newell Wins Prize.

Winners of weekly prizes in the District Federation of Federal Employees Unions' membership drive were announced last night by Miss Matilda Lindsay, national organizer of the N. F. F. E.

First prize goes to Charles J. Newell (F), National Park Service. Mr. Newell last week won second prize. Second prize this week goes to John L. Bateman (C), General Accounting Office. Because so many persons tied for third prize, a run-off will be held.

WAR DEPARTMENT LOCAL. No. 261, N. F. F. E., reports its April meeting was one of the most enthusiastic in months. On the program, at which William S. Kinney, membership committee chairman, presided, the following spoke:

B. W. Kleinwachter, Signal Corps, on "The History and Accomplishments of the N. F. F. E.," Miss Gertrude Coyle, on "The Future of the Organization," Miss Pearl Cooper (F), on "Varied Benefits or By-Products," Jesse Lay, Quartermaster Depot, War, on "The Future of the Organization."

Catholics Today Hold Tenebrae Ceremonies

Holy Week services will begin in all Catholic churches today with the Tenebrae ceremony. This service will be sung at the Church of the Immaculate Conception tonight at 7:45 by the Friars of the Atonement. It will be repeated tomorrow and Friday.

Dr. John K. Cartwright, pastor of the church, will preside over the services. The sole morning service tomorrow, Friday and Saturday, will be held at 9 a. m. The Rev. Felix Kirch of the Capuchians will celebrate the Three Hours' Agony on Good Friday in the church.

For the perfect DRY MARTINI

MARTINI & ROSSI DRY VERMOUTH

Imported by
J. A. V. & CO., N. Y.

master Corps, on "How I Sell the Organization." Among group leaders present were S. C. Donoghue, William E. Hoffmann, Mrs. J. J. Walsh, Walter P. Duffy, Miss Emma E. McKnett, Mrs. C. Ryan, H. W. Wakenfield, Mrs. A. Caylor, Miss Elva DeGraw and Charles Bonnevillie. Other group meetings will be held through the spring.

Henry Fliedner (F) is being congratulated by his coworkers at Government Printing Office upon becoming the father of a seven-pound baby girl. Mrs. Fliedner and infant are reported resting nicely at Sibley Hospital. They have named their daughter Ann Wittmer.

HOLC Officers Moved.

As space becomes available and the work settles into a steady routine, employees of Home Owners Loan Corporation are being established in more comfortable quarters. The HOLC has now vacated all of the Standard Oil Building except the third floor, which still houses 269 employees of Auditing Division. Thirty in this division have just moved from 101 Indiana avenue to the Standard Oil Building, while moving to the former are the following:

Forty-six Federal Home Loan Board examiners.

The Division of Economic Research and Statistics, headed by Dr.

Spurgeon Bell, composed of 43 employees. The HOLC district office in the Investment Building has been vacated and 32 employees, under William M. Beay, district manager, have been moved to the headquarters at 101 Indiana avenue. A cashier's cage has been set up in Room 135 for the convenience of local home-owner borrowers who prefer to make their payment to the corporation in person rather than mail them to the regional office at Baltimore.

Miss Catherine Pilling, secretary to James M. Bruce, former financial adviser to the Federal Home Loan Board and now vice president of National Daily Products, New York, is recuperating from an attack of typhoid fever. Her condition was critical for some time. Miss Pilling, who was one of the most efficient and popular members of the secretarial corps, is at her home in Baltimore, where she is being showered with notes and flowers from HOLC people in Washington.

Diary Guest Tickets.

If F, P or C follows your name in this column, call in person on the Federal Diary editor today between 4:30 and 6 p. m. You will receive tickets to one of the following Loew's theaters: (F) Loew's Fox stage, "Spices of 1935" and other acts, screen, Paul Lukas and Allison Skipworth in "Casino Murder Case"; or to (P) Loew's Palace (second week of Bing Crosby and Joan Bennett in "Mississippi"); or to (C) Loew's Columbia (Will Rogers in "Life Begins at 40").

Needed: 30 Days.

The Bureau of Engraving employees need Thirty days annual leave, indeed. In order to recuperate. From hours harassing, long and late.

Even the flowers that bloom afield Do not forever smile and yield Their rare perfumes, but they retrieve Their strength through Mother Nature's leave.

And then return once more in Spring To bid glad birds and poets sing So to make everything complete. There is no plan which could be best Than the Government's giving us leave and then When we'll come marching in again Be back to work serene and sweet.

JAY VAUGHN (F),

Surface Division, Bureau of Engraving and Printing.

Service Orders

Army and Navy Transfers Yesterday.

By the Associated Press.

Navy orders yesterday included:

CAPTAINS. Donald C. Busham, U. S. S. Maryland, to staff, Army War College, Fort Monmouth, N. J.; Robert L. Chormier, Navy Department, to command U. S. S. Nevada, Department of Command and Control, Naval Academy, Annapolis, Md.; John M. Stover, chief of staff, commander aircraft, Base Force in June, to command U. S. S. Lander, Adolphus Station, U. S. S. Nevada, to staff, Command and Control Staff School, Fort Leavenworth, Kansas.

COMMODORES. Francis T. Choe, Training Naval District, to Staff, Naval District, U. S. S. Lander, Adolphus Station, U. S. S. Nevada, to staff, Command and Control Staff School, Fort Leavenworth, Kansas.

LIBRARY COORDINATORS. John J. Bartholdi, U. S. S. Tabor, to station, Dan Slesinger, Iowa, Albert A. Freed, chief of staff, U. S. S. Lander, Adolphus Station, U. S. S. Nevada, to staff, Command and Control Staff School, Fort Leavenworth, Kansas.

LIBRARY COORDINATORS. John J. Bartholdi, U. S. S. Tabor, to station, Dan Slesinger, Iowa, Albert A. Freed, chief of staff, U. S. S. Lander, Adolphus Station, U. S. S. Nevada, to staff, Command and Control Staff School, Fort Leavenworth, Kansas.

LIBRARY COORDINATORS. John J. Bartholdi, U. S. S. Tabor, to station, Dan Slesinger, Iowa, Albert A. Freed, chief of staff, U. S. S. Lander, Adolphus Station, U. S. S. Nevada, to staff, Command and Control Staff School, Fort Leavenworth, Kansas.

LIBRARY COORDINATORS. John J. Bartholdi, U. S. S. Tabor, to station, Dan Slesinger, Iowa, Albert A. Freed, chief of staff, U. S. S. Lander, Adolphus Station, U. S. S. Nevada, to staff, Command and Control Staff School, Fort Leavenworth, Kansas.

LIBRARY COORDINATORS. John J. Bartholdi, U. S. S. Tabor, to station, Dan Slesinger, Iowa, Albert A. Freed, chief of staff, U. S. S. Lander, Adolphus Station, U. S. S. Nevada, to staff, Command and Control Staff School, Fort Leavenworth, Kansas.

LIBRARY COORDINATORS. John J. Bartholdi, U. S. S. Tabor, to station, Dan Slesinger, Iowa, Albert A. Freed, chief of staff, U. S. S. Lander, Adolphus Station, U. S. S. Nevada, to staff, Command and Control Staff School, Fort Leavenworth, Kansas.

LIBRARY COORDINATORS. John J. Bartholdi, U. S. S. Tabor, to station, Dan Slesinger, Iowa, Albert A. Freed, chief of staff, U. S. S. Lander, Adolphus Station, U. S. S. Nevada, to staff, Command and Control Staff School, Fort Leavenworth, Kansas.

LIBRARY COORDINATORS. John J. Bartholdi, U. S. S. Tabor, to station, Dan Slesinger, Iowa, Albert A. Freed, chief of staff, U. S. S. Lander, Adolphus Station, U. S. S. Nevada, to staff, Command and Control Staff School, Fort Leavenworth, Kansas.

LIBRARY COORDINATORS. John J. Bartholdi, U. S. S. Tabor, to station, Dan Slesinger, Iowa, Albert A. Freed, chief of staff, U. S. S. Lander, Adolphus Station, U. S. S. Nevada, to staff, Command and Control Staff School, Fort Leavenworth, Kansas.

LIBRARY COORDINATORS. John J. Bartholdi, U. S. S. Tabor, to station, Dan Slesinger, Iowa, Albert A. Freed, chief of staff, U. S. S. Lander, Adolphus Station, U. S. S. Nevada, to staff, Command and Control Staff School, Fort Leavenworth, Kansas.

LIBRARY COORDINATORS. John J. Bartholdi, U. S. S. Tabor, to station, Dan Slesinger, Iowa, Albert A. Freed, chief of staff, U. S. S. Lander, Adolphus Station, U. S. S. Nevada, to staff, Command and Control Staff School, Fort Leavenworth, Kansas.

LIBRARY COORDINATORS. John J. Bartholdi, U. S. S. Tabor, to station, Dan Slesinger, Iowa, Albert A. Freed, chief of staff, U. S. S. Lander, Adolphus Station, U. S. S. Nevada, to staff, Command and Control Staff School, Fort Leavenworth, Kansas.

LIBRARY COORDINATORS. John J. Bartholdi, U. S. S. Tabor, to station, Dan Slesinger, Iowa, Albert A. Freed, chief of staff, U. S. S. Lander, Adolphus Station, U. S. S. Nevada, to staff, Command and Control Staff School, Fort Leavenworth, Kansas.

LIBRARY COORDINATORS. John J. Bartholdi, U. S. S. Tabor, to station, Dan Slesinger, Iowa, Albert A. Freed, chief of staff, U. S. S. Lander, Adolphus Station, U. S. S. Nevada, to staff, Command and Control Staff School, Fort Leavenworth, Kansas.

LIBRARY COORDINATORS. John J. Bartholdi, U. S. S. Tabor, to station, Dan Slesinger, Iowa, Albert A. Freed, chief of staff, U. S. S. Lander, Adolphus Station, U. S. S. Nevada, to staff, Command and Control Staff School, Fort Leavenworth, Kansas.

LIBRARY COORDINATORS. John J. Bartholdi, U. S. S. Tabor, to station, Dan Slesinger, Iowa, Albert A. Freed, chief of staff, U. S. S. Lander, Adolphus Station, U. S. S. Nevada, to staff, Command and Control Staff School, Fort Leavenworth, Kansas.

LIBRARY COORDINATORS. John J. Bartholdi, U. S. S. Tabor, to station, Dan Slesinger, Iowa, Albert A. Freed, chief of staff, U. S. S. Lander, Adolphus Station, U. S. S. Nevada, to staff, Command and Control Staff School, Fort Leavenworth, Kansas.

LIBRARY COORDINATORS. John J. Bartholdi, U. S. S. Tabor, to station, Dan Slesinger, Iowa, Albert A. Freed, chief of staff, U. S. S. Lander, Adolphus Station, U. S. S. Nevada, to staff, Command and Control Staff School, Fort Leavenworth, Kansas.

LIBRARY COORDINATORS. John J. Bartholdi, U. S. S. Tabor, to station, Dan Slesinger, Iowa, Albert A. Freed, chief of staff, U. S. S. Lander, Adolphus Station, U. S. S. Nevada, to staff, Command and Control Staff School, Fort Leavenworth, Kansas.

LIBRARY COORDINATORS. John J. Bartholdi, U. S. S. Tabor, to station, Dan Slesinger, Iowa, Albert A. Freed, chief of staff, U. S. S. Lander, Adolphus Station, U. S. S. Nevada, to staff, Command and Control Staff School, Fort Leavenworth, Kansas.

LIBRARY COORDINATORS. John J. Bartholdi, U. S. S. Tabor, to station, Dan Slesinger, Iowa, Albert A. Freed, chief of staff, U. S. S. Lander, Adolphus Station, U. S. S. Nevada, to staff, Command and Control Staff School, Fort Leavenworth, Kansas.

LIBRARY COORDINATORS. John J. Bartholdi, U. S. S. Tabor, to station, Dan Slesinger, Iowa, Albert A. Freed, chief of staff, U. S. S. Lander, Adolphus Station, U. S. S. Nevada, to staff, Command and Control Staff School, Fort Leavenworth, Kansas.

LIBRARY COORDINATORS. John J. Bartholdi, U. S. S. Tabor, to station, Dan Slesinger, Iowa, Albert A. Freed, chief of staff, U. S. S. Lander, Adolphus Station, U. S. S. Nevada, to staff, Command and Control Staff School, Fort Leavenworth, Kansas.

LIBRARY COORDINATORS. John J. Bartholdi, U. S. S. Tabor, to station, Dan Slesinger, Iowa, Albert A. Freed, chief of staff, U. S. S. Lander, Adolphus Station, U. S. S. Nevada, to staff, Command and Control Staff School, Fort Leavenworth, Kansas.

LIBRARY COORDINATORS. John J. Bartholdi, U. S. S. Tabor, to station, Dan Slesinger, Iowa, Albert A. Freed, chief of staff, U. S. S. Lander, Adolphus Station, U. S. S. Nevada, to staff, Command and Control Staff School, Fort Leavenworth, Kansas.

LIBRARY COORDINATORS. John J. Bartholdi, U. S. S. Tabor, to station, Dan Slesinger, Iowa, Albert A. Freed, chief of staff, U. S. S. Lander, Adolphus Station, U. S. S. Nevada, to staff, Command and Control Staff School, Fort Leavenworth, Kansas.

LIBRARY COORDINATORS. John J. Bartholdi, U. S. S. Tabor, to station, Dan Slesinger, Iowa, Albert A. Freed, chief of staff, U. S. S. Lander, Adolphus Station, U. S. S. Nevada, to staff, Command and Control Staff School, Fort Leavenworth, Kansas.

LIBRARY COORDINATORS. John J. Bartholdi, U. S. S. Tabor, to station, Dan Slesinger, Iowa, Albert A. Freed, chief of staff, U. S. S. Lander, Adolphus Station, U. S. S. Nevada, to staff, Command and Control Staff School, Fort Leavenworth, Kansas.

LIBRARY COORDINATORS. John J. Bartholdi, U. S. S. Tabor, to station, Dan Slesinger, Iowa, Albert A. Freed, chief of staff, U. S. S. Lander, Adolphus Station, U. S. S. Nevada, to staff, Command and Control Staff School, Fort Leavenworth, Kansas.

LIBRARY COORDINATORS. John J. Bartholdi, U. S. S. Tabor, to station, Dan Slesinger, Iowa, Albert A. Freed, chief of staff, U. S. S. Lander, Adolphus Station, U. S. S. Nevada, to staff, Command and Control Staff School, Fort Leavenworth, Kansas.

LIBRARY COORDINATORS. John J. Bartholdi, U. S. S. Tabor, to station, Dan Slesinger, Iowa, Albert A. Freed, chief of staff, U. S. S. Lander, Adolphus Station, U. S. S. Nevada, to staff, Command and Control Staff School, Fort Leavenworth, Kansas.

LIBRARY COORDINATORS. John J. Bartholdi, U. S. S. Tabor, to station, Dan Slesinger, Iowa, Albert A. Freed, chief of staff, U. S. S. Lander, Adolphus Station, U. S. S. Nevada, to staff, Command and Control Staff School, Fort Leavenworth, Kansas.

LIBRARY COORDINATORS. John J. Bartholdi, U. S. S. Tabor, to station, Dan Slesinger, Iowa, Albert A. Freed, chief of staff, U. S. S. Lander, Adolphus Station, U. S. S. Nevada, to staff, Command and Control Staff School, Fort Leavenworth, Kansas.

LIBRARY COORDINATORS. John J. Bartholdi, U. S. S. Tabor, to station, Dan Slesinger, Iowa, Albert A. Freed, chief of staff, U. S. S. Lander, Adolphus Station, U. S. S. Nevada, to staff, Command and Control Staff School, Fort Leavenworth, Kansas.

LIBRARY COORDINATORS. John J. Bartholdi, U. S. S. Tabor, to station, Dan Slesinger, Iowa, Albert A. Freed, chief of staff, U. S. S. Lander, Adolphus Station, U. S. S. Nevada, to staff, Command and Control Staff School, Fort Leavenworth, Kansas.

LIBRARY COORDINATORS. John J. Bartholdi, U. S. S. Tabor, to station, Dan Slesinger, Iowa, Albert A. Freed, chief of staff, U. S. S. Lander, Adolphus Station, U. S. S. Nevada, to staff, Command and Control Staff School, Fort Leavenworth, Kansas.

LIBRARY COORDINATORS. John J. Bartholdi, U. S. S. Tabor, to station, Dan Slesinger, Iowa, Albert A. Freed, chief of staff, U. S. S. Lander, Adolphus Station, U. S. S. Nevada, to staff, Command and Control Staff School, Fort Leavenworth, Kansas.

LIBRARY COORDINATORS. John J. Bartholdi, U. S. S. Tabor, to station, Dan Slesinger, Iowa, Albert A. Freed, chief of staff, U. S. S. Lander, Adolphus Station, U. S. S. Nevada, to staff, Command and Control Staff School, Fort Leavenworth, Kansas.

LIBRARY COORDINATORS. John J. Bartholdi, U. S. S. Tabor, to station, Dan Slesinger, Iowa, Albert A. Freed, chief of staff, U. S. S. Lander, Adolphus Station, U. S. S. Nevada, to staff, Command and Control Staff School, Fort Leavenworth, Kansas.

LIBRARY COORDINATORS. John J. Bartholdi, U. S. S. Tabor, to station, Dan Slesinger, Iowa, Albert A. Freed, chief of staff, U. S. S. Lander, Adolphus Station, U. S. S. Nevada, to staff, Command and Control Staff School, Fort Leavenworth, Kansas.

LIBRARY COORDINATORS. John J. Bartholdi, U. S. S. Tabor, to station, Dan Slesinger, Iowa, Albert A. Freed, chief of staff, U. S. S. Lander, Adolphus Station, U. S. S. Nevada, to staff, Command and Control Staff School, Fort Leavenworth, Kansas.

LIBRARY COORDINATORS. John J. Bartholdi, U. S. S. Tabor, to station, Dan Slesinger, Iowa, Albert A. Freed, chief of staff, U. S. S. Lander, Adolphus Station, U. S. S. Nevada, to staff, Command and Control Staff School, Fort Leavenworth, Kansas.

LIBRARY COORDINATORS. John J. Bartholdi, U. S. S. Tabor, to station, Dan Slesinger, Iowa, Albert A. Freed, chief of staff, U. S. S. Lander, Adolphus Station, U. S. S. Nevada, to staff, Command and Control Staff School, Fort Leavenworth, Kansas.

LIBRARY COORDINATORS. John J. Bartholdi, U. S. S. Tabor, to station, Dan Slesinger, Iowa, Albert A. Freed, chief of staff, U. S. S. Lander, Adolphus Station, U. S. S. Nevada, to staff, Command and Control Staff School, Fort Leavenworth, Kansas.

LIBRARY COORDINATORS. John J. Bartholdi, U. S. S. Tabor, to station, Dan Slesinger, Iowa, Albert A. Freed, chief of staff, U. S. S. Lander, Adolphus Station, U. S. S. Nevada, to staff, Command and Control Staff School, Fort Leavenworth, Kansas.

LIBRARY COORDINATORS. John J. Bartholdi, U. S. S. Tabor, to station, Dan Slesinger, Iowa, Albert A. Freed, chief of staff, U. S. S. Lander, Adolphus Station, U. S. S. Nevada, to staff, Command and Control Staff School, Fort Leavenworth, Kansas.

LIBRARY COORDINATORS. John J. Bartholdi, U. S. S. Tabor, to station, Dan Slesinger, Iowa, Albert A. Freed, chief of staff, U. S. S. Lander, Adolphus Station, U. S. S. Nevada, to staff, Command and Control Staff School, Fort Leavenworth, Kansas.

LIBRARY COORDINATORS. John J. Bartholdi, U. S. S. Tabor, to station, Dan Slesinger, Iowa, Albert A. Freed, chief of staff, U. S. S. Lander, Adolphus Station, U. S. S. Nevada, to staff, Command and Control Staff School, Fort Leavenworth, Kansas.

LIBRARY COORDINATORS. John J. Bartholdi, U. S. S. Tabor, to station, Dan Slesinger, Iowa, Albert A. Freed, chief of staff, U. S. S. Lander, Adolphus Station, U. S. S. Nevada, to staff, Command and Control Staff School, Fort Leavenworth, Kansas.

LIBRARY COORDINATORS. John J. Bartholdi, U. S. S. Tabor, to station, Dan Slesinger, Iowa, Albert A. Freed, chief of staff, U. S. S. Lander, Adolphus Station, U. S. S. Nevada, to staff, Command and Control Staff School, Fort Leavenworth, Kansas.

LIBRARY COORDINATORS. John J. Bartholdi, U. S. S. Tabor, to station, Dan Slesinger, Iowa, Albert A. Freed, chief of staff, U. S. S. Lander, Adolphus Station, U. S. S. Nevada, to staff, Command and Control Staff School, Fort Leavenworth, Kansas.

LIBRARY COORDINATORS. John J. Bartholdi, U. S. S. Tabor, to station, Dan Slesinger, Iowa, Albert A. Freed, chief of staff, U. S. S. Lander, Adolphus Station, U. S. S. Nevada, to staff, Command and Control Staff School, Fort Leavenworth, Kansas.

LIBRARY COORDINATORS. John J. Bartholdi, U. S. S. Tabor, to station, Dan Slesinger, Iowa, Albert A. Freed, chief of staff, U. S. S. Lander, Adolphus Station, U. S. S. Nevada, to staff, Command and Control Staff School, Fort Leavenworth, Kansas.

LIBRARY COORDINATORS. John J. Bartholdi, U. S. S. Tabor, to station, Dan Slesinger, Iowa, Albert A. Freed, chief of staff, U. S. S. Lander, Adolphus Station, U. S. S. Nevada, to staff, Command and Control Staff School, Fort Leavenworth, Kansas.

LIBRARY COORDINATORS. John J. Bartholdi, U. S. S. Tabor, to station, Dan Slesinger, Iowa, Albert A. Freed, chief of staff, U. S. S. Lander, Adolphus Station, U. S. S. Nevada, to staff, Command and Control Staff School, Fort Leavenworth, Kansas.

LIBRARY COORDINATORS. John J. Bartholdi, U. S. S. Tabor, to station, Dan Slesinger, Iowa, Albert A. Freed, chief of staff, U. S. S. Lander, Adolphus Station, U. S. S. Nevada, to staff, Command and Control Staff School, Fort Leavenworth, Kansas.

William F. McGirt, U. S. S. Salt Lake City, to Asiatic Station, Frank Moore, U. S. S. Salt Lake City, to duty as officer in Navy Recruiting Station, Richmond, Va.; Thomas O. Winkle, U. S. S. Lander, to U. S. S. Gold.

LIBRARY COORDINATORS. John J. Bartholdi, U. S. S. Tabor, to station, Dan Slesinger, Iowa, Albert A. Freed, chief of staff, U. S. S. Lander, Adolphus Station, U. S. S. Nevada, to staff, Command and Control Staff School, Fort Leavenworth, Kansas.

LIBRARY COORDINATORS. John J. Bartholdi, U. S. S. Tabor, to station, Dan Slesinger, Iowa, Albert A. Freed, chief of staff, U. S. S. Lander, Adolphus Station, U. S. S. Nevada, to staff, Command and Control Staff School, Fort Leavenworth, Kansas.

LIBRARY COORDINATORS. John J. Bartholdi, U. S. S. Tabor, to station, Dan Slesinger, Iowa, Albert A. Freed, chief of staff, U. S. S. Lander, Adolphus Station, U. S. S. Nevada, to staff, Command and Control Staff School, Fort Leavenworth, Kansas.

LIBRARY COORDINATORS. John J. Bartholdi, U. S. S. Tabor, to station, Dan Slesinger, Iowa, Albert A. Freed, chief of staff, U. S. S. Lander, Adolphus Station, U. S. S. Nevada, to staff, Command and Control Staff School, Fort Leavenworth, Kansas.

LIBRARY COORDINATORS. John J. Bartholdi, U. S. S. Tabor, to station, Dan Slesinger, Iowa, Albert A. Freed, chief of staff, U. S. S. Lander, Adolphus Station, U. S. S. Nevada, to staff, Command and Control Staff School, Fort Leavenworth, Kansas.

LIBRARY COORDINATORS. John J. Bartholdi, U. S. S. Tabor, to station, Dan Slesinger, Iowa, Albert A. Freed, chief of staff, U. S. S. Lander, Adolphus Station, U. S. S. Nevada, to staff, Command and Control Staff School, Fort Leavenworth, Kansas.

LIBRARY COORDINATORS. John J. Bartholdi, U. S. S. Tabor, to station, Dan Slesinger, Iowa, Albert A. Freed, chief of staff, U. S. S. Lander, Adolphus Station, U. S. S. Nevada, to staff, Command and Control Staff School, Fort Leavenworth, Kansas.

LIBRARY COORDINATORS. John J. Bartholdi, U. S. S. Tabor, to station, Dan Slesinger, Iowa, Albert A. Freed, chief of staff, U. S. S. Lander, Adolphus Station, U. S. S. Nevada, to staff, Command and Control Staff School, Fort Leavenworth, Kansas.

LIBRARY COORDINATORS. John J. Bartholdi, U. S. S. Tabor, to station, Dan Slesinger, Iowa, Albert A. Freed, chief of staff, U. S. S. Lander, Adolphus Station, U. S. S. Nevada, to staff, Command and Control Staff School, Fort Leavenworth, Kansas.

LIBRARY COORDINATORS. John J. Bartholdi, U. S. S. Tabor, to station, Dan Slesinger, Iowa, Albert A. Freed, chief of staff, U. S. S. Lander, Adolphus Station, U. S. S. Nevada, to staff, Command and Control Staff School, Fort Leavenworth, Kansas.

LIBRARY COORDINATORS. John J. Bartholdi, U. S. S. Tabor, to station, Dan Slesinger, Iowa, Albert A. Freed, chief of staff, U. S. S. Lander, Adolphus Station, U. S. S. Nevada, to staff, Command and Control Staff School, Fort Leavenworth, Kansas.

LIBRARY COORDINATORS. John J. Bartholdi, U. S. S. Tabor, to station, Dan Slesinger, Iowa, Albert A. Freed, chief of staff, U. S. S. Lander, Adolphus Station, U. S. S. Nevada, to staff, Command and Control Staff School, Fort Leavenworth, Kansas.

LIBRARY COORDINATORS. John J. Bartholdi, U. S. S. Tabor, to station, Dan Slesinger, Iowa, Albert A. Freed, chief of staff, U. S. S. Lander, Adolphus Station, U. S. S. Nevada, to staff, Command and Control Staff School, Fort Leavenworth, Kansas.

LIBRARY COORDINATORS. John J. Bartholdi, U. S. S. Tabor, to station, Dan Slesinger, Iowa, Albert A. Freed, chief of staff, U. S. S. Lander, Adolphus Station, U. S. S. Nevada, to staff, Command and Control Staff School, Fort Leavenworth, Kansas.

LIBRARY COORDINATORS. John J. Bartholdi, U. S. S. Tabor, to station, Dan Slesinger, Iowa, Albert A. Freed, chief of staff, U. S. S. Lander,

WASHINGTON: WEDNESDAY, APRIL 17, 1935

17

His Pal Slew
Aged Couple,
Suspect Says*Jackson, Pleading Not Guilty, Accuses Shell of Coleman Killings.*Virginia Prepares to Extradite Prisoner
From New York.Special Dispatch to The Post.*

Fredericksburg, Va., April 16.—After pleading not guilty to an indictment charging him with the murder of Mr. and Mrs. John Thomas Coleman at Spotsylvania Court House this afternoon, Joe Jackson, 38-year-old Negro, told the court the actual killings were committed by John Shell, Negro now being held in Haverstraw, N. Y., for the crime.

Jackson pleaded not guilty to an indictment of six counts returned by a special grand jury. Jackson declared that he took no part in the actual killings. He said he stood guard at the road while Shell went to the Coleman house for the purpose of robbery and that he was not aware that murder had been committed until the next morning.

Jackson was indicted for the murder of both Mr. and Mrs. Coleman, as well as Shell. Both were indicted for the double murders, individually and jointly, making a total of six indictments.

Three Counts in Each Charge.

Each indictment consists of three counts charging killing by means of shooting, beating and drowning. Immediately following Jackson's statement, which was given voluntarily, Judge Frederick W. Coleman ordered the Negro to Henrico County Jail near Richmond for safe keeping and he was transferred immediately by Sheriff Maxie L. Blaydes and other officers.

There was only a small group of spectators in the courtroom when Jackson entered after being brought from the Fredericksburg Jail by City Sergeant J. C. Chichester. Clerk Arthur H. Crismond read the indictment and asked:

"How say you?" to which Jackson replied in a firm voice, "not guilty."

Commonwealth's Attorney E. B. Garner asked that Jackson be held without bail and that no trial date be fixed until the return of Shell from New York. Judge Coleman then ordered Jackson taken to the Henrico County Jail until trial.

Volunteers Statement.

After entering the plea of not guilty Jackson, handcuffed, sat down between two officers and the proceedings appeared to have ended. A short conversation between City Sergeant Chichester and Jackson ensued and the Negro arose and addressing Judge Coleman said he had a statement to make. At consent from the bench he launched into a recital of his purported part in the slaying of the elderly farmer and his wife.

"John Shell asked me two weeks before the murders to help him in a little job. He said the job was to rob Mr. and Mrs. Coleman. I told Shell that I wouldn't do it, because I didn't want to get in trouble."

"But when he again asked me to help him on Tuesday (the day of the killing) I said I would go along. We got on a bus and rode to Massaponag. We walked from there to the junction of the highway and the private road leading to the Coleman home. The junction is about a half mile from the house."

Unaware of Slaying, He Says.

"Shell told me to stay here and watch and not let anybody go to the house. I waited until Shell came back. When he returned, in an automobile, he also had a shotgun and a gold watch. I knew the robbery had been committed but Shell didn't tell me he had murdered the people. I didn't find that out until the next day."

"Leaving the neighborhood we drove back to Fredericksburg. Shell and I separated. Half an hour later Shell came to me again and said he wanted me to go with him to Richmond in the car. I did. We came back to Fredericksburg Wednesday and I haven't seen Shell since."

Earlier Confession Cited.

Jackson prior to this afternoon had made a confession to Sgt. Chichester in which he is said to have related some details of the brutal scene which occurred at the Coleman home before the couple were murdered.

Sgt. Chichester told the court that Jackson had told him how Shell made Mrs. Coleman partly disrobe in his search for money. When he could find none, Jackson said Shell stuck pins in the elderly woman and later burned her in an effort to make her disclose a suspected hiding place of her money.

Copies of the indictments were forwarded by Commonwealth's Attorney Emmett R. Garner to Gov. Peery this afternoon with the request for immediate issuance of extradition papers for Shell. Thirty witnesses were heard by the grand jury. The gold watch case found in Shell's possession following his arrest in Haverstraw, N. Y., figured prominently in the proceedings.

Girl Students Honored.Special Dispatch to The Post.

Westminster, Md., April 16.—At an assembly yesterday at Baker Chapel the Girls' Athletic Association of Western Maryland College gave its highest awards to the two seniors, Miss Mary E. Brown, of Washington, and Miss Catherine Rose, of North East, Md. The awards, blazers with the monogram of Western Maryland, are presented annually.

Byrd to Launch New Attack
On AAA Amendment Monday*Virginia Senator to Fight Proposed Changes in Law Over Air.By the United Press.*

Senator Byrd, of Virginia, will open a new attack on proposed amendments to the agricultural adjustment act in a radio broadcast in Washington Monday evening.

The Virginian disclosed his opposition after two months' study of changes in the adjustment law recommended by Secretary Wallace and Chester C. Davis, AAA administrator.

Byrd was leader of the forces that beat down similar amendments at the last session of Congress. He made known yesterday he believed the new proposals were "much the same as the old" and would increase the power of the Secretary of Agriculture over all food products.

It was understood the Virginian's argument again would be the passage of the amendments would give the Secretary new authority to require licenses for all farm production—basic and nonbasic commodities alike. Present law already gives him such power over the basic commodities tobacco, cotton, wheat, corn and hogs and several others.

Up to the present, the Virginian had reserved comment on this year's amendments except to say he was told by the chairman of the Senate and House Agriculture Committees that objectionable features had been stricken.

Last year he carried his fight to the country, telling the farmers en masse that the amendments would make Wallace "a car of agriculture" and a "dictator" over production of all growing things.

The new campaign against the AAA amendments will be Byrd's second on major Administration-proposed legislation during the current congressional session.

He was one of the leaders of a group of conservative Democrats who attempted to block the $4,880,000 work relief measure on the ground it would endanger the Government's credit and would not, as claimed, take millions of employable off the relief rolls.

Talbot County UrgesCanal ConstructionSpecial Dispatch to The Post.*

Easton, Md., April 16.—Long advocated as necessary to the advancement of Talbot County business and commerce, a proposal for the construction of a canal connecting Oak Creek and Plain Deal Creek has been brought to the attention of the War Department by the Talbot County Chamber of Commerce.

The waterway, it is pointed out, could be built with Federal funds at large savings to farmers, shipper, oystermen and the sea food industry generally.

Convict Denied MotionTo Quash Killing ChargeGate City, Va., April 16 (P).—*

Circuit Judge E. C. Carter this afternoon overruled motion by counsel for Thomas Cole Hart, on trial for the slaying of a convict guard, to quash the indictment against Hart on the grounds that the mandatory death sentence applicable to the case was unconstitutional.

Hart is charged with slaying Alton Leonard, guard at a road camp near here on September 15, 1932, when the accused and two other prisoners made a break for liberty. The other two were recaptured and sentenced to life imprisonment.

Sweet Briar CollegeAwards Book PrizeSpecial Dispatch to The Post.*

Sweet Briar, Va., April 16.—The annual award of the Book Club Prize at Sweet Briar College has just been made by the faculty book shop committee. The committee has announced that Miss Claudia Montague, of Scarsdale, N. Y., is this year's winner of the prize, which was established at Sweet Briar three years ago for promoting better taste in books and encouraging the acquisition of private libraries by students. The award is made each year to a member of the senior class who has shown "the greatest discrimination" in collecting books while in college.

The prize consists of $20 worth of books of the winner's own choice.

Man Crushed to DeathIn Leap From TrainApparently trying to jump from a* fast Baltimore & Ohio freight train, a man identified as John Murphy, 22, of Baltimore, was crushed to death yesterday between the train and iron fence in front of the Riverdale station.

A coroner's jury, summoned to the scene by Acting Coroner John A. Downing, returned verdict of "death through his own negligence."

Social and Club NotesOf Towns and Cities in Nearby StatesBy Elizabeth C. Taylor.Special Correspondent of The Post.*

The Wednesday afternoon Club music section of the Martinsburg, W. Va., Women's Club will be entertained at 3 p. m. today in an exchange program given by an out-of-town club which will later hear a program by the Martinsburg club.

Another interclub affair will be held today by the Lewisburg, Md., Women's Club, which will have as its guests members of the Harmony Grove Club and the Emmitsburg Women's Club. Mrs. M. Ramsburg is chairman of the entertainment, which will be held at the community hall recreation under the direction of Mrs. Paul Burkman.

"American Citizenship" will be the topic of today's meeting of the Point of Rocks, Md., Women's Club. Mrs. A. B. Fisher is the hostess.

The chairman of the legislation committee, Mrs. S. R. Hickman, is in charge of the program.

Miss Minnie W. White will be hostess to members of the Tuscarora Women's Club of Martinsburg, W. Va., at a meeting today. Mrs. Harry Van Metre will lead the discussion, having as alternate Mrs. H. S. Whitner.

The education committee of the Woodsboro, Md., Women's Club put on the program at the meeting of the club yesterday. Mrs. J. P. Feller was hostess, while the program was handled by Mrs. Feiser and Mrs. Harry Barrick. Mrs. J. C. Slover was in charge of the recreation.

The Swan Pond Women's Club of Martinsburg, W. Va., had as hostess yesterday Miss Belle Stanley. Mrs. McGarry Snyder was the leader.

Apple Fiesta Plans To Be Radio TopicSpecial Dispatch to The Post.*

Winchester, April 16.—Messages from prominent Virginians this week will tell the radio public of the program that is being prepared for the twelfth annual Apple Blossom Festival here May 2 and 3.

Among those who will speak are Senator H. F. Byrd, Lieut. Gov. James H. Price and Gov. Peery. Their talks will be over a nation-wide hook-up.

Kent RequestsPeery to Clear*Appeal TanglePlea Filed by His CounselAfter Judge Refusesto Act on Writ.By the Associated Press.*

Richmond, Va., April 16.—Governor Peery today was requested by counsel for Robert C. Kent, Jr., to clear a legal tangle in proceedings by which Kent, convicted of kidnapping, hopes to have his case reviewed by the State Supreme Court of Appeals.

Kent has been granted a writ of error by the court, but the law provides that the record of the case must be filed within 60 days after the writ has been granted.

Edward T. Haynes, Kent's counsel, informed Philip Cohen, Solicitor General, that he intended to ask Judge A. C. Buchanan, of Tazewell, before whom the case was heard, to grant his client bail and order the record put in.

Kohen contended the request should be made to Judge Benjamin T. Hayden, who requested to be relieved when the original trial was held and was replaced by Judge Buchanan at Governor Peery's designation.

Haynes said Judge Hayden declined to have any connection with the case and the matter was referred to the Governor for solution.

Kent was convicted of kidnapping Mrs. Mary Jane Hastings after she was found dead in Pennsylvania following a motor trip with Kent to Washington.

Augusta County SetsPublic Speaking EventSpecial Dispatch to The Post.*

Harrisonburg, Va., April 16.—Dewitt Miller, of Bridgewater, will represent Rockingham in the Bath-Augusta-Rockingham Future Farmers of America district public-speaking contest at Beverly Manor High School, Augusta County, tomorrow night. One speaker from Bath; two from Augusta and one from Rockingham will compete.

The winner will engage in the Northern Virginia contest for the honor of representing the valley in the State contest at V. P. I. next June.

Mrs. Hurley Will JudgeMay Event at HerndonLeesburg, Va., April 16 (P).—*

Patrick J. Hurley, of Leesburg, wife of the former Secretary of War, will be one of three judges of Maypole dances to be staged by Herndon High School pupils May 3. Mrs. J. R. H. Alexander, of Leesburg, and Mrs. Carson Ryan, of Falls Church, president of the Fairfax County Federation of Parent-Teacher Associations, are the other judges.

Miss Edith Coulter, senior in the Herndon school, has been chosen queen of the event.

Man Crushed to DeathIn Leap From TrainApparently trying to jump from a* fast Baltimore & Ohio freight train, a man identified as John Murphy, 22, of Baltimore, was crushed to death yesterday between the train and iron fence in front of the Riverdale station.

A coroner's jury, summoned to the scene by Acting Coroner John A. Downing, returned verdict of "death through his own negligence."

Social and Club NotesOf Towns and Cities in Nearby StatesBy Elizabeth C. Taylor.Special Correspondent of The Post.*

The Wednesday afternoon Club music section of the Martinsburg, W. Va., Women's Club will be entertained at 3 p. m. today in an exchange program given by an out-of-town club which will later hear a program by the Martinsburg club.

Another interclub affair will be held today by the Lewisburg, Md., Women's Club, which will have as its guests members of the Harmony Grove Club and the Emmitsburg Women's Club. Mrs. M. Ramsburg is chairman of the entertainment, which will be held at the community hall recreation under the direction of Mrs. Paul Burkman.

"American Citizenship" will be the topic of today's meeting of the Point of Rocks, Md., Women's Club. Mrs. A. B. Fisher is the hostess.

The chairman of the legislation committee, Mrs. S. R. Hickman, is in charge of the program.

Miss Minnie W. White will be hostess to members of the Tuscarora Women's Club of Martinsburg, W. Va., at a meeting today. Mrs. Harry Van Metre will lead the discussion, having as alternate Mrs. H. S. Whitner.

The education committee of the Woodsboro, Md., Women's Club put on the program at the meeting of the club yesterday. Mrs. J. P. Feller was hostess, while the program was handled by Mrs. Feiser and Mrs. Harry Barrick. Mrs. J. C. Slover was in charge of the recreation.

The Swan Pond Women's Club of Martinsburg, W. Va., had as hostess yesterday Miss Belle Stanley. Mrs. McGarry Snyder was the leader.

Town to Pay
Bus Victims
Last TributeWilliamsport to VoiceSorrow at SimpleRites Today.Last of Funerals SetThis Morning When 2Will Be Buried.Special Dispatch to The Post.*

Williamsport, Md., April 16.—This little Maryland town, which has listened since Sunday to the almost continual tolling of church bells ringing a requiem for 14 young lives snuffed out in a crossing accident in Rockville last week, will pause tomorrow to do final homage to its dead.

All 2300 relatives of the victims, survivors of the fatal crash, and officials of the town, will gather in the town's auditorium. Here they will listen to the low-toned voice of the Rev. Walter B. Stehl, rector of St. John's Protestant Episcopal Church, speak officially of the town's sorrow.

They will hear the sad strains of "One Sweetly Solemn Thought," sung by Mrs. Huddle, wife of the Hagerstown minister, who has officiated at so many of the 14 hillside burials of the last few days. She also will sing "Face to Face."

All ministers of the town will take some part in the simple ceremonies. Mayor Richard G. Hawkes will preside, while members of the board of education and officials of both Williamsport and Hagerstown will occupy a prominent section of the auditorium.

At the procession left the home of the McElroy boy snow fell lightly. The funerals of Phoebe Kelley and James Flurie will be held tomorrow morning, the last of the 14.

Farms IncreasingOn Eastern Shore4 Counties Report Gain toAgriculture Census.Special Dispatch to The Post.*

Federalburg, Md., April 16.—Four Eastern Shore counties have increased their number of farms since the 1930 census, according to Isaac H. Morris, supervisor of the agricultural census in the nine counties.

Williamsport County farms increased by 449, it was revealed following a recent check. The previous census showed a total of 2,193 farms in that county, while the recent survey revealed 2,642.

Somerset, Caroline and Dorchester also showed increases. The first has 1,887 farms as against 1,581 in 1930, while Caroline boasts 1,977 as opposed to 1,922 five years ago. Dorchester has 1,987 farms, while in 1930 it had only 1,588.

F. W. Oldenburg, extension agent of the University of Maryland, is making a survey of Eastern Shore soil with a view to advising farmers as to the quality of their land and what crops to plant.

Lovington, Va., FormsIts Own Garden ClubCharlottesville, Va., April 16.—*

A garden club has been organized in the village of Lovington at a meeting in the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Coleman. Officers were elected and plans made for the next three months.

Officers elected were Mrs. L. L. Lea, president; Mrs. J. H. Abernethy, vice president; Mrs. C. W. Embrey, secretary; Mrs. Lena Larke, treasurer; Mrs. J. Tinsley Coleman, Jr., recording secretary; Mrs. M. K. Estes, corresponding secretary, and Mrs. Lucy C. Smith, chairman of publicity. The club has a membership of 22.

Relief Canvass Mapped.Richmond, Va., April 16 (P).—

W. E. EURE, VERA research expert, prepared today to launch next week a canvass of relief conditions in Chesapeake Bay counties, where a number of fishermen's families had been extended rehabilitation aid following the disastrous hurricane of September 1933.

Group Routed 3d Time
In 24 Hours by FireBy the Associated Press.*

Lexington, Va., April 16.—Routed by fire from their beds for the third time in 24 hours, members of the Kappa Alpha Fraternity chapter here early today determined to seek rest elsewhere until Lexington firemen guarantee the blaze is completely extinguished.

The blaze broke forth first near midnight Sunday. Smoldering embers flared up again about sunrise yesterday and again about midnight last night. Firemen said the third outbreak probably was caused by flames creeping between the walls.

Virginia ParksFast Improve,Director SaysDevelopment Greater Thanin Any Other State,Bursen Tells Club.Special Dispatch to The Post.

Charlottesville, Va., April 16.—More progress has been made in the development of a State park system in Virginia within the past two or three years than in any other Commonwealth in the Union, R. E. Bursen, of Richmond, director of the division of parks, State conservation and development commission, declared at the weekly luncheon of the local Kiwanis Club.

Today, said the speaker, there are only three counties in the State that are not within 50 miles of a park. Up to March 31 the National Government had appropriated for State park development a total of $5,195,131.76, while the State has expended only $20,342.07. In all, nearly $5,000,000 acres have been donated to the State.

Virginia today, Bursen stated, has seven State parks, in addition to one historical park, the Richmond Battlefield Park; extending into Henrico and Hanover counties. The National Government has just acquired another area, Choptank, in Stafford County.

The seven parks are Douthat, in Bath and Alleghany counties; Hungry Mother, in Smyth County; Fairy Stone, in Patrick County; Staunton River, in Halifax and Charlotte counties; Seashore State Park, at Cape Henry, in Princess Anne County; Westmoreland Park, in Westmoreland adjoining Stafford and Wakefield, and Chesterfield Park, in Chesterfield County.

In addition the National Government is acquiring areas for development of wayside parks.

Suicide Victim'sBody UnclaimedFuneral Indefinite; FirstWife Aids Belongings.*

The time and place of the funeral of E. C. Howe, whose suicide on Sunday revealed a double life as the husband of two wives—remained in doubt yesterday as no immediate relatives came forward to claim the body.

His first wife, in Rapid City, S. Dak., yesterday wired Arlington County officials for the time and place of the funeral. She also asked that his personal belongings be held for his wife and children.

Howe, committed suicide Sunday in the home in Lyon Village where he was said to have lived with his bride of three weeks, the former Miss Margaret Gibson, of Washington.

Church Editor SpeaksAt Frederick EventsSpecial Dispatch to The Post.*

Frederick, Md., April 16.—The Rev. Dr. Paul S. Leinbach, Philadelphia, editor in chief of the Reformed Church Messenger, addressed 125 ministers of the County Ministerial Association at its monthly meeting yesterday. Following the meeting he was a luncheon guest at the Francis Scott Key Hotel.

Sunday morning Dr. Leinbach occupied the pulpit of the First Baptist Church. In the evening he spoke at the vesper service at Hood College. His evenings last week he preached before large crowds at Calvary Methodist Episcopal Church at the annual union Lenten services sponsored by the 11 Protestant churches of the city.

School Men
Ask Virginia
For Pay RiseMinimum Salaries Fixedat $630 or $720Now Sought.More Adequate Systemof Pensions to BeSecond Aim.By the Associated Press.*

Richmond, Va., April 16.—A tentative decision to seek a larger school appropriation from the General Assembly for the purpose of providing minimum teachers' salaries of $630 or $720 has been reached by directors of the Virginia Education Association, C. J. Heatwole, executive secretary, said today.

Other points of the tentative program include establishment by the Assembly of a more adequate teachers' pension system, possibly with other State employees in the same plan, and revision of the school code, Heatwole said.

Speculation as to what the attitude of the school forces toward a special session of the Assembly would be arose when it was recalled that Gov. Peery in 1934 told Federal authorities his proposed tax program for schools would be ineffective if the State were forced to put up $2,000,000 to match Federal relief funds, as had been demanded.

The education association has not considered what course it would take if recent demand of PERA Administrator Hopkins that Virginia supply $3,000,000 for relief necessities a special session.

Legislation sponsored by Gov. Peery advanced the present school term to eight months and provided a minimum salary of $460 for teachers.

Senior StudentsGuests at DinnerJunior Class at WarrentonHost at School.Special Dispatch to The Post.*

Warrenton, Va., April 16.—Thirty-one prospective graduates of Warrenton High School were guests at a banquet given by the junior class tonight in Warrenton High School. Entertainment was arranged by the juniors, assisted by Mrs. Hunter Bowman, of the faculty, and P. B. Smith, Jr., principal.

Wallace Brown, Jr., Wallace Tiffney, C. E. Turner and Arthur Mann, jr., spoke. Dancing followed the banquet.

The senior officers are Stanley Johnson, president; Fred Bartenstein, jr., vice president; Elmer Noland, treasurer; Ellice Armstrong, secretary, and Nancy Booley, reporter. Other class members are W. H. Gaines, jr., LaClair Gray, Ollie Grimsley, James Hughes, Douglas Luke, Charles Moffett, William N. Trow, Angus Meyers, Mary Bryant, Kathleen Cockrell, Lucille Cockrell, Frances Goff, Charlotte Gray, Dorothy Hayden, Kathryn Hiner, Anne Kelley, Dorothy Lunceford, Mabel Lunceford, Hester McClanahan, Gertrude Robertson, Ellen Sanders, Katie Schwall, Mary Stuart DeVore, Margaret Hayland, Byron Ridgeway and Margaret Cockrell.

Junior Order CouncilNominates J. L. HuffSpecial Dispatch to The Post.*

Salisbury, Md., April 16.—Jasper L. Huff, of Cumberland, was opposed for nomination as State counselor of the Junior Order United American Mechanics at the opening of the State council's two-day annual session today. He will succeed Fred Kelly, of Powellville. Approximately 250 delegates from local lodges throughout Maryland are attending.

Nominations made today were, State advice counselor, George A. Gluck, Robert L. Wilkerson, John H. Ryan and Herbert W. McGee, all of Baltimore. National representatives, Arthur High, J. E. Pritchard, Baltimore; C. N. Scatterfield, Chestertown; John E. France, Hagerstown; M. E. Eichen, Frederick; A. Earle Dice, Crisfield, and E. W. Lamrae, Baltimore County.

Saito Will Be GuestOf Gov. Peery MondayRichmond, Va., April 16 (P).—*

Gov. Peery will entertain the Japanese Ambassador, Hiroshi Saito, at a luncheon at the executive mansion Monday when the Nippon statesman arrives here to address members of the Current Events Club.

The Ambassador will be the guest of Dr. and Mrs. Douglas Freeman. A State police escort will meet his car at the Virginia and of the Arlington Bridge and accompany him to Richmond. A representative of Mayor Bright and a special aid assigned by the Governor of Virginia will meet the party at the corporate limits of Richmond and city police will replace the State escort when he arrives in the city.

Rope a Clew to Robbery.Staunton, Va., April 16 (P).—

Her Contributions to the Theater Win Katharine Cornell a New Honorary Degree

Miss Cornell To Be Honored By University

Wisconsin to Give Honor; First Night's Hot Topic; Amusement Notes.

(Reprinted from Yesterday's Last Edition.)

By Nelson B. Bell.

Since we have concerned ourselves to some extent lately with the more recent accomplishments in the theater of Katharine Cornell, it is interesting to learn through the friendly advice of her talented stentor, Ray Henderson, that Miss Cornell will be given the honorary degree of doctor of letters by the University of Wisconsin at its commencement exercises in June.

This will mark the second time this year that the actress-manager has been honored for her work in the theater by an educational institution. The University of Buffalo presented her with the chancellor's medal on Washington's Birthday, February 22.

When Miss Cornell recently opened John Van Druten's new play, "Flowers of the Forest," in the Maryland Theater in Baltimore, a record was established for four performances. The three night and one Saturday matinee performances of the van Druten play attracted 7,772 people, prior to the New York premiere of the drama.

Many Stanzas.

The receipts were $16,456.55, including the Federal amusement tax the customers necessarily were compelled to shoulder.

Included in this imposing gross—a fine full week for any ordinary attraction—was the item of $1,491.60 paid in by the occupants of extra chairs placed in the orchestra pit and those who were content—approximately 20—of the privilege of purchasing standing room.

Mr. Van Druten, by the way, is writing a novel. He will remain in America through the summer, unless his adaptation of "La Vole Lactée" is produced in England this spring by John Gielgud.

This would be the popular actor with whom Guthrie McClintic, Miss Cornell's husband, will begin negotiations for an American appearance upon his (Mr. McClintic's) arrival in England on the Majestic Thursday.

About this Eddie Peabody fellow, Eddie, one learns from a few of those inescapable tabloid sources, was a Sunday night dinner guest at the White House for the third time in the last three months.

He is booked solid—the "ly" being deleted in show business—until next March, except for the three summer months he usually reserves for recreation on his Riverside, Calif., ranch, and in doing the us duty his Reserve Heutenancy entitles him to.

Eddie has canceled his week-end bookings—which do not affect his week's appearance as headliner on the stage of the Earle Theater—in order to appear in Annapolis at the Mid-Eastern annual show and to give a personal performance in "Smoke Hall" at the Academy this Saturday night. This is in compliance to his former submarine commander, Charles Lockwood, now an instructor at the United States Naval Academy.

In case you care to know, Eddie plays only 28 instruments, five of which he invented himself. Six of his banjos are worth $1,000 apiece; violin is a Lorence Caroselli, valued at $4,000. His first violin was given to him at the age of 8 by his father. He still has it, although it is not playable at this day and date. It has survived three shipwrecks.

Eddie just finished a screen short for Vitaphone and is considering a part in "The Big Broadcast" for Paramount. Also he may go into Rudy Vallee's next flicker, they being close pals since that six-month Hollywood Restaurant run on Broadway. So now you know.

More About "First Nights." For the sake of the record, it should be set down that a long single-spaced letter, dated April 11, from Mr. Freeman W. Clark, 1335 Hemlock street northwest—not published in full because it largely duplicates ideas already communicated to, and printed in, these columns—rather takes the side of Mr. Westwood, Mr. Burnett and Equity in the discussion of the "first times on any stage" in Washington.

Mr. Clark once more brings up a matter that occasions this column some perplexity. It is the fumbling of lines by an actor on the third or fourth night of her engagement in "Ode to Liberty" at the National. Miss Claire, one of the theater's most gifted and most reliable comedienne, must have pursued a steadily descending course as her work at the National progressed.

After several decades of first-nighting this reporter is not impervious to the distressing effects of missed lines and cues by stars presumably in the first night. It is the exquisite form of torture for those on both sides of the footlights. But, strangely enough, Miss Claire was not sufficiently "off" in her lines and business the first night of "Ode to Liberty" to make her transgressions either notable or objectionable. Yet more than that, she has brought the inexcusable lapses of Miss Claire later in the week to my attention.

I am able to offer neither explanations nor excuses for Miss Claire, if her later performances were as faulty as I am told.

Mr. Clark adds postscript. In a postscript, Mr. Clark has this to say:

"I did not see 'Three Men on a Horse' and 'Cello Zero' but I am sure at the time of opening that you gave excellent reviews."

Blonde Bangs Ball for Beauty!

The trig and trim Miss Alice Faye, last season seen on a local screen in the second edition of George White's screen "Scandals," has hit upon a new game in Hollywood for exercise and health. Roller-skating polo, whatever that is, seems, is Miss Faye's chief diversion—so much so, in fact, that she has organized a girls' team that hurls a challenge practically into the teeth of any other girls' team in the United States. The trick in this deft probably is that there is no other girls' team in the United States. Is there even any such thing as "roller-skating polo"?

better patronized, but do not blame the public too harshly for this. Poor "John Public" has been fooled so many times he has become just a bit wary and I don't know as I can blame him for that.

This was pretty thoroughly—hope—gone into in this department's Sabbath lead in the drama section of The Sunday Post. It is my conviction that if "John Public" has been too often "fooled," it is because a considerable number of intelligence were defrauded by dramatic frillities that only public performance could disclose and not by any deliberate aim to defraud on the part of the producers.

Do people stop reading books, stop buying automobiles, throw away their electric clocks, cast out their radio sets, abandon their oil heaters and discontinue the useful habit of wearing clothes simply because they occasionally run across a few of these useful articles that are not up to specifications?

Since when, in short, has everything in the world become perfect? If everything in the world has not reached that coveted Utopian perfection, then why should it be expected of the theater?

I ask you.

A few days ago there arrived at the dramatic desk a reproduction of an excellent bit of drawing bearing the caption, "Forgoing a Thousand Cares—This is the privilege of the Motion Picture—That they bring great joy and relaxation to humankind."

The picture is of a cross-section of audience facing a screen on which they evidently see much that diversifies, charms and amuses them. I am particularly glad to have the picture, which is well worth framing and will be soon, but I am still more appreciative of the friendly note that accompanied it, to wit:

Dear Mr. Bell: A little while ago an artist here painted a picture in which he endeavored to catch the spirit of the service which a motion picture really renders.

We were so pleased with the job that we had the attached reproduction made, and I want you to have one. I know you will get the same pleasure out of all these happy faces, as I have.

With best wishes always, I am, Sincerely yours,

(Signed) WILL M. HAYS.

A Valuable Suggestion.

Mr. Charles H. Lambert, 729 Twenty-second street, in requesting the complete cast of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's production of Dickens' "David Copperfield," submits a valuable suggestion to the managers of motion picture theaters.

It is that the casts of pictures be posted conspicuously in the lobby so that those who either are unable to read the entire roster of players as it is flashed on the screen or remember them all afterward may refresh their memories as to who played what.

This, it seems to me, is an improvement even over the occasional custom of screening the cast at both the beginning and following the final fade-out of important pictures.

S.R.O. Sign Out For Mt. Rainier Charter Night

Mayor Leads 800 Citizens in Celebration of 25th Anniversary.

Led by their popular mayor, Norman A. Pruitt, more than 800 citizens of Mount Rainier jammed every available inch of space in the Bluebird Hall last night to celebrate the twenty-fifth anniversary of the granting of the town's charter.

Many were unable to gain admission into the hall at what proved to be the largest civic demonstration ever held in the nearby Mary-land community.

In his address of welcome, Mayor Pruitt paid tribute to the pioneer citizens and to those who since have carried forward the plans created by them.

He called upon all citizens "to put their shoulders to the wheel and to help the town to develop and advance the development and advancement of the first 25."

Development Traced.

Carl Book, former clerk-treasurer, traced the development of the town from its formation in 1910 and declared "that its future was very bright."

An address was also delivered by Arthur Keefer, attorney, who paid tribute to the form of government under which the town operates.

The one outstanding fact in connection with the government, Mr. Keefer said, is that there are no political parties and that every citizen is afforded the right and opportunity to seek public office.

He urged the citizens to "get behind that government, which has kept the community free from financial chaos and which is not run by politicians."

Magistrate Robert E. Joyce, who received the charter, and who was his mayor, attended at did former Mayors William E. Vanneman and Fred Negus.

Included in the ceremonies was a tribute to the deceased former town officials, including Mayors Fred Weber and William E. Rider.

A massed choir, under the direction of Charles Famosa, sang "The Palms" and a minute silence was observed.

Concert Opens Program.

The festivities opened with a half hour concert, which was given by Light Co. Employees Band and following the formal ceremonies a dance was held.

The invocation was delivered by the Rev. Everett Gatlin, pastor of the First Baptist Church and the benediction by the Rev. R. C. Fitzgerald of the St. James Catholic Church.

Among the talent appearing on the program were Miss Leno Rider, daughter of the late former Mayor Rider; Earl Bauman, Marion E. Meitzler, radio singer, and Irene Meitzler.

The celebration was proposed by Margaret Smith and Ina Sager. Other talent included Frank Green, ventriloquist; August D'Aiello, Willard Babcock, Betty Kennedy, Dorothy Bauman, Alvin Tyrrell and the Hawaiian Melody Boys.

This celebration was proposed by Margaret Smith and Ina Sager. Other talent included Frank Green, ventriloquist; August D'Aiello, Willard Babcock, Betty Kennedy, Dorothy Bauman, Alvin Tyrrell and the Hawaiian Melody Boys.

The celebration was proposed by Margaret Smith and Ina Sager. Other talent included Frank Green, ventriloquist; August D'Aiello, Willard Babcock, Betty Kennedy, Dorothy Bauman, Alvin Tyrrell and the Hawaiian Melody Boys.

The celebration was proposed by Margaret Smith and Ina Sager. Other talent included Frank Green, ventriloquist; August D'Aiello, Willard Babcock, Betty Kennedy, Dorothy Bauman, Alvin Tyrrell and the Hawaiian Melody Boys.

The celebration was proposed by Margaret Smith and Ina Sager. Other talent included Frank Green, ventriloquist; August D'Aiello, Willard Babcock, Betty Kennedy, Dorothy Bauman, Alvin Tyrrell and the Hawaiian Melody Boys.

The celebration was proposed by Margaret Smith and Ina Sager. Other talent included Frank Green, ventriloquist; August D'Aiello, Willard Babcock, Betty Kennedy, Dorothy Bauman, Alvin Tyrrell and the Hawaiian Melody Boys.

The celebration was proposed by Margaret Smith and Ina Sager. Other talent included Frank Green, ventriloquist; August D'Aiello, Willard Babcock, Betty Kennedy, Dorothy Bauman, Alvin Tyrrell and the Hawaiian Melody Boys.

The celebration was proposed by Margaret Smith and Ina Sager. Other talent included Frank Green, ventriloquist; August D'Aiello, Willard Babcock, Betty Kennedy, Dorothy Bauman, Alvin Tyrrell and the Hawaiian Melody Boys.

The celebration was proposed by Margaret Smith and Ina Sager. Other talent included Frank Green, ventriloquist; August D'Aiello, Willard Babcock, Betty Kennedy, Dorothy Bauman, Alvin Tyrrell and the Hawaiian Melody Boys.

The celebration was proposed by Margaret Smith and Ina Sager. Other talent included Frank Green, ventriloquist; August D'Aiello, Willard Babcock, Betty Kennedy, Dorothy Bauman, Alvin Tyrrell and the Hawaiian Melody Boys.

The celebration was proposed by Margaret Smith and Ina Sager. Other talent included Frank Green, ventriloquist; August D'Aiello, Willard Babcock, Betty Kennedy, Dorothy Bauman, Alvin Tyrrell and the Hawaiian Melody Boys.

Hollywood

By Sidney Skolsky

Watching Them Make Pictures

Hollywood, April 16. FRED ASTAIRE starts work in his new flicker, "Top Hat." The first scene is being filmed, and Astaire is sure in a new tuxedo, just imported from London, and wearing a top hat. He is playing this scene with Eric Blore, who was the waiter in "Gay Divorcee." Now Blore is the servant-butler to Edward Everett Horton, but he is angry with Horton and doesn't speak to him. Blore has the same mannerisms, and speaks the same off the screen as he does on. He is really an amusing fellow to watch. He has the grips and electricians laughing as he recites his lines and this is something for many of the favorite comics of the screen are nothing but bores to the grips and electricians. Irving Berlin comes on the set to watch his first genuine screen effort take off. Berlin looks on in the same manner as he did when he attended the rehearsals of his Broadway musicals. Berlin watches Director Mark Sandrich, the cameraman and the sound man.

He is interested in this motion picture business and wants to learn something about it, for he is in it to click and stay. When Astaire starts dancing to one of the Berlin tunes, Irving, without realizing it, is jigging away somewhat in the fashion of Astaire. I said somewhat, another visitor on the set this day is Howard Benedict, the Broadway press agent, who has just assumed charge of the RKO publicity department. The other workers in this department were fearful of their jobs when Benedict took over, but now they are not. There would be a shakeup. When the publicity department went to lunch in the studio commissary, a member of the staff, Eddie Rubin, Benny's brother, suggested they all make a good impression by ordering eggs Benedict.

THE BIG BROADCAST has been in production, occasionally, for the past several months. It is a huge picture, with running time of 150 minutes. It is a musical through it and trying to hold it together. Whenever Director Norman Taurog has a sketch of a musical number ready he goes to it. This particular afternoon, he is recording a musical sequence with Bing Crosby. The song, one you'll be hearing, is called "I Wish on the Moon," and the tune is by Ralph Rainger and the lyrics by Dorothy Parker. It was originally written for "Sailor Beware." Director Taurog's right thumb is heavily bandaged, and he is not talking as much as he generally does on a set. Investigation discloses the fact that Taurog had the thumb broken two nights before at Carol Lombard's party. Miss Lombard gave a party in which her house was redecorated as a barn. Miss Lombard insisted that every one come to her barn attired in evening clothes.

Arriving there, the guests discovered the living and dining rooms to be completely devoid of furniture. The signal for dinner. The guests, in evening clothes, were told to squat on the floor. Dinner would be served to them there. Anything to make a party different. Norman Taurog was sitting, he had just finished his soup, and a waiter walked by to start serving the next course. The waiter didn't see Taurog's outstretched hand, stepped on it, and broke Taurog's thumb.

AFTER three months of preparation, a musical number for "The Great Ziegfeld" is really facing the camera. Seymour Felix started rehearsing this number with Harry H. Hottel at Universal. Then, while William Anthony McGuire was still sharpening his pencils to finish the scenario, the entire script and all persons concerned were sold to Metro. They immediately continued their rehearsing at Metro. It is a circus number, showing how the great Florenz Ziegfeld would have glorified a circus. Harriet Hottel dances amongst lions and Russian wolfhounds. There is a large sign on the set which reads "Please be quiet, as any slight noise disturbs the animals."

This one dance number has taken three months to stage; several of Ziegfeld's shows didn't last that long. This one number will cost $100,000. Ziegfeld used to put on one of his lavish "Follies" for a cost of $200,000—and he was considered extravagant.

Henry Fonda is acting his original role in the film version of "The Farmer Takes a Wife." He should know his lines well enough not to stumble when he recites them for the camera, but they have changed several important speeches just enough to confuse him. Fonda was told that the only thing he would miss when working in pictures would be an audience. This is what the stage performer misses at first. When asked about this, Fonda pointed to the large number of extras, the electricians, the property men, the grips, etc., and said: "You see them all watching me. That's a bigger audience than I ever played to at the Martin Beck Theater. I get more stage fright facing the camera."

Copyright, 1935.

West Virginia Opens Drive on Tax Dodgers

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Charleston, W. Va., April 16.—Attempts of several Harrison County merchants to evade the State consumers' tax have caused Fred L. Fox, State tax commissioner at Charleston, to seek the cooperation of the prosecuting attorney's office here.

The attention of the grand jury at the June term of criminal court here is expected to be called to the matter, and indictments may follow.

Jail Road Labor In Virginia Hit

By The Associated Press.

Lynchburg, Va., April 16.—The legislative commission for the study of highway matters had before them today sharp criticisms of the use of convict labor in road building and a warning that the gas tax refund privilege was being abused.

Both matters were presented by R. D. Ramsey, business manager of the local Chamber of Commerce, at the hearing held here yesterday for the Lynchburg and Staunton construction districts. Ramsey termed the use of convicts costly to the Highway Department. About 150 representatives of communities in the two districts attended the hearing, the third of a series of four. The last will be held at Wytheville, May 27, for the Salem and Bristol districts.

Delegations from Bath, Highland, Rockbridge, Rockingham, Augusta and Nelson Counties appeared in the interest of roads in their territories.

Shore Cleric Makes Plea for World Peace

By The Associated Press.

Chestertown, Md., April 16.—A plea for world peace was voiced today by the Rev. Frank White to several hundred communicants at the opening of the three-day union services of Protestant churches here.

The services, held in Emmanuel Methodist Episcopal Church, are being attended by members of the Episcopal, Methodist and other Protestant churches. The Rev. Charles L. Atwater, president of the Chestertown Ministerial Union and rector of Emmanuel Church, presided.

The Rev. Mr. White is pastor of the Chestertown Methodist Episcopal Church. He will preside tomorrow, when the Rev. William H. Litsinger, pastor of Christ Methodist Protestant Church, will be heard. The Rev. Mr. Atwater will speak Thursday.

Chamber Plans Due In Manassas Meeting

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Manassas, Va., April 16.—Final decision on the organizing of a chamber of commerce for Prince William County will be reached Thursday night at a meeting at the Manassas Town Hall.

Members of the Fredericksburg Chamber of Commerce will speak, and if an organization is decided upon, a president will be elected. A vice president from each community in the county would also be elected.

Cemetery Association Name Robb President

At a meeting of the Chestnut Grove Cemetery Association, held in the Herndon (Va.) High School Auditorium, the following officers and trustees were elected:

President, Arthur Robb; vice president, Cassius M. Lawrence; treasurer, Dr. E. L. Robb; secretary, James Myres, and trustees, Edgar Reed, B. H. Brady, Wilson McNair, William S. Blanchard and Mrs. J. R. McMillen.

The next meeting will be held in the auditorium Tuesday at 8 p. m.

Oyster Dredgers Turn to Planting

Marketing Ends April 25; Yield Sets Record.

Baltimore, April 16.—With the oyster dredging season now closed, Sweeney Earle, State conservation commission, is gathering data on the record yield.

Seed oyster planting began today when dredge boats, no longer lawfully permitted to remove the bivalves from their bars for transplanting to bars in the lower bay and tributaries.

The most recent record available for the season just ended shows that 2,100,000 bushels of oysters were harvested up to the end of March. Marketing of oysters will continue until April 25, Earle said.

Beer Parlors Facing Curb

Weston, W. Va., April 16.—The new city council is planning to curb beer parlors and dance clubs. It has directed City Attorney James H. Brewster, Jr., to prepare an ordinance regulating such places and fixing hours for closing them.

Moseley Asks Re-election.

Bradnan, Va., April 16 (P).—State Senator H. B. Moseley has announced for re-election from the Seventh Senatorial District, including the counties of Brunswick and Mecklenburg.

Republican Win In Charleston Poll

Party Slate Gains Victory in City Contests.

Charleston, W. Va., April 16.—The Republican party maintained its hold on Charleston's municipal government today, under leadership of Daniel Boone Dawson.

The present Republican administration will give way May 6 to other Republicans who swept Democratic opposition before them in yesterday's election.

The Republicans will install one of the youngest administrations in the State capital's history. They won the offices of city treasurer, judge, five councilmen-at-large and a big majority of the ward councilmen.

Dawson, 37, a municipal judge, defeated J. Horner Davis, young lawyer and Democratic member of the House of Delegates, by a majority of 2,000 votes.

Terra Alta Rotary Elects.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Terra Alta, W. Va., April 16.—The Terra Alta Rotary Club has elected the following directors: P. R. Watson, Dr. C. E. Smith, Dr. C. Y. Moser, Max Poeschner, J. W. Whicker, L. F. Everhart and D. Crane. The board then selected the officers for the ensuing year: President, P. R. Watson; vice president, Dr. C. E. Smith; treasurer, C. T. Kelley, and secretary, Dr. C. Y. Moser.

Manassas Preparing Easter Charity Ball

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Manassas, Va., April 16.—Plans are nearing completion for the Easter Charity Ball, which is sponsored annually by the Manassas Women's Club, and is to be given Monday night in Manassas High School gymnasium.

Miss Margaret Lynch, chairman of the committees, has announced that extensive plans for the dance have been carried out with the aid of Mrs. William L. Lloyd, Mrs. Lula Broadus, Mrs. Alfred Wylander and Jenkins Davis.

Wise, Va., April 16 (P).—Mrs. Minnie Patton, of Norton, will go on trial Wednesday on a charge of slaying Mrs. William Stewart, also of Norton, in the second murder trial here in three days.

Circuit Judge Skeen ordered a directed verdict of acquittal yesterday in the case of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Strickling, of near Big Stone Gap, charged with shooting to death Kendrick Sloan last summer. The dismissal was based on insufficient evidence.

of the committees, has announced that extensive plans for the dance have been carried out with the aid of Mrs. William L. Lloyd, Mrs. Lula Broadus, Mrs. Alfred Wylander and Jenkins Davis.

Net Stake Punches Hole in 60-Ft. Boat

Oxford Bugeye Towed to Port by Ferry.

Annapolis, Md., April 16.—A 60-foot bugeye, the Earl E. F. F. Fish of Oxford, Md., was towed to drydock at Eastport today by the ferry Albert C. Ritchie.

The bugeye left here this morning for a load of oysters up the Chesapeake Bay and ran aground a pound-net stake near Sandy Point. The stake punched a hole in the craft and Capt. Pope and his two-man crew were unable to cope with the water.

Capt. Pope sailed over into the ferry channel, half-masted an American flag upside down as a distress signal, and was towed to port by the ferry.

Tidewater in Virginia Planted With Oysters

Waraw, Va., April 16 (P).—Thousands of bushels of oysters have been planted on public rocks of Madox Creek, Church Point Bar in the Potomac River, in Wicomico River, and other sections of Tidewater by the State.

Five thousand bushels of shells bought from local oyster packers were spread over 2,000 acres of Madox Creek and in the Potomac by watermen under the supervision of Capt. J. G. Hedin and Henry Miller. Ten thousand bushels were planted in the Wicomico and adjacent streams.

AMUSEMENTS

NATIONAL Week End. Mon. and Tues. 4th Play American Theater Society. S. N. BERNARD'S PLAY. RAIN FROM HEAVEN.

Jane COWLEY, HALLIDAY and a Notable Theater Guild Cast. Seats New-Night, $20, $15, $10, $5, $2.50. R.F. House, 830 E. 11th St. $2.50 incl. tax.

GAYETY BURLESK

NOW PLAYING. The Sensation of 1935. "ANN WINN" See Her and Be Convinced.

Belasco

George Arliss "IRON DUKE" Last 3 Days: "ROAD TO LIFE"

Earle

CAR 99 Last 3 Days. Eddie Peabody GRACIE BARRIE

GO INTO YOUR DANCE

At a meeting of the Chestnut Grove Cemetery Association, held in the Herndon (Va.) High School Auditorium, the following officers and trustees were elected:

President, Arthur Robb; vice president, Cassius M. Lawrence; treasurer, Dr. E. L. Robb; secretary, James Myres, and trustees, Edgar Reed, B. H. Brady, Wilson McNair, William S. Blanchard and Mrs. J. R. McMillen.

The next meeting will be held in the auditorium Tuesday at 8 p. m.

AMUSEMENTS

FOX NOW. "CASINO MURDER CASE" PAUL LUNAS-ALISON SHIPWORTH-Red Healy

"SPICES OF 1935" WITH A COLD WAR OF STARS AND MUSIC

AMUSEMENTS

WILL ROGERS "LIFE BEGINS AT 40" 15c to 40c

AMUSEMENTS

WILL ROGERS "LIFE BEGINS AT 40" 15c to 40c

AMUSEMENTS

WILL ROGERS "LIFE BEGINS AT 40" 15c to 40c

AMUSEMENTS

WILL ROGERS "LIFE BEGINS AT 40" 15c to 40c

AMUSEMENTS

WILL ROGERS "LIFE BEGINS AT 40" 15c to 40c

AMUSEMENTS

Sun Monks Wins at $33,000 After Training Field at Graw

Red Wagon's At the Post... Early Lead Overcome

J. Renick Rides Gelding to 2-Length Victory as Snow Falls.

By Walter Haight.

A Staff Correspondent.

HAVRE DE GRACE RACE TRACK, Md., April 16.—It was January in April at the race track today and through the snow flurries ran Sun Monk, to add to the chills of some 3,000 customers—that is those customers that were not queuing ticket No. 284. From an inconspicuous last to a conspicuous first tells in brief the kind of race run by this gelded son of Sun Brier.

And to top it off, Sun Monk was ridden by the ancient and exceedingly unobtrusive jockey Joe Renick. Perhaps that latter fact accounts for the $33,000 later displayed after the race, which served to hasten the blood circulation of the chosen few who bet on the 4-year-old.

Only Hardy Pass Afield.

Not since the Bowie races were called off to a heavy snowstorm on April 1, 1924, has there been a more uncomfortable day at a Maryland race track. The whole thing smacked of Charles Town, just a winter meeting—the small crowd, the meager wagering and the rush on the coffee stand. The jockeys went in for gloves and the empty bottles per capita set something of a new high.

Early in the afternoon, victories by the Vanderbilt entries warmed the hearts of the favorite players, but the long shots soon began heading down into overcasts and few but the hardy ventured out into the open except at post time.

Red Wagon Sets Pace.

To return to the feature race over the Redwings, it appeared that Red Wagon would get home when Starter Milton sent the field of seven away. Red Wagon rolled out on top and showed his wheels, rather, heels, to Ladfield and Naps. Sun Monk appeared to be dragging anchor at this stage, but on reaching the stretch Renick asked Sun Monk for speed. The answer was a series of bounds that made the other horses look as if they were tied to the eighth pole. A few hops and it was all over. Sun Monk by two lengths was the winner, Red Wagon second by a head and Ladfield third.

Cherry Stone Wins First.

The Vanderbilt entry, as usual, triumphed in the first race, a dash of 4 1/2 furlongs for juveniles. The winner was the highly-touted Cherry Stone, but it was no cinch for him. Grand Slam was the only horse to make a move, but after taking all the worst of the get-away, Grand Slam was forced to yield a nose decision to the cerise and white. Cherry Stone, in fact, was the only horse to make a move, but after taking all the worst of the get-away, Grand Slam was forced to yield a nose decision to the cerise and white. Cherry Stone, in fact, was the only horse to make a move, but after taking all the worst of the get-away, Grand Slam was forced to yield a nose decision to the cerise and white.

The Vanderbilt influence continued to assert itself in the second race. Gum, half of entry with Ladfield, finished in front of Paradiso and Flight of Gold. This time maiden 3-year-olds broke from the 4-furlong post. Gum dominated the running and jockey Fallon made no mistakes, coasting over with the son of Chile, while the others were driving hard approaching the wire. The Vanderbilts were again the favorites at $3.80.

There was no Vanderbilt entry in the third race so Col. R. Bradley put over a winner in Blessed Again. The daughter of Blue Larkspur merely toyed with her field to romp home seven lengths in advance of Tartan Bells and Hogan's Fox. There was no contest after Hogan's Fox was ousted from the lead in the backstretch.

Slipper King Triumphs.

Slipper King proved his versatility in the fourth race by making it two victories in a row, defeating a field of sprinters after scoring at a distance over at Bowie. "Mouse" Palers rode Slipper King through the stretch to bound over horses and defeat Cherry and Stocky by a length. Treacher, China and Stocky were most prominent in the early running, but Slipper King came far back to occupy the spotlight at the all-important finish. The winner paid $9.80.

Master Lay at $9 mutuel, took the sixth race. Many believed that the winner fouled Rose, the favorite, at the far turn but Jockey Gilbert registered no complaint. Teddy Carl was third.

The riding Watson brothers fought it out in the final with George on Brains, taking the measure of Bobby on Dancing Boy. Flying There was third in the stretch drive.

Jockey Speck Dead.

3d in Grand National

Cheltenham, England, April 16.—While Speck, British jockey who finished third on Thomson II in the Grand National Steeplechase March 29, died in a hospital here today from injuries received in a fall last Wednesday. His spine was fractured when he fell while riding Goshawk.

Shuker Wins Award

On Hoys Spring Squad

Joe Shuker, Georgetown freshman basketball player at St. Albans, Md., yesterday was named the best player on the team.

Shuker was named the best player on the team.

Shuker was named the best player on the team.

Shuker was named the best player on the team.

Shuker was named the best player on the team.

Shuker was named the best player on the team.

Shuker was named the best player on the team.

Shuker was named the best player on the team.

Shuker was named the best player on the team.

Shuker was named the best player on the team.

Shuker was named the best player on the team.

Shuker was named the best player on the team.

Shuker was named the best player on the team.

Shuker was named the best player on the team.

Shuker was named the best player on the team.

Shuker was named the best player on the team.

Shuker was named the best player on the team.

Shuker was named the best player on the team.

Shuker was named the best player on the team.

Shuker was named the best player on the team.

Shuker was named the best player on the team.

Shuker was named the best player on the team.

Size May Split Middleburg Card Today

By Paul Gallico.

A Special Correspondent.

BOSTON, Mass., April 16.—"Second-Hand Ruth," the best of the best, called me "Second-Hand Ruth."

They call me "Second-Hand Ruth."

Old American folk song.

Or perhaps the song should be sung "Second-Hand Ruth."

For the world's greatest ball player, Second-Hand Ruth, has come back to this city, after 15 years, as second-hand goods. Somehow this whole show here today, played under cold, gray clouds, reminds me of the day you bought an expensive used car, a big, shiny model that had been used for many years, and by some fine old family and finally disposed of one day when the pinch came with a discreet advertisement: "For sale, 1918 Rolls-Royce, driven by same family chauffeur; has had best of care. Good as day purchased. New paint job this year."

And then you splurged and bought it and all the friends and neighbors came around the day of delivery to inspect the new arrival. And some one always said, "It looks all right, but will it run?"

We went down into the field and inspected the paint job on Ruth before the game. It was good. He was dressed in cream flannel, new flannel baseball pants, red stockings with blue and white stripes around the middle of the leg, a navy blue sweater, a white shirt, a red tie, a red cap with a long, red brim.

His color was healthy and his eyes sparkling, his spirits high. When he went trotting out toward the field in those funny Joe Jackson shoes he wears with the cowhide toes, slightly upturned, he was as trim a job as though he had been turned out of the shop yesterday. The only thing that marked him as an ancient model was the balding head. Fine to look at—but would it run?

And so you remember the trepidation with which you took the big shiny thing out on the road for a long trial, with critical friends in the back seat. Was there anything underneath that glistening, nickle-plated hood? And what a thrill it was when the engine sang truly and sweetly, when it hummed, and roared and took hills so high, and your friends looked disappointed, and you realized that you had not been stuck with a lemon.

And that is how the Boston Braves felt this afternoon when for the first time, in front of 25,000 of the neighbors, they tried out their second-hand ball player. He rumbled, he roared, he sang, he hummed, he took hills so high, and your friends looked disappointed, and you realized that you had not been stuck with a lemon.

Oh, my friends and faithful clients, how he runs! Sweetly, powerfully, steadily, gorgeously! Perhaps tomorrow or the next day the bearings will work loose a trifle, and strange noises may develop, but today he was truly as good as new.

Clouts $251-foot Homer.

Up through the seventh inning, when these ecstatic paragraphs are being written, Babe Ruth had pitched Carl Hubbell, one of the greatest pitchers in either league, for a clean single and a blazing home run that traveled all of 425 feet and dropped over the screen between the two sets of right field bleachers. The Braves have four runs. Ruth drove two of them in and scored the other two himself. And in the fifth inning he turned on the steam and made a one-handed circus catch, running over to the left field foul line and robbing Carl Hubbell of what appeared a certain hit.

That catch was one of the greatest catches between ball and man I have ever seen. A faster man might have made it look better, but Babe's ankles were twinkling plenty fast as he raced in from left field to a spot about 15 yards past third base, where Hubbell's low fly was arcing for what seemed to be a sure hit. It was going to drop just inside the foul line and it never had enough height to permit a man to get under it. But the old second-hand player came on, steaming, and the ball had him beaten, only just before it fell to the ground he made a last lunge and struck out his right hand and the ball fell into the yellow pocket and stuck there.

Yes, it wasn't all paint and lubrication. The home run, too, was a Babe Ruth home run. The bat had the old "click" off the ball, the ball had the same arching flight, the crowd roared the same roar, first of eager expectancy and then of ecstatic fulfillment as Right Fielder Mel Ott suddenly stopped running and gave up and the ball dropped outside the park.

Hubbell had two-and-two on Ruth when Babe hit the beauty. The first pitch was a ball and the second a blinding strike. On the next pitch, Babe faked a bunt but didn't and the throw was called a strike. With two strikes and a ball on him, Babe looked at one and it was called a ball. And then something electric lit the press box and I saw a sprained ankle and a broken arm. Babe was on second base. It simply had to happen then, it was going to happen. Hubbell pitched and Ruth swung, and bat and ball kissed one another in the sweetest embrace known to both. The crowd yelled and the New York men in the press box ran up and down slapping one another on the back. It was a truly magnificent moment.

She runs—the runs—the old car runs! And now you know how Boston feels tonight with the Babe having beaten his old rivals, the Giants, again. As a matter of fact I feel pretty good myself because I love that big monkey and when he makes good I float like a brother.

(Copyright, 1935, by the Chicago Tribune-New York News Syndicate, Inc.)

Continued from Page 13.

the President had departed in the fifth, when a heavy rain descended.

It was a sprained ankle and a broken arm. Babe was on second base. It simply had to happen then, it was going to happen. Hubbell pitched and Ruth swung, and bat and ball kissed one another in the sweetest embrace known to both. The crowd yelled and the New York men in the press box ran up and down slapping one another on the back. It was a truly magnificent moment.

She runs—the runs—the old car runs! And now you know how Boston feels tonight with the Babe having beaten his old rivals, the Giants, again. As a matter of fact I feel pretty good myself because I love that big monkey and when he makes good I float like a brother.

(Copyright, 1935, by the Chicago Tribune-New York News Syndicate, Inc.)

Continued from Page 13.

the President had departed in the fifth, when a heavy rain descended.

It was a sprained ankle and a broken arm. Babe was on second base. It simply had to happen then, it was going to happen. Hubbell pitched and Ruth swung, and bat and ball kissed one another in the sweetest embrace known to both. The crowd yelled and the New York men in the press box ran up and down slapping one another on the back. It was a truly magnificent moment.

She runs—the runs—the old car runs! And now you know how Boston feels tonight with the Babe having beaten his old rivals, the Giants, again. As a matter of fact I feel pretty good myself because I love that big monkey and when he makes good I float like a brother.

(Copyright, 1935, by the Chicago Tribune-New York News Syndicate, Inc.)

Continued from Page 13.

the President had departed in the fifth, when a heavy rain descended.

It was a sprained ankle and a broken arm. Babe was on second base. It simply had to happen then, it was going to happen. Hubbell pitched and Ruth swung, and bat and ball kissed one another in the sweetest embrace known to both. The crowd yelled and the New York men in the press box ran up and down slapping one another on the back. It was a truly magnificent moment.

She runs—the runs—the old car runs! And now you know how Boston feels tonight with the Babe having beaten his old rivals, the Giants, again. As a matter of fact I feel pretty good myself because I love that big monkey and when he makes good I float like a brother.

(Copyright, 1935, by the Chicago Tribune-New York News Syndicate, Inc.)

Continued from Page 13.

the President had departed in the fifth, when a heavy rain descended.

It was a sprained ankle and a broken arm. Babe was on second base. It simply had to happen then, it was going to happen. Hubbell pitched and Ruth swung, and bat and ball kissed one another in the sweetest embrace known to both. The crowd yelled and the New York men in the press box ran up and down slapping one another on the back. It was a truly magnificent moment.

She runs—the runs—the old car runs! And now you know how Boston feels tonight with the Babe having beaten his old rivals, the Giants, again. As a matter of fact I feel pretty good myself because I love that big monkey and when he makes good I float like a brother.

(Copyright, 1935, by the Chicago Tribune-New York News Syndicate, Inc.)

Continued from Page 13.

the President had departed in the fifth, when a heavy rain descended.

It was a sprained ankle and a broken arm. Babe was on second base. It simply had to happen then, it was going to happen. Hubbell pitched and Ruth swung, and bat and ball kissed one another in the sweetest embrace known to both. The crowd yelled and the New York men in the press box ran up and down slapping one another on the back. It was a truly magnificent moment.

She runs—the runs—the old car runs! And now you know how Boston feels tonight with the Babe having beaten his old rivals, the Giants, again. As a matter of fact I feel pretty good myself because I love that big monkey and when he makes good I float like a brother.

(Copyright, 1935, by the Chicago Tribune-New York News Syndicate, Inc.)

Continued from Page 13.

the President had departed in the fifth, when a heavy rain descended.

It was a sprained ankle and a broken arm. Babe was on second base. It simply had to happen then, it was going to happen. Hubbell pitched and Ruth swung, and bat and ball kissed one another in the sweetest embrace known to both. The crowd yelled and the New York men in the press box ran up and down slapping one another on the back. It was a truly magnificent moment.

She runs—the runs—the old car runs! And now you know how Boston feels tonight with the Babe having beaten his old rivals, the Giants, again. As a matter of fact I feel pretty good myself because I love that big monkey and when he makes good I float like a brother.

(Copyright, 1935, by the Chicago Tribune-New York News Syndicate, Inc.)

Continued from Page 13.

the President had departed in the fifth, when a heavy rain descended.

It was a sprained ankle and a broken arm. Babe was on second base. It simply had to happen then, it was going to happen. Hubbell pitched and Ruth swung, and bat and ball kissed one another in the sweetest embrace known to both. The crowd yelled and the New York men in the press box ran up and down slapping one another on the back. It was a truly magnificent moment.

She runs—the runs—the old car runs! And now you know how Boston feels tonight with the Babe having beaten his old rivals, the Giants, again. As a matter of fact I feel pretty good myself because I love that big monkey and when he makes good I float like a brother.

(Copyright, 1935, by the Chicago Tribune-New York News Syndicate, Inc.)

Continued from Page 13.

the President had departed in the fifth, when a heavy rain descended.

It was a sprained ankle and a broken arm. Babe was on second base. It simply had to happen then, it was going to happen. Hubbell pitched and Ruth swung, and bat and ball kissed one another in the sweetest embrace known to both. The crowd yelled and the New York men in the press box ran up and down slapping one another on the back. It was a truly magnificent moment.

She runs—the runs—the old car runs! And now you know how Boston feels tonight with the Babe having beaten his old rivals, the Giants, again. As a matter of fact I feel pretty good myself because I love that big monkey and when he makes good I float like a brother.

(Copyright, 1935, by the Chicago Tribune-New York News Syndicate, Inc.)

Continued from Page 13.

the President had departed in the fifth, when a heavy rain descended.

It was a sprained ankle and a broken arm. Babe was on second base. It simply had to happen then, it was going to happen. Hubbell pitched and Ruth swung, and bat and ball kissed one another in the sweetest embrace known to both. The crowd yelled and the New York men in the press box ran up and down slapping one another on the back. It was a truly magnificent moment.

She runs—the runs—the old car runs! And now you know how Boston feels tonight with the Babe having beaten his old rivals, the Giants, again. As a matter of fact I feel pretty good myself because I love that big monkey and when he makes good I float like a brother.

(Copyright, 1935, by the Chicago Tribune-New York News Syndicate, Inc.)

Continued from Page 13.

the President had departed in the fifth, when a heavy rain descended.

It was a sprained ankle and a broken arm. Babe was on second base. It simply had to happen then, it was going to happen. Hubbell pitched and Ruth swung, and bat and ball kissed one another in the sweetest embrace known to both. The crowd yelled and the New York men in the press box ran up and down slapping one another on the back. It was a truly magnificent moment.

She runs—the runs—the old car runs! And now you know how Boston feels tonight with the Babe having beaten his old rivals, the Giants, again. As a matter of fact I feel pretty good myself because I love that big monkey and when he makes good I float like a brother.

(Copyright, 1935, by the Chicago Tribune-New York News Syndicate, Inc.)

Continued from Page 13.

the President had departed in the fifth, when a heavy rain descended.

It was a sprained ankle and a broken arm. Babe was on second base. It simply had to happen then, it was going to happen. Hubbell pitched and Ruth swung, and bat and ball kissed one another in the sweetest embrace known to both. The crowd yelled and the New York men in the press box ran up and down slapping one another on the back. It was a truly magnificent moment.

She runs—the runs—the old car runs! And now you know how Boston feels tonight with the Babe having beaten his old rivals, the Giants, again. As a matter of fact I feel pretty good myself because I love that big monkey and when he makes good I float like a brother.

(Copyright, 1935, by the Chicago Tribune-New York News Syndicate, Inc.)

Continued from Page 13.

the President had departed in the fifth, when a heavy rain descended.

It was a sprained ankle and a broken arm. Babe was on second base. It simply had to happen then, it was going to happen. Hubbell pitched and Ruth swung, and bat and ball kissed one another in the sweetest embrace known to both. The crowd yelled and the New York men in the press box ran up and down slapping one another on the back. It was a truly magnificent moment.

She runs—the runs—the old car runs! And now you know how Boston feels tonight with the Babe having beaten his old rivals, the Giants, again. As a matter of fact I feel pretty good myself because I love that big monkey and when he makes good I float like a brother.

(Copyright, 1935, by the Chicago Tribune-New York News Syndicate, Inc.)

Continued from Page 13.

the President had departed in the fifth, when a heavy rain descended.

It was a sprained ankle and a broken arm. Babe was on second base. It simply had to happen then, it was going to happen. Hubbell pitched and Ruth swung, and bat and ball kissed one another in the sweetest embrace known to both. The crowd yelled and the New York men in the press box ran up and down slapping one another on the back. It was a truly magnificent moment.

She runs—the runs—the old car runs! And now you know how Boston feels tonight with the Babe having beaten his old rivals, the Giants, again. As a matter of fact I feel pretty good myself because I love that big monkey and when he makes good I float like a brother.

Second-Hand Ruth' Is as Good As New, Gallico Finds in Boston

By Paul Gallico.

A Special Correspondent.

BOSTON, Mass., April 16.—"Second-Hand Ruth," the best of the best, called me "Second-Hand Ruth."

They call me "Second-Hand Ruth."

Old American folk song.

Or perhaps the song should be sung "Second-Hand Ruth."

For the world's greatest ball player, Second-Hand Ruth, has come back to this city, after 15 years, as second-hand goods. Somehow this whole show here today, played under cold, gray clouds, reminds me of the day you bought an expensive used car, a big, shiny model that had been used for many years, and by some fine old family and finally disposed of one day when the pinch came with a discreet advertisement: "For sale, 1918 Rolls-Royce, driven by same family chauffeur; has had best of care. Good as day purchased. New paint job this year."

And then you splurged and bought it and all the friends and neighbors came around the day of delivery to inspect the new arrival. And some one always said, "It looks all right, but will it run?"

We went down into the field and inspected the paint job on Ruth before the game. It was good. He was dressed in cream flannel, new flannel baseball pants, red stockings with blue and white stripes around the middle of the leg, a navy blue sweater, a white shirt, a red tie, a red cap with a long, red brim.

His color was healthy and his eyes sparkling, his spirits high. When he went trotting out toward the field in those funny Joe Jackson shoes he wears with the cowhide toes, slightly upturned, he was as trim a job as though he had been turned out of the shop yesterday. The only thing that marked him as an ancient model was the balding head. Fine to look at—but would it run?

And so you remember the trepidation with which you took the big shiny thing out on the road for a long trial, with critical friends in the back seat. Was there anything underneath that glistening, nickle-plated hood? And what a thrill it was when the engine sang truly and sweetly, when it hummed, and roared and took hills so high, and your friends looked disappointed, and you realized that you had not been stuck with a lemon.

And that is how the Boston Braves felt this afternoon when for the first time, in front of 25,000 of the neighbors, they tried out their second-hand ball player. He rumbled, he roared, he sang, he hummed, he took hills so high, and your friends looked disappointed, and you realized that you had not been stuck with a lemon.

Oh, my friends and faithful clients, how he runs! Sweetly, powerfully, steadily, gorgeously! Perhaps tomorrow or the next day the bearings will work loose a trifle, and strange noises may develop, but today he was truly as good as new.

Clouts $251-foot Homer.

Up through the seventh inning, when these ecstatic paragraphs are being written, Babe Ruth had pitched Carl Hubbell, one of the greatest pitchers in either league, for a clean single and a blazing home run that traveled all of 425 feet and dropped over the screen between the two sets of right field bleachers. The Braves have four runs. Ruth drove two of them in and scored the other two himself. And in the fifth inning he turned on the steam and made a one-handed circus catch, running over to the left field foul line and robbing Carl Hubbell of what appeared a certain hit.

That catch was one of the greatest catches between ball and man I have ever seen. A faster man might have made it look better, but Babe's ankles were twinkling plenty fast as he raced in from left field to a spot about 15 yards past third base, where Hubbell's low fly was arcing for what seemed to be a sure hit. It was going to drop just inside the foul line and it never had enough height to permit a man to get under it. But the old second-hand player came on, steaming, and the ball had him beaten, only just before it fell to the ground he made a last lunge and struck out his right hand and the ball fell into the yellow pocket and stuck there.

Yes, it wasn't all paint and lubrication. The home run, too, was a Babe Ruth home run. The bat had the old "click" off the ball, the ball had the same arching flight, the crowd roared the same roar, first of eager expectancy and then of ecstatic fulfillment as Right Fielder Mel Ott suddenly stopped running and gave up and the ball dropped outside the park.

Hubbell had two-and-two on Ruth when Babe hit the beauty. The first pitch was a ball and the second a blinding strike. On the next pitch, Babe faked a bunt but didn't and the throw was called a strike. With two strikes and a ball on him, Babe looked at one and it was called a ball. And then something electric lit the press box and I saw a sprained ankle and a broken arm. Babe was on second base. It simply had to happen then, it was going to happen. Hubbell pitched and Ruth swung, and bat and ball kissed one another in the sweetest embrace known to both. The crowd yelled and the New York men in the press box ran up and down slapping one another on the back. It was a truly magnificent moment.

She runs—the runs—the old car runs! And now you know how Boston feels tonight with the Babe having beaten his old rivals, the Giants, again. As a matter of fact I feel pretty good myself because I love that big monkey and when he makes good I float like a brother.

(Copyright, 1935, by the Chicago Tribune-New York News Syndicate, Inc.)

Continued from Page 13.

the President had departed in the fifth, when a heavy rain descended.

It was a sprained ankle and a broken arm. Babe was on second base. It simply had to happen then, it was going to happen. Hubbell pitched and Ruth swung, and bat and ball kissed one another in the sweetest embrace known to both. The crowd yelled and the New York men in the press box ran up and down slapping one another on the back. It was a truly magnificent moment.

She runs—the runs—the old car runs! And now you know how Boston feels tonight with the Babe having beaten his old rivals, the Giants, again. As a matter of fact I feel pretty good myself because I love that big monkey and when he makes good I float like a brother.

(Copyright, 1935, by the Chicago Tribune-New York News Syndicate, Inc.)

Continued from Page 13.

the President had departed in the fifth, when a heavy rain descended.

It was a sprained ankle and a broken arm. Babe was on second base. It simply had to happen then, it was going to happen. Hubbell pitched and Ruth swung, and

Cotton and Wool Boards To Close for Two Days

New York Cotton Exchange Good Friday, April 19, and Saturday, April 20, were declared exchange holidays.

The Wool Top Exchange also will be closed on the same days.

Michigan, Va. April 16 (AP)—The Richmond produce market was a little better today than last week, but the bulk of the week's transactions were in small lots, and the market was not very active. The week's best assortment of fresh fruits and vegetables was about as good as the market has seen in some time. The week's best assortment of fresh fruits and vegetables was about as good as the market has seen in some time.

[illegible][illegible]

10:15 a.m.	Dennis Neid
11:00 a.m.	Harold
10:15 a.m.	Ruler of Rhythm
11:00 a.m.	Harold
10:15 a.m.	Artie Music Review
8:40 p.m.	One Day in the Warning
7:30	Voice of Evangelism
7:45	Chorus
8:15	Plane Moods
8:30	Music in Danger
8:45	Now News Reviews
9:00	Morning Devotions
9:15	News from the States
9:30	Time Machine
10:15	News
10:30	Organ Melodies
11:00	News and Chorus
11:15	Housekeeping Chart U. S. Dept.
11:30	Shoppers Guide
	Afternoon
12:15	Travel Talk
12:30	Melody Trio
12:45	Travel Music
1:00	Martiniere Programs
1:15	News from the States
1:30	Consumer Facts
1:45	News from the States

4:30 Homer, Maddy and Ocar
 4:45 Marlinsburg Programs
 5:15 Middletown Harmony Boys
 5:30 "Wasn't You, Don't"
 5:45 Actina Music Review
 6:00 One Day Painters
 6:30 Buxera Presents
 6:45 Sign on

WJZ is Owned and Operated by Hagerstown Broadcasting Co., Inc.

helps said:

Franklyn Waltman, Jr.

s are finding the best articles
Washington Post, that more Post addicts. The habit of break. The little army of tion to over 91,000 . . . the and it is still going up!

ton Post

Bonds Steady, Utilities Firm, Rails Ease Off

North American 5s Are Up
3¾; Governments
Are in Demand.

By the Associated Press.

New York, April 16.—The bond market succeeded in weathering another sinking spell in railroad loans today and worked higher under encouragement of utilities and industrial. United States Governmentals also showed improvement.

Transfers were again somewhat below the average, however, at 44,630,000, with a value of $4,856,000,000. The market gained 39,467,000 on Monday and the Associated Press average was .1 to .4 of a point higher.

Continued accumulation of selected utility issues coincided with the transfer of hearings on the Wheeler-Rayburn holding bill from the House to the Senate Interstate Commerce committee. The market predictions by leaders of the industry that the measure would undergo radical change before the final vote

Particular bright utility spots were North American 5s, up 3 points at 97; Columbia Gas & Electric 5s, up 1 1/2 at 84 1/2, and Nor-

A feature of the market that caused comment in investment circles was the tendency of non-callable high-priced bonds to blossom out under the most active demand observed in several days, despite the fact that the redemption and funding vogue added another recruit to its ranks when the St. Joseph Lead Co. elected to call $8,000,000 10-year convertible 5 per cent bonds at 105 and interest on June 18.

The new Treasury, 2 1/8% again, were the most active in the Government group and ended 232 1/2 higher at 101.12.

100 Banks Reopen In First 102 Days

Of Current Year

opened, the American Banker ports. Up to April 12 19 nation banks and 81 State-chartered banks

Bank reopenings by month for the year have been as follows: January—national, 11; State, 29; total, 40; February—national, 4; State, 23; total, 27; March—national, 3; State, 15; total, 18; April, 12; May, 10; June, 10; July, 10; August, 10; September, 10; October, 10; November, 10; December, 10.

During the same period 23 banks discontinued business, 14 banks went into voluntary liquidation paying depositors 100 per cent while nine went into receivership five of which were insured in FDIC. Mergers absorbed 58.

Insurance Loan Repayments Grow

over the first quarter of a year and 73 per cent over the first 12 months of 1933, according to a quarterly report of the Northern National Life Insurance Co. The company's statement showed that repayments totaled $110,728.02 in the first quarter of 1935, as compared with $76,448.05 for the first quarter of 1934 and $63,911.73 for the first quarter of 1933.

For the 12 months' period ending March 31, 1935, total repayments on policy loans of the company were $406,688.31, a gain of 60 per over the preceding 12 months' of $254,335.87.

Brazil Nut Importers To Advertise Prod

Philadelphia, April 16.—All important West Coast imports of Brazil nuts and the two steam lines which carry the nuts from Amazon River ports to the Coast have agreed to participate

Following the precedent established last year on the East Coast, the Brazil nut advertising fund is estimated that this group will export during the year 1,000 tons of nuts in the shell and 10,000 of shelled nuts.

the steamship lines will levy an assessment against each 100 pounds of nuts imported, which will be used by the fund for national motion.

STATE LOANS

er $1000

$1000
Per Month
New and attractive mortgage loans

25% on monthly repayments. paying rent. No commission on se a home . . . to make desired or to refinance existing trusts

PERPETUAL
G ASSOCIATION
and E. Sts. N. W.

Washington—Assets over $36,000,000
Established 1881

MARVIN A. GUSTIS

Board
D. C. BALTZ, Secretary

1. The first part of the document is a list of names and titles, including "The Hon. Mr. Justice" and "The Hon. Mr. Justice".

[illegible]

—1936—							—1935—
High Low		Name and Dividend Rate	Sales (Add %)	High	Low	Closes	Net Ch'ge.	High	Low	Name and Dividend Rate	Sales (Add %)	High	Low	Closes	Net Ch'ge.
15 1/2	10 1/2	Louis G&E A (1%).....		18 1/2	18 1/2	15 1/2	- 1/2	20 1/2	22	St L San P & S Schenier Distri		1 1/2	1 1/2	1 1/2	+ 1/2
				14 1/2	14 1/2	14 1/2	%			Schutte Nat		2 1/2	2 1/2	2 1/2	+ 1/2

12 1/2	48%	Amerasia (2)	18	97%	8	44%	44%	0
37 3/4	42	Am Ag Ch Del (2)	6	46	45%	46	0	0
11 1/2	13%	Am Bank Note	8	20%	20	20	0	0
61 1/4	43	Am Bank N pf (3)	40	54%	54%	54%	+ 1 1/2	0
123	110	Am Can (5b)	22	119%	118%	119%	+ 1	0
161 1/2	121 1/2	Am Can pf (7)	161	161%	161%	161%	+ 1	0

[illegible][illegible][illegible][illegible][illegible]

22%	4%	Con Film	4	17%	17%	17%	33	24%	Indust Ray (1.88)	12
22%	15%	Con Film pf (1k)	4	22	21%	21%	71	60%	Ingr Rand (2)	6
22%	15%	Con Gas (1)	145	89%	88%	89	55%	60%	Inland Steel (1)	7
89%	72%	Con Gas pf (5)	4	1%	1%	1%	3	3%	Inspiration Cop	2
24%	1%	Con Laundries	1	8%	8%	8%	5	4	Insurash ctf (.10)	12
		Con Oil	57							18

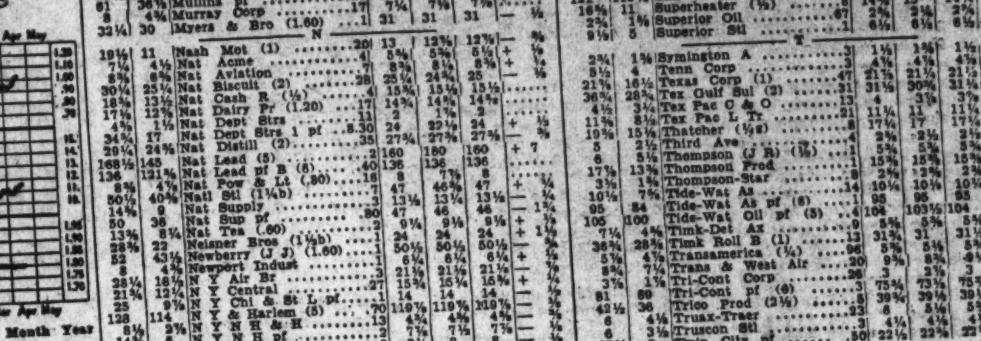

1%	94%	Container A	2	3%	3%	5	1%	Int Agriul
1%	3%	Container	2	3%	3%	5	24%	Int Bus Mach (6a)	10
73%	62%	Cont Bak E	13	72%	71%	170	14%	Int Bus Mach (6b)	10
73%	62%	Cont Cbn	2,560	155	3%	8%	3%	Int Bus Mach (6c)	4
73%	62%	Cont Diam	1,358	13	30%	30%	23%	Int Current '80	4
73%	62%	Cont Ins	1,358	13	30%	30%	34%	Int Harvest '80	2
19%	15%	Cont Mot	94	18	18%	142	13%	Int Harvest of 17	2
19%	15%	Cont Exch	94	43%	43%	2%	1%	Int Harvst of 18	2
19%	15%	Cont Exch (3)	94	43%	43%	2%	1%	Int Mer Mar	2

[illegible][illegible][illegible]

81%	58	Minn-Honey (3 1/2)	110	111	Std Oil Exp pt (5)	110	110	110	110
5%	3%	Minn-Mol Imp	36	36	Std Oil Cal (1)	110	110	110	110
41%	31	Minn-M Imp pt	111	111	Std Oil Ind (1)	110	110	110	110

[illegible]

28%	17%	Motor Fro	11	8%	8%	8%	1	3%	3%	2%	Studebaker	67	67	67
11%	7%	Motor Wheel	11	10%	8%	10%					Sun Oil (1a)	121	118	121
11%	7%	Mullina Mfg	4	20	61	58%	60%	+	+	+	Sun Oil pf (6)	121	118	121
12%	7%	Mullina wd	4	20	61	58%	60%	+	+	+	Sun Oil pf (6)	121	118	121

[illegible][illegible][illegible][illegible][illegible][illegible][illegible][illegible]

Specialties U

In Curb Trade

Murphy Gains 5 Points
Sherwin-Williams and Gulf 1 to 2

By the Associated Press.

New York, April 16.—Quiet demand for specialty shares was principal feature on the curb b'k today. Transfers approximated 100,000 shares, compared with 100 yesterday.

Murphy Co. climbed 5 points on moderate turnover, while gains around 1 to 2 appeared in York, Honduras & Rosario, Sherwin-Williams, Gulf Oil and Cock & Wilcox.

Swift International, Pan-American Airways, Wright Hargrave & Newmont showed fractional improvement, while small increases were registered by Parker, proof, Sunshine Mining, International Petroleum and Aluminum of America.

11

Baltimore Tobacco
Baltimore, Md., April 18.—LEA
BACCO;
Maryland—With receipts 500 ho sales were 274 hogheads. While mand continued active and strong desirable and fine grades, there demand so far for the dull-green dark house-burnt grades.

Ohio - No sales.

Maryland firm leaf nondescript
5.00; low to good common, 3.00 medium, 19.00 to 34.00; good to dium, 3.00 to 40.00. Second - Low to good to fine, 16.00 to 25.00.

Ohio - Fine and blue-cured com medium, 4.00 to 6.00; good to fine
19.00. Spangled - Low to medium
20.00.

..... N. M. Unsound and badly mixed
..... eggs from 2c to 4c lower.
..... Stock in Warehouses.

		Mayland	On
Stock, January 1....	26,224	48
Receipts since.....	3,261
Totals	29,485	48
Delivered since.....	13,549
Stocks today	15,936	48

	Sales.
This week	2,373	1
Previously	2,316	1
Totals	2,390	1

Bank Stocks

Gen Ham Bk & Tr (6).....	108
Chase Nat (1.40).....	20 ³ / ₄
Chem Bk & Tr (1.80).....	36
Commercial (8).....	132
Cent Bk & Tr (.80).....	10 ³ / ₄
Corn Ex Bk & T (3).....	42 ³ / ₄
Bank of the (1).....	18 ³ / ₄

[illegible]

Natl. Fire (2)	62
Natl. Liberty (1/4g)	64
N Y Fire (13g)	13
Star - Banner (20g)	20

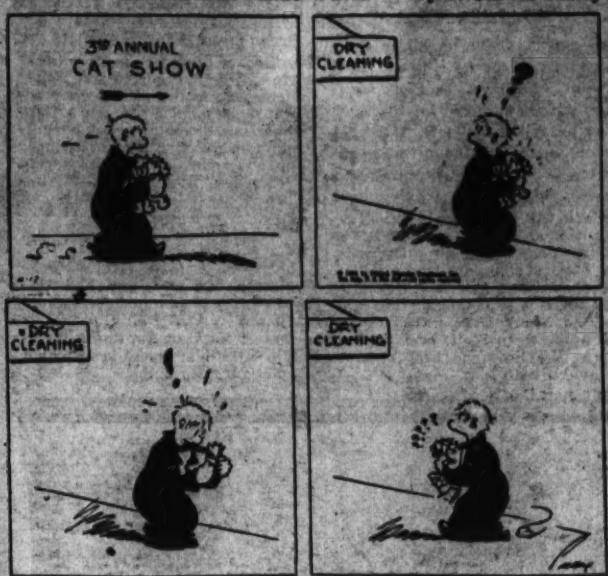

U S Fire (1.50a) 25
Westchester (1.10a) 25
(a) Including extras.
(g) Declared or paid so far th

Rate.	Maturity	Bid.
3	June 15, 1935...101	2-32
1 1/4	Aug. 1, 1935...100	31-32
2 1/4	Dec. 15, 1935...102

back-	2 1/2%	April 15,	1936...	102	29-32
	1 1/2%	June 15,	1936...	141	3-12
Total	3 1/2%	Aug. 1,	1936...	103	30-32

274	2 1/2%	June 15, 1938...	100	17-42
2,483	2 1/2%	Sept. 15, 1938...	104	16-32
	2 1/2%	June 15, 1939...	103	9-32
2,727	1%	Mar. 15, 1940...	101	11-32

BENNY Kittens Don't Like Water By J. Carver Pussy

"Cap" Stubbs He Did Right By Edwin

Today's Crossword Puzzle

ACROSS

- 1 Toward the stars
- 4 Warden
- 8 Swindle
- 12 Meadow
- 13 Kind of fuel
- 14 Employed
- 15 Mere trifle
- 16 Greek letter
- 18 Broad open
- 20 Stone; resentment
- 21 Quick to let
- 22 Mimicked
- 24 Writing fluid
- 25 Article
- 26 Work ahead
- 27 Enemy
- 28 Withstand
- 30 News organization; abbreviation
- 31 Distant but visible
- 32 Untruth
- 33 Peacock
- 34 Harpoon
- 36 Metal container
- 37 Close
- 38 Tree
- 39 Subject to a severe strain

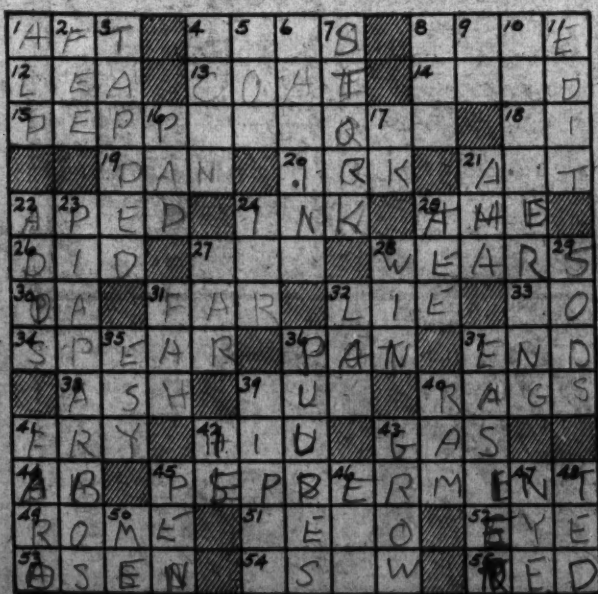

DOWN

- 1 High mountain
- 2 Charge for services
- 3 Struck gently
- 4 Bachelor of arts; abb.
- 5 Accessible
- 6 Air; comb.
- 7 City in Wisconsin
- 8 Wading bird
- 9 Demand payment
- 10 Pronoun
- 11 Assailing with small missiles
- 12 Supervise a publication
- 13 Tablet
- 14 Aerial; prefix
- 15 Exclamation
- 16 Word of sorrow
- 17 Container for a certain condiment
- 18 Component of an atom
- 19 Small pest used in golf
- 20 In favor of
- 21 Gain the victory
- 22 Covers with turf
- 23 Sweet potato
- 24 Supervise a publication
- 25 Masculine name
- 26 Pertaining to the wrist
- 27 Less difficult
- 28 Tapestry
- 29 Male sheen
- 30 Gambler's game
- 31 Exist
- 32 Increase in size
- 33 Writing implement
- 34 Self
- 35 American humorist
- 36 Spread to dry
- 37 Myself

YESTERDAY'S ANSWER

DETROIT SCORED AROUSE ARREAR
TART TOTE ASE
IS EDEN PARTS
VEERY USED ES
ERR NOSE BERY
ITEM RANT
DONA EVEN AGE
AL RANI ASHES
TIGER COMA AT EVA EKED VERA
RELATE OMELET
STAMEN RESIDE

Copyright, 1935.

THE GUMPS

Now on the Radio—Post Comics—WMAL, Sundays, 8:45 a. m.

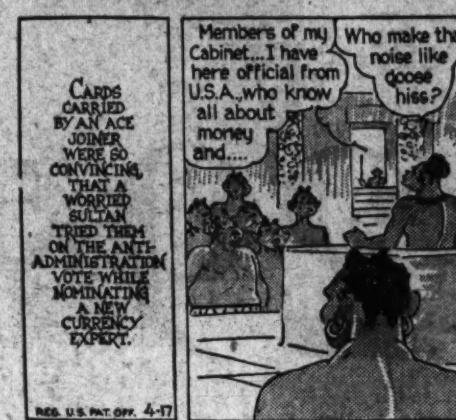

Answer That One

APPLE MARY

THE BUNGLE FAMILY

JOE PALOOKA

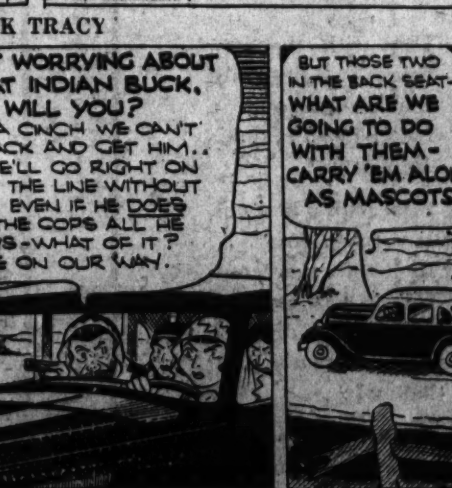

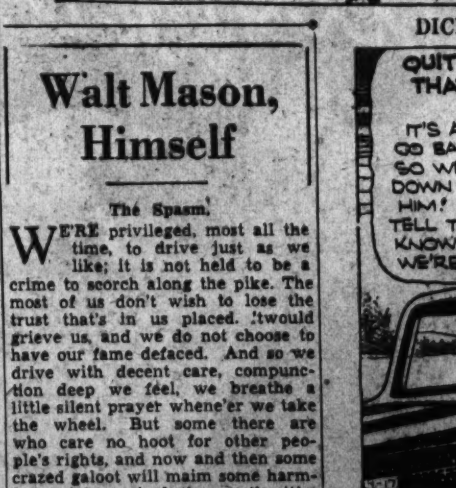

DIXIE DUGAN

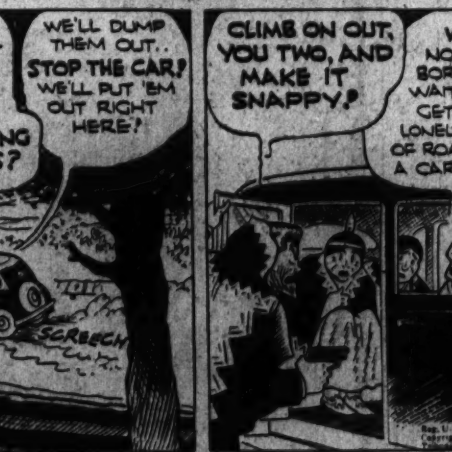

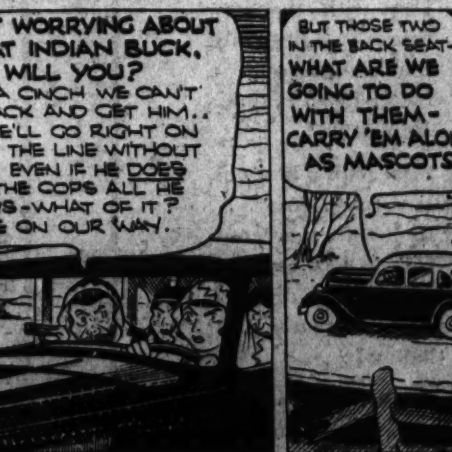

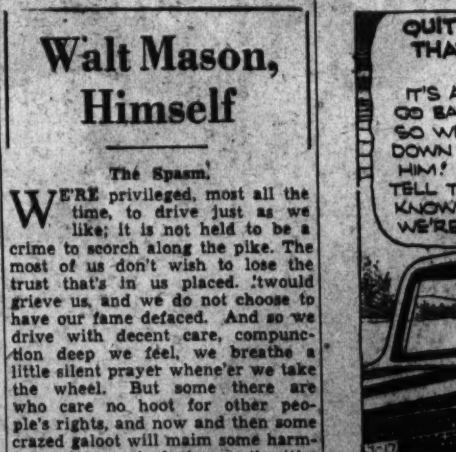

Adoption Thoughts

By J. P. McEvoy and J. H. Striebel

DICK TRACY

WINNIE WINKLE, the Breadwinner

A "Cutting" Remark

Town Wrecked, 7 Hurt as Fire Ignites Powder

75 Homeless, 50 Structures
Ruined by Explosion in Tennessee.

By the Associated Press.

Heinwood, Tenn., April 16.—Seven persons were injured, approximately 75 made homeless and 50 homes and buildings destroyed or damaged when 250 kegs of blasting powder and 20 cases of dynamite exploded today in the center of this small village near the Kentucky-Tennessee line.

The explosives, stored in a small mine supply house, were set off by a burning residence nearby.

Sensing the danger of the flames, J. O. O'Connell, railroad agent, his wife, and R. H. Cecil, merchant, spread the alarm, firing pistols and shouting for the 250 residents of the town to flee.

Mothers Gather Up Young.

Screaming mothers gathered children to their arms and almost the entire populace fled to shelter and the wooded mountains surrounding the village.

Cecil took about 40 persons into a storm house a few moments before the terrific explosion tore the supply house and the two-story Masonic hall nearby, to shattering bits and caved in sides of houses several hundred yards away.

The C. N. O. & T. P. Railway station, 200 yards away, was smashed in two and two churches and three stores of the village were damaged beyond repair. Merchandise in the stores was piled in heaps.

Among those injured were Miss Ella Toomey, Mrs. Angie Noble and Mrs. Louis Williams, sisters, who failed to leave their home, which was wrecked. The sisters and Floyd Pemberton, 14, who lived there, suffered bruises and cuts from flying glass. Others who suffered injuries were Mrs. George Cross and her 18-month-old baby, Mrs. Thomas Daniel and John Phillips.

Town Wrecked, She Says.

"The town is a total wreck," Mrs. O'Connell, the railway agent's wife, said. "There are at least 15 families who can't enter their homes tonight. All the other homes are damaged."

After the explosion residents huddled on the street, shivering in the cold wind. Many were crying and praying. On a corner sat a man reading a Bible to a group.

The Red Cross immediately ordered workers from Knoxville to the scene.

The deafening explosion shook the town of Oneida, 6 miles away. A traveling salesman on the highway 4 miles from Heinwood reported his car was lifted several inches in the air by the blast.

The fire which caused the explosion started in the home of Mrs. Burdette Keeton, 10 feet from the mine supply house. The powder house was owned by George Webb, lumber and coal dealer.

Greater Confidence
Among Bankers Noted

Augusta, Ga., April 16 (AP).—Rudolf S. Hecht, president of the American Bankers Association, told the executive committee of the association today that "not in a great many years has there prevailed in banking such a sense of security as prevails today."

The banking leader explained that his observation is a "composite impression" he has obtained from bankers in all sections of the country.

Mr. Hecht said business leaders gradually are "showing greater confidence in the future and assuming a more forward-looking position."

Demonstrators Demand
A Free Puerto Rico

San Juan, Puerto Rico, April 16.—A cry for Puerto Rican independence was set up today soon after renewal of agitation for statehood. Socialists and Republicans parading the streets of Yauco, near Ponce, halted the "Puerto Rican republic" and hoisted the Puerto Rican flag over the city hall.

In San Juan, Martinez Nadal, leader of the coalition majority in the Legislature, announced his faction would seek consideration at this session of Congress of Puerto Rico's admission as one of the States of the Union.

Townsend, McGroarty
To Speak Before Forum

Dr. F. E. Townsend, author of the Townsend old-age pension bill, and Representative John McGroarty (Democrat), California, sponsor for it in the House, will speak tonight before the Contemporary World Events Forum at National University.

The forum is one of a series of meetings being held by the Institute of Adult Education. It will deal with social security legislation. Dr. Henry Earl Woolever will open the discussion.

Hear

9:15 Today

MISS JEAN ABBEY

Radio Shopper of The Woman's Home Companion
Tell About Easter at

The Hecht Co.

WJSV

9:15 A. M.

Held in Parents' Death

Associated Press Wirephoto.
RUSSELL BOLEY.

college student, 18, charged at Woodward, Okla., with shooting parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Boley to death, pouring gasoline on bodies and setting farm home afire. He pleaded not guilty when arraigned.

President May See Massed War Game

Plans Trip to Pine Camp,
N. Y., in August.

By the Associated Press.

President Roosevelt and George H. Dern, Secretary of War, were reported in official circles yesterday to be tentatively planning to attend the massed army maneuvers at Pine Camp, N. Y., August 17 to 31.

The President's plans were said to depend on White House activities in late August and it was not expected he will make a definite decision until shortly before the maneuvers.

The war games will be the first big scale Army maneuvers to be held since the World War and it was understood the President is eager to see the "doughboys" in action.

If the President's customary summer trip to Hyde Park coincides with the maneuvers at Pine Camp he may go from the "summer White House."

Guard Kills Prisoner,
Quelling Jail Break

Fort Worth, Tex., April 16 (AP).—A fighting jail guard killed one prisoner, wounded two others and quelled a daring break in the Tarrant County Jail today.

Attacked from the rear by three slugging prisoners, Jailer Charles B. Miller opened fire with a pistol. Melvin Jones, 33, a fugitive from the Florida State Prison and owner of a long criminal record, fell dead.

Bullets clipped Clarence B. Billingsley, 23, a jockey, and James Lawrence Kirk, both held on burglary charges. Other prisoners who joined the break fled to cover.

Only
6
DAYS LEFT

THE NEW TELEPHONE
DIRECTORY CLOSES
APRIL 23

To order a telephone, extra listings, or advertising in the yellow pages, just call

Metropolitan
9900

Mobile Suit Hits Negro Juror Ban

Woman Lawyer Moves to Free Alleged Killers.

By the Associated Press.

Mobile, Ala., April 16.—Asserting that Negroes were excluded from jury service in Mobile County and also excluded from the grand jury, Miss Rosa Lehrhardt, attorney, today filed a motion in Circuit Court asking that indictments against two Negroes, charged with slaying a storekeeper, be quashed and thrown out of court.

The two Negroes, Frank Millhouse and R. P. Vaughn, were indicted for the slaying of Neil Sams and wounding his wife in a holdup. The action was the first of its character since the recent United States Supreme Court decision in the Scottsboro case, granting a new trial because Negroes were excluded from juries.

Girl Spy Is Rescued As Love Laughs Again

By the Associated Press.

Salzburg, Austria, April 16 (AP).—Love, heedless of the danger involved, last night engineered a jail-break and rescued an Austrian girl held at Haidin as a Nazi agent.

The girl was arrested for smuggling documents to Austria from Bavaria. Her fiancé and her brother smashed the bars of the little jail, momentarily unguarded, and the three fled to Germany.

Bremer Reveals Second Gang Offer

Sought to 'Buy' Him From Kidnapers, Testimony.

By the Associated Press.

St. Paul, Minn., April 16.—Edward G. Bremer, St. Paul banker, testified in Federal court late today that his kidnapers told him they had been offered a "certain amount of money" if they would turn him over to another gang.

The testimony was given in the trial of Arthur (Doc) Barker and nine others for conspiracy in connection with Bremer's abduction January 7, 1934. Bremer, relating the horror of 21 days of captivity, said that as he was freed at Rochester, Minn., after payment of $200,000 ransom.

"After giving me instructions to count 15 slowly before removing my goggles," Bremer said, "I was told that they had kept their promise, (to release him after ransom payment). They said they had been offered a certain amount of money to turn me over to another gang."

Brother Succeeds W. F. Axton.

Louisville, Ky., April 16 (AP).—Edwin D. Axton, of Louisville, succeeded his brother, the late W. F. Axton, today as head of the world's largest independent tobacco manufacturing concern and as owner of the Axton Thoroughbred Stables.

Explorer's Second Wife Accused of Love Theft

Bridgeport, Conn., April 16 (AP).—Allegations through which Leonard T. Wells, of New York City, seeks to convince a jury in Superior Court here that Zetta R. Wells, of Weston, alienated the affection of Carveth Wells, noted explorer and lecturer, were read to a jury today.

It was the first step in the New York woman's suit for $50,000 for loss of her husband's affections. Mrs. Zetta Wells, who was married to the explorer March 7, 1932, in Alexandria, Va., claims in her answer that there were no affections existing between Wells and his first wife at the time she first became acquainted with him.

Danzig Senate Charges Nazi Attack on Official

Free City of Danzig, April 16 (AP).—The Senate of the Free City today made representations to the Polish diplomatic representatives here alleging a personal attack on a Danzig citizen, School Inspector Hoffmann, at Kolonia, Pomorze, near Zoppot, Danzig, during the recent anti-German disturbances in Pomorze.

Tennessee Stays Dry.

Nashville, Tenn., April 16 (AP).—Tennessee's Senate voted 21-11 today to keep the State's 25-year-old dry laws on the statute books by rejecting a local option liquor legalization bill, the revenue from which was designed for relief.

8 Reasons for

SHELDON Success

2-Trouser SUITS

29.50

1. Showing Sheldon Windowpane Patterns!
2. Showing Sheldon Saddle Checks!
3. Showing Sheldon Chalk Stripes!
4. Showing Sheldon Clustered Effects!
5. Showing Sheldon Shirred Backs!
6. Showing Sheldon Inverted Pleats!
7. Showing Sheldon Saddle Pockets!
8. Showing Sheldon Talon-Tailored Trousers!

Take the Escalators to The Men's Clothing Dept.—Second Floor.

See the new Pioneer Foulard Streamlax Braces... needs no buttons, $1

Manhattan
SHIRTS
... latest spring fashion thoughts

1.95

First with the new things... first with the innovations in fabrics... that's Manhattan!

First with a new collar style-theme...
first with new comfort in cut, a roomier sleeve, a dressier cuff... that's Manhattan!

"Known as the best
—the best known"
... that's Manhattan leadership

The Hecht Co. Men's Shop—
Main Floor

"Manflair" $1.95
The new Wales Starched
Collar - Attached. Shirt wide spread for full knot.

All White BY PACKARD-ARCH-UP

No. 24—All-White
Buckskin with the Arch-Up Features

8.50

- 1—Combination last — fits the heel as well as front of foot;
- 2—Rubber filler makes them pliable and easy to wear;
- 3—Arch-Up shoes never have to be "broken in;"

Wing or straight tips—Sizes 6 to 11—Widths AA to D.

The Hecht Co. Men's Shoe Shop—Main Floor

Famous Men's Wear
From Head to Foot

The Hecht Co.